

Those Jobless

'Headlines'

Don't Apply

By Tim Schuster

KINGSTON

If you are confused by the seemingly conflicting unemployment picture painted first in rosy hues, then in depressing gray, you are not alone.

While federal statistics enthuse over gains in employment ("Jobless Decline Biggest Since '59" headlined a recent Freeman) and state figures play it a bit more cautiously ("Jobless Claim Dip"), the unemployment statistics issuing from the Kingston office of the New York State Unemployment Division have trailed far behind in their optimism.

The employment picture in Ulster County had not improved over the last year, and even if it did make gargantuan leaps toward full employment the area would still lag behind the rest of economically depressed New York State and far behind the nation as a whole.

The Freeman spoke with Dave Nyhan, New York State Department of Labor analyst for the Albany District of the state, including Ulster. "Those headlines from Washington do not apply here," he said.

First, here are some statistics from sources indicated. Then, an explanation of how they are compiled and related.

From Kingston: the number of people receiving unemployment checks has remained essentially unchanged since it shot up to 6,422 the week ending Jan. 2, 1976. For ensuing weeks figures are: Jan. 9, 6,624; Jan. 16, 6,417; Jan. 23, 6,367; Jan. 30, 6,243; and Feb. 7, 6,376.

"It's staying constant," assessed a division spokesman. Asked about the U.S. Labor Department's Feb. 6 announcement that the national jobless rate fell from 8.3 per cent in December to 7.8 per cent in January, he added, "They're talking about 450,000 jobs nationwide. Eventually, if the economy improves, it may show up in Ulster County." Even so, that optimistic federal story pointed out that these were almost all people rehired after being laid off . . . the hardcore unemployed remained so.

From Albany: the state unemployment rate as of the end of December, the most recent available, was 10.23 per cent, not considered desirable under any interpretation. This translated to more than 780,000 people "able and willing to work" without jobs statewide.

An analysis of Ulster County as of Dec. 1975 (it has not changed appreciably in either direction since then) found the state computed unemployment rate to be 11.2 per cent here. This compared to the national figure of 7.8 per cent (which went up and then down, hence the headlines) and the state's 10.2. The Poughkeepsie metropolitan area, incidentally, has remained the most highly employed section of the state. It had six per cent unemployed. New York City's unemployment rate was 11.2 per cent.

The state figures that Ulster County's labor force is about 65,200 people, out of a total county population near 145,000. Of that number, 57,900 were employed and 7,300 considered unemployed. This compared to Dec., 1974 when 5,600 were not employed; the rate was 8.7 per cent.

In what areas have we lost or gained jobs in Ulster? Using Dec., 1974 as a base figure, by Dec. 1975 the county had lost 1,000 factory jobs (from 13,000 to 12,000) some 800 in durable goods and 200 non-durable goods such as food and clothing.

In the non-manufacturing area, employment increased by 300 jobs to 32,700. The gains are in trade (up 500 from 9,600 to 10,100) and service occupations (up 500 from 7,400 to 7,900). There were 100 construction jobs gone (down to 1,400) and a "slight loss in local government," Nyhan said.

He said there is a general rule of thumb that may help the average newspaper reader determine the jobless rate: those receiving unemployment benefit checks consist of about 50 per cent of those ultimately determined to be considered unemployed.

Two points basic to understanding the implications of jobless statistics from Albany and from Washington, D.C. must be remembered when trying to decide on their local application — county figures are incorporated into state, but not federal, estimates; and federal figures are "seasonally adjusted," while state figures are not.

Explained Nyhan, federal estimates are the result of a random sample of households taking a valid sample, and projecting this information on to the economy. Sophisticated to include various categories such as perhaps blacks, females, college graduates, or high school students, it basically is run like the Neilson ratings for television.

New York State uses the "building block" method, starting with unemployment benefit figures from local offices, adding those who have exhausted benefits, adding unemployed not covered by insurance such as agricultural or local government, adding a large section of new labor force entries such as youth, and applying some federal estimate procedures. Thus, federal figures are publicized at least a month ahead of state figures.

"Seasonal adjustment" by federal agencies eliminates peaks and troughs in the labor market caused by seasonal jobs in an attempt to discover the real economic trend beneath.

State agencies lump seasonal jobs in with everything else, making for more dramatic statistics at times, and usually offer an explanation to that effect. Higher unemployment is expected in this area during the winter.

UPI DATELINE

Disease Guatemala Threat

SAN MARTIN JILOTEPEQUE, Guatemala — Authorities have ordered stray dogs shot on sight to avoid the spread of disease from animals dragging corpses out of cemetery crypts broken open by last week's earthquake.

Doctors and rescue officials said Wednesday they plan to move an emergency tent hospital away from the outskirts of town, because it is so close to the shattered cemetery.

The threat of disease only added to the misery of this small village 60 miles northwest of Guatemala City, one of only two in which not a single house was left standing after last Wednesday's earthquake that has killed an estimated 18,851 persons.

FTC Hits Automakers

SEATTLE — The Federal Trade Commission has accused the nation's three large automobile makers of earning $2 million to $4 million a year profit off repossessed cars at the expense of the consumers who lost them.

In Detroit, spokesmen for Ford, General Motors and Chrysler denied the charges filed in complaints by the FTC.

Thomas C. Armitage, acting regional director for the commission in Seattle, said at a news conference Wednesday that laws in all 50 states require any profits from the sale of repossessions go to persons who lost the cars.

Revenge Bombing Feared

LONDON — Irish Republican Army hunger striker Frank Stagg died in Wakefield prison today and British authorities ordered stepped up security to counter a threatened bombing — "holocaust" in revenge.

Stagg, 34, refused food for 61 days to press his demands for a transfer to a Northern Ireland jail to serve out a 10-year sentence for conspiracy to commit arson and criminal damage in England.

Reds Continue Conquests

LUANDA — Soviet-supplied troops in Angola claim they have captured the pro-Western military headquarters of Silva Porto, seizing control of large stretches of the vital Benguela railroad.

The capture, announced Wednesday in a broadcast from Marxist-held Luanda, followed seizure of the pro-Western capital of Huambo.

Premier Doubles Up

ROME — Italy's new government took the oath of office today with Premier Aldo Moro taking a second post as interim interior minister, a job rejected two hours earlier by Defense Minister Arnaldo Forlani.

Forlani said in a statement he had for "political and technical" reasons refused the interior ministry post, also declined by a former cabinet member implicated in a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. scandal.

Marbletown Beach Is Victim

By Jon Powers

STONE RIDGE

In 1971, concerned Stone Ridge residents warned that strip-mining operations along the Esopus Creek posed a serious threat to the town's idyllic creek-side recreation park.

It now appears that they may have been right.

Last week, the raging waters of the Esopus Creek broke through a 10-foot natural dike and flooded a large gravel pit opposite the park. The stream has since cut a new channel through the mining pit, leaving the original creek bed high and dry. As a result, the water level at the park's beach a few feet upstream has dropped an estimated five feet.

"It's ruined," said William Suepfle, the town's former recreation director, as he stood on the stream bank watching the churning waters swirl into the gravel pits. "It's ruined, and it didn't have to happen."

Suepfle was the man in the middle of a heated dispute almost five years ago, when Hurley Sand and Gravel Co. extended its strip mining operations perilously close to the stream bank. When one of the company's bulldozers actually uprooted several trees along the stream's edge, Suepfle, and others, exploded.

What followed was several weeks of charges and denials, threatened lawsuits, stormy meetings and, finally, compromise. Suepfle, at one point, urged the town to protect its park and beach by purchasing a strip of land along the far side of the stream. The town declined. Eventually, Hurley Sand and Gravel agreed to maintain a 10-foot wide "buffer zone" between its mining operations and the stream. Suepfle argued that it wasn't enough.

A 150-foot strip of that buffer zone (approximately half) has now been washed away. Without it, the stream can't possibly return to its original course.

"It would cost a fortune to restore that dike," said Suepfle. "I don't think Hurley Sand and Gravel has enough money to do it. I don't think the town has enough to do it."

Town of Marbletown Supervisor Kenneth Smith says he doesn't know what can be done. He said Monday he was informed of the problem over the weekend, but hadn't had a chance to personally survey the damage.

What caused the break in the dike? Smith placed part of the blame on the New York City Board of Water Resources, which maintains the Ashokan Reservoir and controls the flow of water from the reservoir to the Lower Esopus. He suggested that the city could have managed its releases more carefully, thereby lessening the impact of the heavy rains that fell in late January.

Could the damage have been prevented completely? "I don't see how," said Smith, "it was an act of God."

Smith said he doesn't blame Hurley Sand and Gravel for the incident. "To the best of my knowledge," he said, "they adhered to the agreement to maintain the buffer zone."

Suepfle, however, disputes that. He claims the 10-foot buffer was not adequate; that it was inevitable that the dike would give way.

The supervisor added that he has been in contact with George Danskin of the Department of Environmental Conservation in New Paltz, who promised to investigate and report back to the town. Danskin said Wednesday that he has been out of town and hasn't had a chance to inspect the site; others at the DEC office in New Paltz said they don't know anything about the flood damage.

For Suepfle, the real tragedy is the effect the flood waters have had on the town's beach. With the creek now flowing into a small lake that covers the gravel pits, the water level at the beach has fallen drastically. With an even lighter flow in the summer, says Suepfle, the beach and swimming area won't be fit for use.

Victory for Hearst Prosecutor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —

The prosecution in Patricia Hearst's trial, bolstered by a judge's ruling that she "voluntarily" confessed to a bank robbery, has just about wrapped up its case against the newspaper heiress.

Prosecutor James Browning said he had only four or five more witnesses and expected to rest his case by Friday at the latest.

He won a major victory when U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter decided Wednesday the prosecution could present evidence about events after the April 15, 1974, bank hold-up — including a Los Angeles shooting and kidnaping and taped and written confessions made by the defendant.

"The motion to suppress is denied," said Carter. "The court finds that by a preponderance of evidence the government has established that statements of the defendant after the bank robbery were made voluntarily."

Miss Hearst had testified she was forced to make the statements after being raped, beaten and threatened with death "hundreds of times" by her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers. She grimaced when the judge announced his decision.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey indicated the ruling probably will force him to put Miss Hearst back on the stand in front of the jury to tell about her 19 months in captivity. She testified Monday she acted out of fear of both her captors and the FBI.

The jury of seven women and five men, who had spent only a half hour in court all week, returned after Carter's ruling and heard two men repeat their stories about the shootout and kidnaping in Los Angeles May 16, 1974.

When they finished, Browning had put all his major witnesses on the stand. He spent two days last week using a surveillance film and 19 witnesses to show Miss Hearst was in the Hibernia Bank with a carbine in her hand during the robbery.

The two witnesses to the Los Angeles incidents — Thomas Matthews and Anthony Shepard — returned to the stand Wednesday to describe Miss Hearst's blasting of a sporting goods store with automatic weapons fire and her admissions about the bank robbery to another kidnap victim.

Matthews was abducted by SLA members William and Emily Harris.

Lee Cobb, Actor, Dead at 64

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gravel voiced actor Lee J. Cobb, who created the role of Willy Loman in "Death of a Salesman" on Broadway and played the brawling union leader in the movie "On the Waterfront," died of a heart attack Wednesday at age 64.

Paramedics called to his San Fernando Valley home said he was dead when they arrived.

Cobb gained stature on Broadway, then moved into movies and was regarded as a top actor in both. But he became known to millions because of his role as Judge Garth in the television series, "The Virginian."

He brought power and authority to all roles. He was outstanding as the tough union boss against Marlon Brando's longshoreman in "On the Waterfront," which won Brando an Academy Award.

In 1949 he became the first actor to play Willy Loman in Arthur Miller's classic "Death of a Salesman." His portrayal won him the New York Critics Award and the Donaldson Award.

He got his first Broadway break in 1935, a role in "Crime and Punishment," because he looked older than 24, an advantage he carried through his 20s and 30s, often landing roles calling for older men.

HHH Ads Give Push

By UPI

Although Hubert Humphrey insists he isn't a candidate for president, Democrats in New Hampshire are being urged on radio spots to write in his name in the nation's first primary this month.

Ronald Reagan campaigned in New Hampshire with Gov. Meldrin Thomson who said the Republican contender "has God on his side." President Ford, who plans another trip to New Hampshire before the Feb. 24 primary, flies Friday to Florida for his first swing across a Southern primary state.

The Humphrey ads, sponsored by a committee of New Hampshire residents, air a tape in which the Minnesota senator says he would "go out and win" if the party turns to him. Humphrey has disavowed the write-in effort.

Ford will spend two days stumping Florida. He was arranging his White House schedule so he could campaign on weekends and was being urged to set aside the following weekend for a New Hampshire trip.

Dayan Boasts A-Bombs

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan says Israel has the capacity to deliver atomic bombs on enemy targets.

"We must keep the atomic option without depending on the United States," he told a public meeting Wednesday night.

Dayan said Israel needs Pershing missiles from the United States, but only to counter Soviet-supplied Scud and Frog missiles used by the armies of neighboring Arab states.

"We do not need the Pershing to install an atomic warhead and whoever says so is misleading," Dayan said.

"An atom bomb can be dropped from an aircraft. We need the Pershing only as an answer to the Frog and Scud in the hands of Syria and Egypt."

"If they won't give us the Pershing, no matter — we can produce it ourselves," Dayan said.

Urges Water Release Plan

WASHINGTON Rep. Matthew McHugh, D-27th Dist., has urged New York City officials to show greater sensitivity toward the ecological problems afflicting the streams and reservoirs of the Catskill region.

In a letter to Mayor Abraham Beame, McHugh asked the city to accept a state-recommended program that would improve water releases from the six major city-owned reservoirs in the Catskill region.

For the past two years, environmentalists, sportsmen and fishermen have campaigned for a better-managed water release system. It has been charged that insufficient releases from the city reservoirs have killed thousands of fish and disrupted the ecological balance of downstream areas; on other occasions, excessive releases have caused downstream flooding.

For the past year, the Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) has attempted to negotiate a new water release plan with the city. McHugh called on Mayor Beame to accept the three-year draft agreement proposed by the DEC, which he said would help resolve the problems until more extensive studies could be undertaken.

The agreement, said McHugh, "would go far toward resolving this long-standing problem. It would do so without compromising the city's need for an adequate water supply."

"We ask that the city not be insensitive to our legitimate concerns, as we believe it has been in the past on this question," added McHugh. "We ask this not only for ourselves, but for the thousands of downstreamers whom we welcome into our region each year and who enjoy our streams and other natural resources."

The existing release levels, said McHugh, were laid down by a 1954 U.S. Supreme Court decree. The city, thus far, has refused to renegotiate those levels. Legislation, however, is pending in the New York State Legislature which would give the DEC ultimate control over the flow of water from the city reservoirs. Sponsors of the bill, who have the support of Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson (R-Binghamton), have promised to press for passage of the legislation if the city does not agree to a compromise.

In his letter to Beame, McHugh reminded the mayor that "the interdependence of the people in our state was dramatically demonstrated during your city's financial crisis." The congressman noted that he supported federal funds for New York City, as did a majority of the people in the Catskill region.

McHugh's 27th Congressional District includes the city-owned Cannonsville, Pepacton and Neversink Reservoirs, as well as the Ashokan Reservoir in the Town of Olive and the Rondout Reservoir in the Town of Wawarsing.

Onteora Busing Requests

BOICEVILLE

Parents residing in the Onteora Central School District who desire special transportation for a child to attend a non-public school inside or outside the district during the 1976-77 school year must file a written request for such service on or before April 1, 1976.

The request must contain the pupil's name, address, grade, and school presently attended, and the name and address of the school to be attended in 1976-77. It is required so that the board of education may budget the required funds to cover costs of the service.

Requests should be addressed to Carlton E. Buley, transportation supervisor, Onteora Central Schools, Boiceville 12412.

Transportation provided by the district for students attending non-public schools outside the district is authorized only for those students residing within 15 miles of the school they plan to attend. No transportation outside the district may be provided beyond the 15-mile limit.

Conversations with Koenig

200th, Charter, Hall, Library

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig defended his Bicentennial Commission, confirmed that the state has extended funding for the old city hall for another year and said he expects to name a charter revision committee within the next few weeks, during his weekly interview with the Freeman.

BICENTENNIAL — The 12-person commission appointed by Koenig and headed by Edward Levine has come under sharp criticism lately because of what some critics see as a lack of programs. "I think they're doing a good job," Koenig said. "It's a question of funding."

There has also been some criticism over the fact that the commission, which could include up to 18 members, has only 12. Koenig doesn't see that as a deficiency, necessarily. "The commission is allowed from seven to 20 members," he said, saying he didn't feel there were any vacancies. He did not say whether he would be appointing any more people.

CHARTER REVISION — The mayor says he'll appoint a new charter revision commission "in two or three weeks." The last one he appointed brought in a document that was decisively defeated last November. There was heavy lobbying against it by city officials. Koenig says his new commission will not include any members from the old commission.

CITY HALL — Koenig said he has received confirmation from Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st, that state funding for the old city hall at 408 Broadway has been extended for a year. Up to $500,000 in matching funds will be available, according to the mayor, until March 31, 1977.

BROADWAY EAST — Koenig said he's met with potential developers from Connecticut who are "definitely interested in the five-acre shopping plaza complex proposed for Broadway East. Koenig did not give any specifics. The city has signed an agreement with Thomas Sentar of Port Ewen as prime developer for what would be known as "City Hall Plaza." Koenig says Sentar would not block development by some other party.

KINGSTON LIBRARY — The mayor addressed the Kiwanis Club recently where in response to a question he indicated he was still considering the possibility of building a library/firehouse complex in the Uptown Urban Renewal

Project. "We're still looking at it," he said. "It's a question of whether the library qualifies for federal funding."

THE RAICHLE CASE — The mayor, who appoints upwards of 100 persons a year to various city commissions and agencies for terms of office that range from "his pleasure" to specific periods of time, says he doesn't know whether an appointee's term expires at a given date or when he is replaced.

The issue arose at the Feb. 3 meeting of the Common Council in regard to Alderman Clarence Raichle (R-First Ward) who was a Koenig-appointed manager of the Kingston Lab board of managers. Raichle's term ran out on Dec.

31, 1975. Koenig has not appointed anyone to fill that office.

Koenig said he doesn't know whether Raichle is still (legally, in the absence of a new appointee) a member of the lab's board of managers. He said he'd have to consult Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein for a ruling.

KTF Supports ESKA in Pact Dispute

KINGSTON The Kingston Teachers Federation (KTF) has called on the Board of Education of the Kingston Consolidated School District to resolve the long-standing contract dispute with Educational Secretaries of the Kingston Area (ESKA).

In a statement released this week, KTF said it was "quite unbelievable" that a contract agreement between the district and ESKA has not been reached, even though the parties have been negotiating for almost a year. KTF suggested that ESKA's demand for a "fair settlement" has pushed the school board to a posture of "angry inaction."

Terming ESKA employees "an integral part of a smooth-running, successful school system," KTF said there was no reason why the secretaries should not "demand an adequate settlement." The KTF said "unfair settlements (have been)" bludgeoned upon ESKA "for the past several years."

"Fair, productive negotiations must be above personality conflicts and name-calling," said ESKA. "The continued excellence of the school district and the well-being of those employed to create such an atmosphere are the primary concerns. The KTF calls for an immediate effort of all concerned to settle this extended disagreement. The ESKA members are long overdue fair and equitable treatment. Make their worth equal to their outstanding contribution to our fine school system."

ESKA has 190 members. Their contracts expired last June 30 and negotiations have taken place since last April. Both sides are presently at impasse.

Klein Task Force on County Rule

ROSENDALE The merit of a charter system of government for Ulster County is to be studied by a Citizens Task Force being organized by Minority Leader of the Ulster County Legislature Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6).

According to Klein, who initiated the move independently of the legislature, the task force will review the proposed Ulster County Charter of 1972, seeking to make those revisions necessary to streamline the system of government provided for by that proposed charter, to the actual present and immediate future needs of our county.

"After completing its study, the task force will supply the Democratic members of the Ulster County Legislature with its proposals. Our future action in the area of charter reform will undoubtedly be governed, in large measure, by the results of this study," Klein said.

The task force will have as its chairman, former legislator Brian R. White of Marlboro. The members of the task force will include former minority leader of the Ulster County Legislature, Roger W. Mabie of Esopus, former legislator Richard F. Thornton of Saugerties, assistant corporation counsel of the City of Kingston, Andrew J. Gilday, and deputy city clerk Rosemarie Hogan.

Klein said that as the county grows, and its problems become more complex, "this study of governmental reform is an absolute necessity."

New Trade Zone Concerns Senator

ALBANY The New York State Senate has approved creation of another foreign trade zone in the state; this one in Monroe County. The move, the second such vote by the Senate in two weeks, has Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-C, 40th Dist., quite concerned since he sponsored legislation last year which provided for creation of a foreign trade zone in Orange County.

The senator said, "It appears to me that Orange County does not see the full value of creating a foreign trade zone." He noted approval of such zones in Suffolk, Erie and Niagara Counties, Buffalo and Scranton.

The Cornwall lawmaker said, "The question that keeps arising is will these other districts jeopardize our chances in Orange County? I say it will since only one zone will be created in the region." Schermerhorn said, "Last July, Orange County was the only horse in the race. Since then, other counties have joined in to take advantage of Orange County's slow pace."

"If more than one zone is established," the senator said, "It will no doubt reduce the functions of the others." Schermerhorn continued that, "Eastern Orange County is the best location in the northeast with its highway, rail, air and potential waterway transportation."

Ski Trip

TOWN OF ULSTER The Town of Ulster has arranged a ski trip to Highmount Ski Center in Highmount, for Saturday, Feb. 28.

The trip is for students of elementary and high school age, and two adult chaperones are required.

Permission slips can be picked up at the town clerk's office at 10 a.m. on Thursday and Friday. Only one bus will be sent, with a limit of 40, and slips will be distributed on a first come, first-served basis. The bus leaves at 8 a.m. and is tentatively set to return by 6 p.m. Officials said that if enough interest is shown the town will attempt to schedule another trip in March and the program will be added to the recreation commission's plans for 1976-77.

Further information can be had by calling the town clerk.

Lincoln's Birthday

Today we observe the 167th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. As President of the United States during what historians refer to as the darkest hour in our history, Lincoln proved himself to be a man of the people.

During this great crisis, Lincoln stood above the rest in his zeal to govern the people, to lead them back on the road to sanity. This zeal, hidden behind a mask of melancholy, was to cost the great man his life.

His faith in the people of this country never faltered. In this Bicentennial year it would do us all well to remember this.

Freeman Readers Write

A Student Answers

Dear Editor:

This is a reply to the letter to the editor written by Kingston High student, Claudia Terwilliger, as it appeared in the Daily Freeman on Friday, Feb. 6th.

I am a KHS student who, a year ago, took the initiative to become involved in our student government, as well as the Board of Education, and our own school problems.

The Board of Education after countless hours of study and review with the administration of the high school, decided to institute staggered sessions as a temporary solution to the over crowding problem at the high school. Yes, Claudia, the high school is over crowded. The administrators are professionals in the field of education, and through a thorough and conclusive research, decided upon the fact that Kingston High School is over crowded. Our school was built to comfortably house 1600 students; it is now "stuffed" with approximately 2,400 this year. Research shows that elementary school enrollments are up in Kindergarten this year, and should continue to increase. Thus insuring that the high school capacity will still be at its over flow for at least twelve more years.

You, Claudia, as a student, have every legal right to voice your opinion. At the monthly Board of Education meetings, there is a time for citizens to ask questions or present their opinions and ideas to the Board. The Board of Education has held open meetings for the public, at which time, anyone may voice his or her opinions on, or for solutions to the over crowding high school condition, or any other school district matter. In addition, a few weeks ago, the Lake Katrine and Edson Parent Teacher Organizations held an open meeting about the over crowding problem; and discussion was held about more permanent solutions. The Student Association of the high school publicly urged each student and faculty member of the school to become involved and attend these meetings to learn the facts about staggered sessions, and how they will affect our school. Claudia, do you, as well as hundreds of other students actually know what staggered sessions are, or how they work? Maybe you should have attended a few of these information filled meetings.

Surely you can't expect someone to ask an individual student his or her opinion on the problem; you simply have to make them known just as you did by writing your letter.

The Board of Education knows exactly what will be involved with the staggered sessions. They realize there will be difficulties in maintaining the numerous activities and sports organizations, among others, that Kingston High has.

Apparently, not only many adults are unaware of the facts concerning the high school problem but our fellow students are just as blind. There is not much relevance to your statement that the largest class has only 26 students in it. The fact that there aren't enough rooms to offer many of the programs we could have, and that those excellent programs that we now offer must be limited to a certain quota of students because the demand is greater than the room in Kingston High, is enough for many students. The fact that many rooms at K.H.S. are too small, and have poor and inadequate facilities for teaching, such as rooms 5, 19, 403, 404, and the "portable" Art building, which is a fire hazard in itself, is enough for most of us. The fact that our football team has to share its practice field with 2 other teams, and besides that, the Board must spend close to $6,000 a year for the usage of Dietz Stadium is enough for us. Did you know that the school system pays approximately $3,000 a year for the swim team to use the YMCA pool for 4½ months of a year? The gym classes also have to play football, softball, and their other activities on a blacktop pavement, which is also the parking lot for the school buses. These among others, are sufficient reasons designating the need for a new high school.

Last year each student was given a maximum of four minutes to move from class to class. Because of over crowded conditions, that 4 minutes had to be expanded to 5 minutes between each class, thus causing activity period to become 15 to 20 minutes shorter. But perhaps you're one of the lucky students who doesn't have to go from the Main building to the Vocational building for his or her next class, only to have to move all the way over to the Field House for gym class in 6 degree weather. Or maybe you're one of the more fortunate students who hasn't fallen on the ice and snow, or have been caught in a thunder storm, trying to get to class. Maybe you're one of the lucky ones who doesn't have to share her small, old locker with another person. Try fitting two winter coats in one locker, it isn't easy! "No, we don't need a new high school!" Well, obviously, you don't seem to realize why there was a cafeteria annex made in the high school last year. Because of over crowding, in the cafeteria and school, open lunches and study halls were decided upon by the Board. They weren't instituted just so that students could have more time to roam around Broadway, or sit on the wall. Perhaps on a sunny, hot day, the cafeteria isn't that crowded, but you try a cold snowy or rainy day, and you'll find the cafeteria at capacity.

Up and Down staircases were used at the high school, but were abolished by a Student Council Resolution last year. With the amount of footage a student may have to travel in five minutes, it's simply too much to ask one to walk a longer distance to go up or down a particular staircase. Why do we need a new high school? Overcrowded conditions, inadequate or poor facilities; Or the need for continuance of quality of education; Take Your Pick.

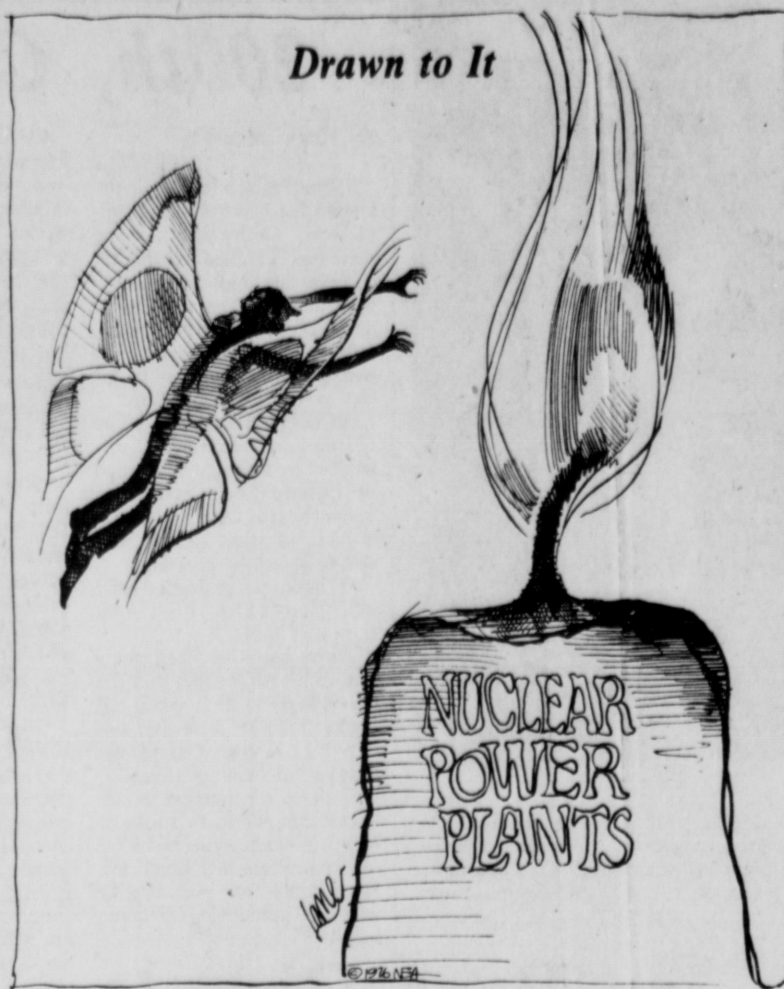

You may certainly have your voice in the matter, but it's a little too late. Staggered sessions were passed at the Feb. 5th meeting of the Board of Education. It's a shame you had to learn the facts too late. You can still help; by coming to Student Association meetings, Board and Informational meetings. Come, learn the facts, listen, but most of all, become involved. Don't be as blind as some of the people we've encountered. Don't overlook the fact that by 1978, the Board must have its Final solution to the over crowding problem. The State Dept. of Education has said before, and they said it again after studying the high school problem themselves, that the construction of a new high school is the best final solution. It is not going to get any better. The cost of a new high is not going to get any less expensive, either. Whether it's now or twenty years from now, a new high school will have to be built. Unfortunately, twenty years is too long to wait. We, the students of today, are the future teachers, doctors, lawyers, housewives, and taxpayers of tomorrow who will be the ones coming home to share the minimal tax raise a new high school would bring. We realize that one is desperately needed. Claudia, this letter is not trying to be a put down to you. I, personally, admire you for having the courage and stamina to write your views to the paper. It's a shame you didn't know the facts first; but you have the initiative to learn so, please, start coming to meetings.

We would like to tell Dorothy Galitsky as a reply to her letter to the editor that we hope she attended the Feb. 5th Board of Education meeting, as we did. George Washburne, associate Superintendent of Schools, presented a program on the quality of our Kingston High education. It's obvious, by far, that the credit average K.H.S. student is far more intelligent and educated than you give us credit to be. Our school district must work hard to keep the quality of our education at high standards, even though we struggle with poor facilities. At least we know that we are dealing with facts, not emotions. Once again, we can't stress it enough, Come to the meetings, listen, learn, but most of all: KNOW THE FACTS, and become involved!

Thank you for listening, I am, JOLIE DUNHAM, on behalf of the Concerned Students Organization

(P.S. I would also like to comment on Dorothy Galitsky's letter to the editor of Monday, Feb. 9th. Ms. Galitsky, you say our low birth rate will decrease the need of our schools; well, I'm glad you are a fortune teller with a crystal ball who can give us all this reliable information. Yes, the voters came in hundreds to vote for the "quartet" in last May's election. These people couldn't see a need for a new high school. I sincerely doubt these people knew the facts before they voted. If you give someone a choice between spending money, and not spending it, unless, of course, it's a luxury for their own use, they won't spend it. If you had come to informational meetings, you would know why the State Ed. Dept. cannot tell a student that he or she has to cross Broadway to go to class. If hit by a car; that student's parents could sue the "pants" off the State, so to speak. Oh, you want to know who are the "pressure groups" for a new high school? Educated, open-minded, and fact-filled INDIVIDUALS who meet together to logically discuss the over crowding problem is your answer! Why don't you start opening your mind and listen? I am dealing with FACTS, not emotions. One more question: When was the last time you were in the high school when classes were in session?

Thank you again!

Punishing Criminals

From Hong Kong there is a report on the final hours on earth of two young men, convicted of brutal murders. They were given the traditional last meal of their choice. Then they were driven to the prison compound and there a firing squad did its duty. A fairly routine experience, with this exception. The whole of it was televised, and shown during prime time.

The authorities in Hong Kong have announced their determination to do something to check the growing crime rate. Well, they have certainly come up with something original. It would of course be more palatable if someone might arrange it so that the program went out on closed circuit TV into the living quarters only of potential murderers. But it is this kind of fine tuning that always eludes you. The kind that raises disagreement between men of such original thought as James Wilson of Harvard, and Ernest van den Haag of the New School for Social Research. Mr. Wilson's book, published last year, is called "Thinking About Crime." Mr. van den Haag's, published a few weeks ago, is called "Punishing Criminals: Concerning a Very Old and Painful Question." It is a revelation, precisely because Mr. van den Haag is prepared first to digest current findings about penology, then, because he is sufficiently the craftsman, to give these findings plainly, and finally because he is superbly skilled at asking just the right questions, anticipating the most dogged superstitions.

He and Professor Wilson agree on most of the fundamental points, notably that we have made no advance whatever in the art of rehabilitation, that although the incidence of crime may be greater among the poor this generality sheds no light whatever on the casual relation between poverty and crime. Both believe that sentences should be determinate; with however an intriguing difference. Professor van den Haag believes a prison sentence should be based on what he calls a "categorical basis."

Here is what he is talking about. Forty-five per cent of all murders are done by people less than 25 years old, and three-quarters of all crime by people who are less than 30.

Now, since we do not know anything about rehabilitation, and since we have irrefutable evidence that recidivism is responsible for a huge percentage of crime, we are faced with the problem: how should we deal with a repeat offender found guilty of a second violent crime?

Let us suppose that at age 18 he robbed at gun point, and was given five years, paroled after three. Six months later, he robs again at gun point, and we are fortunate enough to catch him. He is convicted. Normally, he would be given the five years, and in some states the two years unserved from the previous sentence for violating his parole would be reinstated. Here, he would be eligible for fresh parole at about age 25.

Under the categorical rule of Mr. van den Haag, the procedure would be changed. Until age 25 he would be kept in an orthodox prison, in which he would be simultaneously punished and sequestered. Of course after that he could go somewhere else. Throw in your own specifications here, if you will—to an island somewhere, perhaps; to a reservation, to which he would be free to take his family, and given a kind of insular liberty.

The point is, he would not be permitted to reenter normal society until age 35—because it is after that age that the impulse to criminality drops sharply. Mr. van den Haag calculates, roughly, that if his plan were invoked, injustice would fall on 40 per cent of those sequestered. That is, 60 per cent of those sequestered would indeed commit violent crimes again. But like the Hong Kong television viewers, we cannot know which 60 per cent they are.

Professor Wilson declines to go along with a plan that would accept guaranteed injustice. Van den Haag, in his fascinating book, tells us we must revise the idea of justice; we must focus our concern of those statistically predictable victims who would now be spared, at the cost of the physical detention of two-time offenders, 40 per cent of whom would not have broken the law again. Which 40 per cent?

Once in a very long while a book takes the reader through intricate philosophical and sociological thickets with assurance and cogency. Mr. van den Haag has done it, and his book, and Professor Wilson's should be closely read by everyone in America who is the likely victim of a crime; which means about 70 per cent of the population.

'Sara Lee for Senate'

(Rep. Bella Abzug said last week that the recent Supreme Court ruling on campaign expenditures would make it harder than ever for women to run for public office.

"The reason, she said, is that most women candidates simply do not have ties to multimillionaires who can put unlimited amounts of money into political advertising under the court's decision."—New York Times item.

What Ms. Abzug says is probably true. But there is a certain type of woman who does have access to multimillionaires, and who might decide to run for public office.

The scene is an apartment on Park Avenue. Huddleston Threabody III has just arrived.

"Sara Lee. Where's my little cheesecake hiding?" he yells.

"Here I am, Tiger," says Sara Lee, running out in her black negligee and throwing her arms around him. "Did my Tiger have a tough day at the office?"

"Tiger had a marvelous day. The stock market went up 20 points. The reason I'm late is that I stopped by Tiffany's and bought my little Sara Lee a present." he hands her a box.

She opens it and takes out a diamond bracelet.

"It's very nice," she says. "Nice? It cost me a bundle. Don't you like it?"

Sara Lee takes Huddleston over to the couch and cuddles up to him. "I don't want jewelry any more."

"A fur coat then! Go to Berdoff's tomorrow and pick up a fur coat. Anything my little cheesecake wants."

"I don't want a fur coat. I have five already," she says, chewing on his ear.

"A trip? Would you like to go to Paris? I'll say I have to go to Europe for the firm."

"No, I don't want to go on a trip."

"Well, what do you want?" Sara Lee, as she unbuttons Huddleston's shirt, says, "I want to run for the Senate from New York."

"You want to do what?"

"I want to run for the Senate. It would be a lot of fun, and it's something that

Yearly Tax Ordeal

WASHINGTON—For most of us, the annual ordeal of wrestling with our income tax returns is upon us. It is all the more odious because it involves participation in a continuing scandal.

To call it an ordeal requires little substantiation; it is enough merely to cite common knowledge. Millions give up deductions they are entitled to so they can use the short form and escape the annual headache. Two out of five taxpayers turn to so-called experts.

But millions more will struggle through the days of toil and nights of anguish. In rendering unto Caesar, they must give an accounting of the minutest details of their lives. During this season, then, Americans experience the sense of foreboding that marks not the free citizens but the subjects of an omnipotent and capricious state.

But the tax law is also a scandal which has turned taxpayers from the simple accepted duty it once was to the resisted contest at skulduggery it is today.

Because of its complexity, it is not just Joe Doaks who cannot understand his tax return. Once we get beyond the elemental, even the Internal Revenue official is not likely to understand it.

A few years ago, an Atlanta taxpayer, to prove a point, called at five different IRS offices around the country, presented the same set of facts and asked for a computation of his tax. He got five different answers, some varying from others by hundreds of dollars.

Such absurdities occur not because Internal Revenue personnel are incompetent, but because the tax code is incomprehensible. What mere human could assimilate 6,000 pages of conflicting federal tax laws and regulations? And behind the complexity is the greater scandal that causes it. The tax law is a mess not because the law makers wanted it to be complicated, but because they wanted it to be a vehicle for doing hidden favors. A Trojan horse for financing programs that couldn't gain acceptance as open subsidies, a Christmas tree on which the visionary's public concern was hung alongside the lobbyist's private swindle.

The average taxpayer got illusory deductions to be paid for in higher basic rates, while the rich and the calculating got away with token taxes or none at all by putting their money into real estate ventures, or oil or tax-exempt bonds, or exotic charities, or 101 other shelters.

We have had access to secret tax filings by members of our wealthiest families, the Mellons, the Rockefellers, the Hunts and others. Their returns have one thing in common. Each of the families has had millionaire members, who from time to time, have paid no income tax at all. And almost all of them regularly pay only a fraction of the tax their income would require were it not for loopholes.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, for example, paid no federal income tax in 1970. His brother, John D. Rockefeller III, pays a 10 per cent federal tax as a matter of personal principle. Apparently, he can manipulate his tax exemptions to produce whatever tax return he feels is appropriate. Paul Mellon, worth a cool one billion dollars, is able to get away with a negligible income tax, as do other members of his fabulously rich family. And Texas oil millionaire Bunker Hunt has managed to live in luxury without paying any taxes at all in several years.

We do not single them out of criticism. They have made use of the law, and that is their right. It is the process that is at fault, and it makes a chump out of the person who does not distort his affairs so as to benefit from every possible loophole.

Thus, more and more people neither understand nor respect the tax system. The IRS reports that 49 per cent of all returns now contain errors and 19 per cent are attempts at outright fraud. Voluntary contributions have seriously eroded, meanwhile, to the point of an incipient taxpayers' revolt.

The only way to avoid the total collapse of the tax system, we warned last year, was to wipe the slate clean of all personal tax preferences, deductions, credits and exclusions from income while cutting basic tax rates for everyone.

If these deductions, which each year exclude from taxation more than $125 billion of income were all eliminated, basic tax rates could be drastically cut without any loss of revenue. The home owners, who would lose their deductions for interest on their mortgages, would recoup from lower tax rates.

No less than Treasury Secretary William Simon, a fiscal conservative, now agrees with this radical solution. Under his plan, the tax would fall to around ten per cent at the low end and 35 per cent at the high end. The poorest families would continue to pay no income tax the better-off families under four members, earning $15,000, would pay $1,200. The wealthy would be taxed at 35 per cent on their income over $50,000.

Such a tax could be figured in two minutes even under the new math. Everyone would pay a fair share.

What about all the worthy endeavors that are now helped along by tax exemptions? We say let them apply for outright subsidies. That way, the handouts would be out in the open where we could get a look at them and where they could be reviewed each year.

All the special interest lobbies will be lining up against this proposal. Their game will be to scare the ignorant by warning them of the deductions they will lose, without mentioning what they will gain in lower tax rates, time saved and peace of mind—and what the country will gain from halting our present decline into a nation of connivers and cheats.

Footnote: We tried unsuccessfully to get comments from the Rockefellers, Mellons and Hunts. Associates contended in their behalf that they donated fabulous amounts to charities and took the legal tax exemptions this entitled them to. These donations could be deducted from their taxes. Of course the average taxpayer cannot decide which causes he wishes to support at the government's expense.

Gallup Poll

Ford, Ron in Dead Heat

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. President Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan are in a dead heat in the latest showdown test among Republican voters. Ford is the choice of 44 per cent for the nomination to 43 per cent for Reagan with 13 per cent undecided.

The latest results, based on late January interviewing, represent a decline for Ford who in the previous (early January) survey won the support of 53 per cent to 42 per cent for Reagan. Ford's losses, as the findings indicate, have not translated into direct gains for Reagan but have instead increased the undecided percentage.

While Ford has suffered some loss in support among Republicans since the previous survey, the race has remained little changed among voters who classify themselves as independents. The contest continues to be tight, with Ford currently winning the support of 45 per cent of independents to 41 per cent for Reagan with 14 per cent undecided.

Reagan's support among both Republicans and independents increased steadily between June and December. Since December, however, it has leveled off.

This question is asked of Republicans and independents to determine the relative strength of the two men:

"Suppose the choice for President in the Republican convention in 1976 narrows down to Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan. Which one would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"

Here are the latest results and the trend among Republican voters:

The latest findings are based on in-person interviews with 360 respondents who classify themselves Republicans and 494 who consider themselves independents out of a total national sample of 1,538 adults, 18 and older. Interviewing was conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Jan. 23-26.

CAB's Reforms Not Enough

WASHINGTON — If the Wright Brothers had had as much trouble as the Civil Aeronautics Board getting off the ground, Orville and Wilbur still would be standing around at Kitty Hawk arguing why the damn thing won't fly.

The CAB is the government bureaucracy that decides which airlines will fly where and how much you'll pay for a ticket. Fortunately, the CAB has nothing to do with air safety. That's another government bureaucracy, of course.

The CAB has been regulating airlines since 1938 and the damn thing still won't fly. The higher air fares soar, the deeper the airlines plunge into debt. Last year the airlines lost close to $100 million.

If the nation's 12 scheduled airlines can't make the thing fly, common sense says that the CAB should let somebody else try. But the CAB hasn't let a newcomer into the scheduled airline business since 1938.

Only last year, a newcomer called World Airways applied to the CAB for permission to fly scheduled airline service coast-to-coast at a bargain one-way fare of $89.

But the airlines already offering frilly coast-to-coast flights at much higher fares fought World's application. A few days ago, the CAB rejected World's application and robbed the public of a transcontinental travel bargain.

Few government bureaucracies have failed so fully as the Civil Aeronautics Board and President Ford four months ago sent Congress a bill to reform the CAB. Ford wants to begin to get the government out of the airline business. Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), supports Ford's bill and Kennedy soon will unveil his own proposal to deregulate airline rates and routes.

But Ford and Kennedy together are no match for the combined political power of the CAB bureaucrats and the 12 airlines that the CAB has protected and patronized since 1938.

Ford's proposal has led not to reform but to bitter bureaucratic battles inside the CAB. When he became President, Ford's first move was to demote Robert Timm from CAB chairman to mere CAB member. Timm had been appointed by Richard Nixon. The scheduled airlines had made massive, illegal political contributions to Nixon. Timm was a political hack who gave the airlines everything they wanted. Timm's CAB raised air fares, abolished youth fares and grounded cut-rate charter flights.

Ford named as chairman a respected, experienced lawyer named John Robson. Timm, the other CAB members and the scheduled airlines have fought Robson every day since. Some CAB members won't talk to Robson, except to fight him. CAB meetings are "real shoot-outs," insiders say.

When Robson two weeks ago addressed Washington's International Aviation Club, the other CAB members snubbed him by refusing to attend. Two CAB members have demanded an audit of a reform advisory committee appointed by Robson, although the committee spent at most $30,000 of the $85,000 that was budgeted.

The bureaucratic backbiting became so bad that Ford demanded Timm's resignation as a CAB member. Although Ford's legal authority to remove Timm is doubtful, Timm resigned. Apparently Timm capitulated only because a grand jury is investigating his failure, when chairman, to act against airlines that made illegal political contributions to Nixon.

Timm's policies were so bad for the public and so good for scheduled airlines that Robson couldn't fail to win some reforms. Youth fares are back. Low-cost charter flying is booming.

But Robson's reforms fall far short of Ford's and Kennedy's proposals. Ford would let airlines lower fares 40 per cent without asking CAB permission. Kennedy would let World Airways offer the public a bargain fare bonanza without asking CAB permission.

The CAB, however, refuses to support Ford's and Kennedy's proposals. Scheduled airlines have blasted the proposals. Congress hasn't even held any hearings.

A government agency that hasn't gotten off the ground since 1938 is another good reason for public distrust of big government.

Better PR Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's happened again, a lawmaker giving the impression that Congress owns the Capitol and anyone else entering the building is a "guest." It's not new, but it is particularly disturbing in this Bicentennial year.

This time it is Rep. B.F. "Bernie" Sisk, D-Calif. In the past, police officers working under direction of congressional committees have treated tourists like intruders rather than the rightful, tax-paying owners they are.

"Basically, you are guests of the House of Representatives and I assume that is what you consider you are," Sisk told members of the House Press Gallery which stands to lose some critically needed working space if a committee headed by Sisk adopts a proposal for televising House action.

The mere writing of this commentary may very well result in retribution because of the power lawmakers have taken upon themselves in the name of the taxpayer in running public buildings.

The implication by Sisk is that somehow he and his colleagues who make the rules are better than the rest of us ordinary citizens, including those in California who sent Sisk to Washington with their votes and their tax money.

The "guest" attitude of some lawmakers is the same thinking that has led to the exclusion of the buildings' owners from riding the subway or most elevators in the Senate or House during roll calls, from using cafeterias or restaurants during certain hours and to be physically manhandled by police as the confused citizens wander through the Capitol building.

One tall, thin officer with a deep voice recently boomed at a restless crowd of high-school age youngsters waiting to get into the Senate visitors gallery that "If you don't like the way we operate things around here you can go back down to the first floor, out the door and don't come back into the building."

There's no question but that there has to be some procedure for controlling crowds, just as there has to be a set of rules of procedure for the 435 members of the House of Representatives in order to get anything done.

Likewise, there have to be rules for visitors to the Capitol, but these should be kept at a minimum and should not be born from an attitude of a few lawmakers that they are the owners and we, the taxpayers, are just outsiders.

The spirit of freedom to be emphasized this Bicentennial year could not be better served than for gentlemen such as Mr. Sisk to publicly renounce any mistaken thought that citizens are their "guests" in a building such as the Capitol and to pledge a new program of public relations for themselves and the police in handling the massive Washington crowds anticipated this year.

Jerry Irks Captains of Industry

WASHINGTON (KFS) — President Ford has been shaking up his White House setup and making a concerted effort to look more presidential than political, but he still hasn't gotten it all together.

The bungling and mediocre staff work continue. For instance, Ford recently missed a rare opportunity to make points with probably as imposing a collection of industry giants as will be gathered in one room during the entire coming year.

Approximately 1,500 top-level business executives met in Dallas Jan. 30 to celebrate the selection of 10 corporate moguls to the two-year-old "Hall of Fame for Business Leadership," sponsored by Fortune magazine. Practically every major corporation in the nation was represented, and it was strictly an elite crowd. The board chairmen and the presidents attended the affair themselves; they did not send middle-management officials as their substitutes, which is often the case at lesser business events. The master of ceremonies was Thomas Murphy, chairman of the board of General Motors.

The nation's economic health quite literally rests in the hands of the men who were in that room.

But what did Gerald Ford do? He sent to address this powerful gathering of businessmen William Seidman, a White House adviser. Until his old crony Ford became President, Seidman was an accounting executive in Grand Rapids.

Seidman, predictably, bombed. He just wasn't up to the caliber and sophistication of his audience. He mumbled his way through a rehash of Ford administration claims and promises.

Participants at the session were dismayed. "I'd heard the President had surrounded himself with second-rate people, and now I know he has," one executive observed.

Many thought the President's decision to send Seidman, who is no economist, was an insult. "If it had been Lyndon Johnson, he would have begged to come himself," snapped an airline official. Even if he could not adjust his schedule to appear himself, Ford could have given the assignment to several far more knowledgeable and prestigious figures than Seidman — Secretary of the Treasury William Simon, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers Alan Greenspan, or Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, for instance.

The worst part of Seidman's

debacle is that those industry chieftains not only got a bad impression of Seidman but they got a bad impression of Ford, a President who bungles such an important event does not exactly display strong leadership qualities. The mishap tended to create the impression of a President who was misinformed, disorganized or prone to bad judgment.

Ford needs the support of influential businessmen, and has made a number of political gestures in their direction. He has stressed the importance of stimulating business through subsidies and tax breaks as a major way to fight inflation. He has mounted a campaign to reduce the role of the Federal government in regulating private enterprise, a goal beloved of most big businessmen.

But former Gov. Ronald Reagan is also a champion of helping big business. And many businessmen, while conservative, feel comfortable with Democratic Sen. Henry Jackson.

There are, in short, other places for the captains of industry to go than to Gerald Ford.

Bad Taste Is Plentiful For the Buy-Centennial

LUCKENBACH, Tex. (UPI) — So many entries are coming into the National Buy-Centennial Bad Taste contest that Mayor Hondo Crouch thinks his city (pop: 3) may even get its post office back.

The once-active post office has received stacks of letters from throughout the nation with suggestions for the most flagrant commercial abuse of the bicentennial theme.

Awards for the best suggestions will be given during a Leap Year Day National Non-Bicentennial celebration scheduled for Feb. 29.

Luckenbach proclaimed itself the nation's first National Non-Bicentennial City last August and decreed that "no man, woman, child or animal is permitted to walk through the streets dressed in an Uncle Sam suit; no red, white and blue souvenirs made in China, Taiwan or Uganda are sold; no federal funding is spent on anything."

"We had our own post office awhile ago and even our own individual zip code, but the bureaucrats took it away" because of a lack of business, Crouch said. Mail to and from Luckenbach now is routed through nearby Fredericksburg.

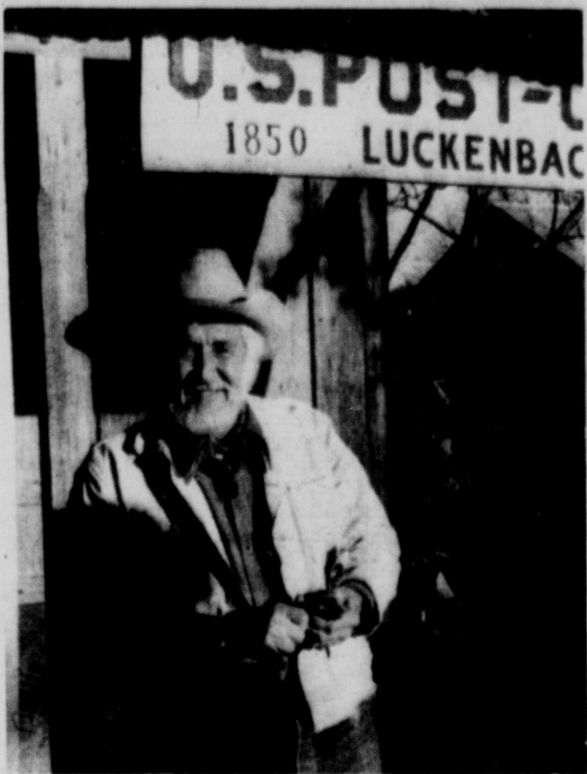

"Looks as though this volume business will get it back for us in this Buy-Centennial year," said Crouch.

Letters to the National Non-Bicentennial Commission now are sent to Luckenbach, Tex. 78624, via Fredericksburg.

Jack Harmon, a publicist and one of several San Antonio residents helping the three Luckenbachians carry off the spoof, said that judging from early nominations it may be tough to decide on a Buy-Centennial Bad Taste Award.

One entry quoted a Chicago radio commentator as saying, "Let's cut out the pretense. After all, aren't we all in it for the buck?"

Other suggestions include the inventors of red, white and blue devices, Christmas trees, beer cans, cigar boxes,

MAYOR CROUCH

caskets and other objects too personal for public mention, Harmon said.

"We are confident we have not yet plumbed the depths of commercial abuse of the bicentennial, even though we have seen examples of bad taste that boggle our minds," Harmon said.

"Two weeks ago I would have sworn I never would have seen anything worse than a Buy-Centennial toilet seat," he added.

"Nothing will surprise me now."

Blaming It All on the Barracks

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet army newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda said in a recent edition "wild morals" in U.S. Army barracks turn American GIs into hardened killers with warped minds.

The newspaper was commenting on a new book by Soviet authors Kim Selikhov

The book purports to tell the history of the U.S. army and, according to Krasnaya Zvezda, "reveals vividly and with restraint the character and mentality of the American soldier, commonly called GI,

Cracking Down on Recipe Book Scheme

WASHINGTON (UPI) — California officials have cracked down on a nationally advertised scheme that invited consumers to contribute recipes for a new cookbook, and then asked them for money to publish the book.

A reader in Davison, Mich., writes that she sent in a recipe for Spanish rice, apparently thinking she was entering a recipe contest in "Family Weekly," the Sunday supplement magazine where the ad appeared.

"Before the results of the contest were published ... I received a letter from 'Golden Recipes,' La Jolla, Calif. 92037. They wrote that they wanted to use my recipe to put in a new cookbook," she writes. "If I would send them $10.95 to help them get the cookbook published, I would receive royalties from the sale of their cookbook."

"I was real happy about it. But that was Sept. 30, 1975, and the only word from them I have had is a letter asking me to send them (money) so they would send me a copy of the recipe book.

"I wrote to 'Family Weekly' about it. The results of their contest were printed in a November copy, and I didn't even receive honorable mention for my Spanish rice. They wrote me they had no idea how my recipe reached 'Golden Recipes' in La Jolla ..."

You apparently mistook an ad from "Golden Recipes" for a recipe entry blank from "Family Weekly." The magazine appears to be telling you the truth. A spokesman told us the same thing. We also checked with the California attorney general's office to see if "Golden Recipes" had been the subject of any complaints.

It turns out that California filed a complaint against the company last fall; among other things, because it felt the ads looked like contest entry blanks which failed to disclose that the entrant would eventually be asked to help finance the book.

Al Shelden, a lawyer in the attorney general's office in San Diego, said a judgment later was won against the company. According to documents Shelden provided, the company no longer may imply royalty payments will result unless they really come from sale of the book.

The company also is forbidden to claim "that a consumer's recipe has been thoroughly reviewed and accepted for publication, unless and until (the company) intends to commit itself to publishing said recipe, and said recipe has been reviewed."

The complaint said recipes sent in were only briefly reviewed and then returned as accepted along with a request for a $10.95 publishing fee for the book. It also said that only a small number of entrants ever received more than a $1 royalty, which in effect was just deducted from the $10.95 fee the entrant paid in the first place.

The ads mentioned royalties of up to $1,000.

It was unclear from your letter whether you actually sent in the money. We have forwarded your letter to Shelden. He said he may be able to get your money back for you if you did.

Shelden will accept inquiries from other dissatisfied consumers who sent in money. You can write him care of the Attorney General, State of California, 110 West A St., Room 600, San Diego, Calif. 92101.

Address your consumer complaints or inquiries to Buyer's Billboard, UPI, 315 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope if you want a personal reply.

Interfaith Survey Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Jewish Committee has announced it plans a major study of interfaith marriages to determine what social and psychological effects they have on husband and wife, children and the Jewish community.

"The underlying purpose of this study is to cast light, rather than heat, on this often highly emotional subject," said Yehuda Rosenman, director of the committee's Jewish Communal Affairs Department.

The survey, believed to be the first nationwide study on the subject of Jewish interfaith marriages, will be guided by Rosenman. It begins on a pilot basis in six communities.

There are diverse views within both religious and secular organizations as to what responsibilities the Jewish community has to participants of marriages between Jews and non-Jews, Rosenman said.

"We cannot determine what, if anything, should be done until we have the objective data which tells us what the problems are and what the plus-minus effect for Jewish continuity is, stemming from increased interfaith marriages," he said.

Mervin H. Riseman, chairman of the committee's Jewish Communal Affairs Commission, said the study will develop a core of information on the experiences of intermarried couples with Jewish institutions and agencies in their communities and their attitudes toward them.

"It will also explore how children of such marriages are being raised, the children's attitudes, the unmet needs of such families and how the agencies and institutions of the Jewish community might meet those needs," he added.

The communities chosen for the pilot program are New York City, Westchester, Nassau-Suffolk, N.Y.; Philadelphia, Cleveland and San Francisco.

SSI Recipients To List Changes

KINGSTON Persons receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments should promptly report changes in their living arrangements to Social Security, according to George J. Habernig, district manager in Kingston.

SSI makes monthly payments to those with little or no income and limited resources who are blind, disabled, or age 65 and older, and changes in individual living arrangements can affect the amount of the payment, Habernig noted.

"If these living arrangements change, the amount of the SSI payment will change," he said. "Sometimes a person delays in telling us his living arrangements have changed and consequently his benefit payment is incorrect."

The SSI program has several living arrangement categories, including living alone in your own household, living in your household with others, living in someone else's household or residing in a hospital or other institution. Each arrangement category pays a different benefit payment. Changes in living arrangements should be reported to the local Social Security Administration office in Kingston.

Winter Rec Program

NEW PALTZ Recreation Director Philip Stein announces that the winter program of the New Paltz Central School is in full swing. Saturday and Sunday sessions at the middle school and high school are well attended. Gymnastics classes at the middle school on Sundays from 1-5 p.m. are well attended and have been well received.

The first ski trip on Saturday, Jan. 31, was a success. It was led by ski coach Bill Russell and 44 children participated. Another trip is planned for mid-February.

An intramural basketball league is now being formed for both boys and girls. Anyone interested should sign up on Saturday or Sunday at the middle school or high school. Groups of 5-8 players may register as a team or individuals can be placed on appropriate teams.

Community Development Agency . . . A Review of Ideas Tonight

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

There seems to be a world of difference in terms of information between what the Community Development Agency presents at its public hearings and what it has to offer at its headquarters at 97 Broadway.

"Public hearings," city style, are usually exactly that with city officials acting as one-way sounding boards, on occasion even refusing to comment on the issue at hand.

Alderman Clifford G. Sinsabaugh, chairman of the Community Development Advisory Council, runs his with a good deal more flexibility, often allowing questions from the audience.

Al Marquart's question to Sinsabaugh at Monday night's Community Development hearing was one frequently heard: What have you people done with the money allocated for last year's program? It adds up to $1,359,000.

Sinsabaugh's answer was that the agency had signed contracts for the cleaning and lining of water mains in the Greenkill Avenue area.

He did not give a dollar figure (it cost about $120,000) and Marquart did not inquire about the rest of the money (more than a million dollars).

The Freeman returned to 97 Broadway on Wednesday with much the same question. The answers indicate "Community Development" has been an active agency since it went into execution last May, a good deal more active than Sinsabaugh's answer would indicate.

The walls of 97 Broadway are covered with detailed charts and graphs showing Community Development's main areas of commitment: Broadway West, Ponckhockie, Broadway Central and Broadway Central East.

"This is not a game of guesses," says CD Director Ralph Marallo as he details various aspects of his maps.

A cursory glance and some fast arithmetic indicates that with any encouragement at all, the Community Development Agency could be off and running on a couple of million dollars worth of projects ranging from a "West Strand Plaza" to bus stops on Central Broadway.

Marallo is quick to warn, however, that planner's projections don't necessarily become reality; what you see on Marallo's walls may not be what you'll get at some future point in time.

"These are ideas, projections, recommendations, concepts, whatever," says Marallo. "These are the kinds of things that we'll be recommending to the full (Community Development Advisory) Council." They in turn recommend to the mayor.

Still, it's a revelation to see some of the talk of last year transmitted into concrete terms if only for display purposes. For instance, Marallo's maps show 431 structures in the so-called "Broadway West area" which is bounded by McEntee Street, Hudson Street, Abeel Street, Dock Street and Broadway.

Of these 431 buildings, 155 are considered to be in "good" condition (no major code violations) with 195 in "fair" condition. Eighty-one are considered to be in "poor" condition

25 of which are listed as vacant. Significantly, 24 of the vacant buildings are in the West Strand, Wurts Street, Spring Street, Broadway triangle.

CDA has compiled rehabilitation estimates on that row of 1870 structures along West Strand running from Johnson's "Downtown" (between $5,000 and $10,000) to the Mansion House on the corner (between $70,000 and $75,000). Overall estimated cost is in the $450,000 range. CDA does not detail, however, where the money would come from.

The agency has plans for sidewalks and rehab in Ponckhockie, bus stops and traffic intersection improvement and off-street parking lots in Central Broadway, sports facilities in Kingston Point. Its plans for Cornell Park could combine public improvements with private enterprise.

CDA plans to be ready for the Bicentennial barge when it arrives in late June. Already it has preliminary plans for a West Strand Plaza that could convert a macadam parking lot behind the old Freeman building into a showcase.

"We've got the ideas," says Marallo. "It's just a case of priorities, feasibility and money."

Those ideas will be reviewed at a Community Development Advisory Council meeting tonight.

7-Year Terms Possible for Trio

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

Three persons arrested last month by Kingston Police Department detectives and charged with arson and burglary in connection with a $64,000 December fire at a building owned by the Coach House Players, Inc., pleaded guilty in Ulster County Court Wednesday to third degree burglary.

The three, Edwin Sauers, 19, his brother, Robert Sauers Jr., 22, both of Connelly, and George Lober, 19, of 109 Hudson Street, Kingston, had previously waived indictment in supreme court.

They pleaded guilty to a prosecutor's information charging them with third degree burglary in satisfaction of all charges in connection with the Dec. 12 incident. Each faces a possible maximum prison sentence of seven years on the felony charge.

At the time of the arrest of the three, following nearly a month of investigation, detectives said two fires were apparently set at the building at 12 Augusta Street after the trio allegedly broke in.

The blaze was discovered at about 2 a.m. by a neighbor, and firemen were called in, but not before there was extensive damage to one side of the building used by the community theatrical group for rehearsals.

Roger Scholl, president of the Coach House Players, said Wednesday that the insurance company estimate of damage was $64,000. The group's insurance, however, "did not come anywhere near to covering the entire loss," Scholl said.

The roof on the building has already been repaired and the group is now in the process of determining how and what to repair next, Scholl said. The group has been forced to rehearse in private homes.

In court Wednesday Edwin and Robert Sauers were represented by Attorney Edward T. Feeney. Lober was represented by Attorney Barry M. Lipman. District Attorney Francis J. Vogt represented the People at the time the pleas were entered. County Judge Raymond J. Mino put sentencing off until a later date.

Meanwhile, in other county court matters:

Eleanor Bonestell, 29, of 97 Pine Grove Avenue, was sentenced to five years probation on a felony charge of second degree forgery, to which she had previously pleaded guilty. Judge Mino also ordered her to make restitution "of the fruits of the offense." She had been arrested last year on multiple counts of second degree forgery, stemming from the alleged forging of stolen checks. The defendant was represented by Attorney Alan S. Zwiebel.

Robert Bryant, 21, of Wallkill, was sentenced to five years probation on a charge of first degree criminal trespass stemming from an incident in Wallkill in Oct. 1974. Bryant was represented by Attorney Alfred Mainett.

Kerhonkson VFW Publishes 'The Eyes of the Past' for '76

KERHONKSON
Remember when the D & H Canal burgeoned with coal barges? When the canal gave way to O & W Railroad trains puffing their majestic way through southern Ulster County? Recall the yeoman rigors that went into the building of the Ashokan Reservoir and the prison at Napanoch?

If you do, "The Eyes of the Past" will be especially meaningful to you. If you don't, "Eyes" will give you insight into what nostalgia is really all about.

"The Eyes of the Past" is a Bicentennial book, just published by Kerhonkson Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8959.

With pictorial emphasis on Kerhonkson, Wawarsing, Napanoch and Accord, it runs the gamut of their history from the D & H Canal, the main streets of those towns in yesteryears, and the former stores, hotels, churches and industries to covered bridges in abundant numbers and such businesses as grist and saw mills.

And while the Rondout Valley, in particular, is saluted in its pages, "Eyes" also presents a wide variety of old pictures from many other areas of Ulster County, including an exceptional scene of ice harvesting on the Rondout Creek.

The dozens upon dozens of marvelous old pictures in the book, combined with brief historical sketches, have made "Eyes" highly popular with the public. Says Post 8959 commander Herb Poppel, who also edited "Eyes," "The public is buying the book in great numbers. We never conceived of it as a money-maker, but we're happy with the response."

The Bicentennial book sells for only $3, with all proceeds going to activities for hospitalized veterans at Castle Point Veterans Hospital. It is available through De Leo-Braunstein-Maier Post 8959, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Kerhonkson, N.Y. 12446.

LWV Offer Books On Vital Topics

Carol John, publications chairperson for the Mid-Ulster League of Women Voters, announces that subscriptions to League Action Service, including "Report from the Hill" and "Action Alert," are now available. These two legislative action division publications provide updates on developments in Congress. Among present topics are the Equal Rights Amend, air quality and employment.

Subscriptions for the current legislative session, which ends in December, are available to individuals and organizations. Cost is $7.50 and pre-paid orders will be accepted through March 1. Those interested may write to: LWV, UPO Box 564, Kingston.

Ms. Betty Bunce, will be offered by popular request for the second time this school year.

Western style square dancing is a smooth sliding dance as compared with the rather "spirited" eastern style that preceded it. Square dancing provides couples with an enjoyable evening together plus a painless healthy exercise.

A 50 basic-level class is planned, and will take 16 weeks to complete. No prior knowledge of dancing is required. Classes will be held at the Cahill School gym; softsoled shoes are required, dress casual. A minimum enrollment of 32 is needed for the program to be offered.

Steve Martin, well known local square dance caller-teacher, will instruct. Registration will take place on the first night of instruction, Wednesday, Feb. 25.

The first session of the physical fitness program is scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 25 at 7 p.m. at the junior high school gym. The course will continue for 10 evenings. Interested women may enroll at the program's first session.

Eat and Grow Younger

Most Past-40 Diets Neglect Essential Vitamins-Minerals

By Lelord Kordel

Number Fifteen of a Series

Minerals rank with protein as the most neglected, haphazardly obtained nutrients in our "civilized" diet, and more especially in the diets of persons past 40. Protein and minerals are so closely linked that to advise you to eat plenty of protein, without stressing the need for equal care in obtaining a full quota of minerals, would be to tell only half the Eat-and-Grow-Younger story. That is why my second nutritional commandment is "Minerals without fail."

Protein and minerals are the chief actors in the nutritional drama, while vitamins play a secondary, although essential, role needed to set other substances into action. To neglect any of these three food elements wrecks the nutritional drama.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, noted authority on diseases of older persons, stated: "The foremost nutritional defects in the mature and aging are calcium, iron and protein. Fully 75 per cent of the men of 60 suffer a lack of one or more. On the other hand, many suffer dietary excesses, notably carbohydrates and possibly cholesterol."

Calcium-Iron Important

Calcium is so important an

ingredient of blood that your bloodstream will attempt to maintain its calcium level, even though it has to rob other body parts of their vitally needed calcium. That is why, in many older persons, the bones, robbed of their calcium by the blood, become fragile, resulting in easily fractured arms, legs and hips.

Your nerves, your heart, your teeth, your brain cells, your blood — all need sufficient calcium to remain healthy, and to function as nature intended.

An inexpensive and convenient way to obtain added calcium in the diet is through the use of powdered skim milk. This dry milk provides needed calcium and protein along with many trace minerals — less the fats which are wisely limited during the later years.

It is Dr. Crampton's belief that a deficiency of iron is nearly always present in the "uncared-for person in the higher-age brackets."

He says that the typical person of 60 is anemic, iron-poor and body-poor — unnecessarily so. Insufficient hydrochloric acid in the gastric secretions is a common cause of iron poverty in the older body.

Third Commandment

VITAMINS IN THEIR RIGHTFUL PLACE

supplement you take) to give you all the benefits you expect from them, unless you also provide your body with ample quantities of protein foods each day.

Nutritional science has learned that successful vitamin therapy depends upon the presence of adequate high-proteins in the diet. Your vitamin needs should always begin with a high protein diet.

Fruits and vegetables may appear fresh and green in the market, yet be grossly lacking in vitamins, and minerals as well.

May Lack Vitamins

Therefore, unless you grow your own fruits and vegetables on properly fertilized soil — or can purchase them from farms and gardens containing carefully enriched soil to your certain knowledge — there is every possibility you are not obtaining in your food all the vitamins and minerals needed to keep you looking and feeling young.

In that event, the safest course is to supplement your Eat-and-Grow-Younger diet with a vitamin-mineral concentrate. For my own use I have found the formula called Nutri-Time to be an ideal vitamin-mineral food supplement.

Carefully planned meals plus added vitamins and minerals in concentrated form, provide the best way to make certain that vitamins and minerals are "adequate" in our diet. And adequate they must be, if you don't want your Eat-and-Grow-Younger program to bog down.

'Look at Me' a Gift for Parents

"We had a hard time getting parents to look at their kids," says Thea Flaum, writer, producer and moderator of a new TV series. Using real mothers, fathers, children and grandparents, the Look at Me! programs demonstrate how we can start noticing our kids.

It reminds us that we as parents can provide more effectively than a trained teacher or a room full of expensive toys the hundreds of brief encounters that perhaps can make our kids smarter and happier people.

The beauty of this series is its simplicity. All the examples are so accessible. We want to say, why didn't I think of that before? We see a mother of six returning from an afternoon of shopping at the supermarket. What can be educational about putting away six bags of groceries? The mother has her children sort the items. That's the basis for mathematics, recognizing differences and similarities and organizing materials.

As one of her youngsters puts away the canned goods, she checks to see if he knows the difference between peaches and pears. This encourages him to look closely at the labels and be more aware of distinctions between one picture and the other.

In another episode we see a grandmother caring for her two granddaughters while their mother is at work. Leslie, the older child obviously feels some resentment about sharing grandma with

Dear Abby

Should Be Told Who Is Real Father

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband's parents who live far away insist upon sending my son Christmas and birthday gifts, and I wish they wouldn't.

Jimmy is 6 now and old enough to question where these gifts come from. So far I've been saying, "they're from some friends of Mommy's," but I don't know how much longer that will suffice.

I divorced Jimmy's father and married again when Jimmy was 2. My husband adopted Jimmy, so he's the only father the boy has ever known, but I would rather not tell him about his "real" father until he's older and better able to handle it.

I suppose I'm not being realistic because so many people know about my first marriage that someone is sure to tell him. However, I don't want Jimmy to know just yet.

When the time comes, should I tell Jimmy, or should my husband? I want it to be an O.K. experience, not a traumatic one. Can you or your readers who have been through this help me?

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The time to tell Jimmy is right now! Say, "Before I married your father, I was married to another man, and HE is your natural Daddy. We decided it would be better for both of us if we ended our marriage, so we got a divorce. Then I fell in love with your father and he adopted you, making you his LEGAL son."

Then tell him about the set of grandparents you've been unfairly hiding all these years. The sooner you tell Jimmy, the easier it will be. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, a guy I went with gave me a gold charm bracelet. (I'll call him "Pete.")

Pete and I broke up, and I married a good friend of his. My husband and I see Pete about once a week.

I haven't worn the bracelet for two years, and I probably won't ever wear it again. It's very pretty, but it doesn't mean anything to me now.

I was wondering if it would be tacky of me to pawn the bracelet. We could use the money. What would you do?

DEAR UN: I'd return the bracelet to Pete.

Widow of Al-Anon Founder, Over 80, Says: When Your Mate's an Alcoholic, You Wonder Why

A great little lady in her 80s talked the other day about living with an alcoholic.

"When your mate's an alcoholic, the hardest thing is understanding why," the widow of the co-founder of Alcoholics Anonymous said in an interview.

"That is harder than all the disappointments and frustrations."

Lois W. is revered around the world as the founder of Al-Anon, the fellowship of relatives and friends of alcoholics.

There are more than 9,500 groups in the United States, Canada and 62 other countries. Growth is speeding up. At least half of the Al-Anon members have loved ones still drinking.

Lois W. stuck to the rules. She politely refused to have her picture taken. She insisted on being referred to as Lois W. "Anonymity is vital," she said. "It is necessary to protect the alcoholic from personal embarrassment in his/her business and social life."

"I cannot break the rule." I tried to persuade Mrs. W. otherwise — especially since the world has known her husband's name since he died in 1971. She wouldn't budge. "It would be a very bad example," she said.

The years have shrunk Lois W. to something around five feet and turned her softly curled hair to pure white. They've done nothing to dull the sparkle in her dark eyes.

Her red wool dress, accented by a red plaid taffeta bow, sidetied, was topped by a black coat with a small fur collar. A trim black knit hat with a high crown topped it all.

Lois W. had been up the previous night until 3 a.m. She had come in from her home in Bedford Hills, N.Y. for an Al-Anon trustees' meeting.

In between Al-Anon business around the world, Lois W. is consultant for a movie on her husband's life. It will be called Bill W. and is based on a book by the same name, brought out last year by Harper and Row.

The author, Robert Thomsen, is working on a sequel, "Lois W."

When Bill W. died in 1971, it was announced to the world that he was William Griffith Wilson — a New York stockbroker who drank himself out of jobs and almost out of life.

In 1935 on a business trip to Akron, Ohio, a Dr. Walter Tunks, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, put him in touch with a person who arranged contact with "Dr. Bob"

— Robert Holbrook Smith.

The two helped one another to stay away from drink, a day at a time. That was the start of AA.

Lois W. supported the family by working as an interior decorator during the falling-down-drunk days of her husband. Before marriage, she had been an occupational therapist.

"I got drunk a couple of times to show him how silly it was," Lois W. said.

"It was a waste of time, of course. He was so drunk he couldn't register. I should have done it when he was sober."

"Did you ever feel sorry for your husband when he was so drunk?" I asked Lois W.

"Yes," she said. "Sorry and terribly sad. But angry, too."

She drinks now and then.

"Bill was anxious for me to lead a normal life," she said. "He was different though. He was psychologically and chemically in need of alcohol."

Science has puzzled over that one for a long time. Why, for example, can tens of millions drink socially and not all eventually become alcoholics?

Some people know how to stop short of intoxication-poisoning.

But a non-stop thirst for beer and whisky drives others to the point of drunkenness, black-outs and suicide on the installment plan.

"Definitely there's a chemical thing about it," Lois W. said.

Would Lois W. favor health hazard warning labels on beer and whisky? Or prohibition? She said "no" to prohibition.

As to warning labels — such as those on cigarettes — she just shrugged. The way people do when they mean "what's the use?"

"I do think," Lois W. said,

"that our society with its acceptance of drink has gone too far."

"We have gone too far in our social drinking."

"What I mean by 'too far' is that our children grow up to think they can't be men and women unless they drink."

"You see it in movies, on television."

"We always do things a little exaggerated in America. But our values about the place and amount of drinking should be changed."

Asked about her obviously good health, she answered: "I'm a very fortunate person. One thing I've had going for me is plenty to do all the time."

Lois W. said Al-Anon is for friends of alcoholics as well as relatives. The 12 steps of AA, virtually unchanged, and the 12 AA Traditions are guiding principles of Al-Anon.

It is for anyone whose "life has been or is being deeply affected by a problem drinker."

"The principles are just suggestions," Lois W. said. "Al-Anon members can drink."

In an Al-Anon pamphlet on the organization, she makes these points:

— There is a striking analogy between working on ourselves and cultivating a garden.

— To raise flowers we must get rid of the weeds.

— The garden of many a martyred, self-pitying wife or husband of an alcoholic can become choked with smugness and self-righteousness.

"I was just as powerless over my husband's alcoholism, since I had failed in every way I tried to control his drinking," Lois W. said.

She recalled that it was especially hard to accept the way alcohol broke down his ideals and ambitions and robbed him of all hope.

Later she became jealous of all the time AA was taking out of their marriage.

"We had the house full of drunks in all stages of sobriety," she recalls. "It seemed to me he was trying to dry up all the drunks in the world."

"After a while I began to wonder why I was not as happy as I ought to be since the one thing I had been yearning for all my married life had come to pass."

"Then one Sunday Bill asked me if I was ready to go to the meeting with him. To my own astonishment as well as his, I burst forth with — 'Damn your old meeting!' — and threw a shoe as hard as I could."

By degrees after that, Lois W. came to realize how much the partner of the alcoholic also needs to live by a spiritual program.

Soon after that she started the first Al-Anon group.

SPORTS TODAY

3,000 Miles Away: A Celebration for Dorothy

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Olympic skater Dorothy Hamill's performance in Innsbruck touched off a celebration 3,000 miles away in Connecticut.

The celebration was led by Hamill's aunt, Mrs. Mary Piper of Westport, when told that Dorothy moved into first place Wednesday after the second round in figure skating competition. "Oh my God! We're about to bust," when told her niece had completed the compulsory program in first place, ahead of defending world champion Diane DeLeeuw of Holland. "Dorothy's in first place!" the reply reverberated through the restaurant.

feat was greeted with equal enthusiasm by neighbors in Hamill's home town of Riverside, about 15 miles from Westport.

Mrs. Piper is the sister of Chalmers Hamill, Jr., a mechanical engineer for Pitney Bowes in Stamford. Their father, Chalmers Hamill, was assistant U.S. attorney general under President Franklin D. Roosevelt and served through the Eisenhower administration.

Hamill's parents, her older sister and brother, Marcia, and Sandy, are at Innsbruck where she is the favorite to capture a gold medal in the free program final Friday night.

Hamill fell heavily during her warmup Wednesday but earned near-perfect marks and a standing ovation for her compulsory short program to take over the lead. She received marks of 5.8 and 5.9 from eight judges and a perfect 6.0 from Italian judge Giorgio Siniscalco to improve her second place position gained in Tuesday's opening portion of the program.

Friday night's scheduled free skating competition is worth 50 per cent of the overall marks and is the strongest part of Hamill's program. She is regarded as the top woman free skater in the world.

De Leeuw, an American from Paramount, Calif., whose parentage and dual citizenship allows her to skate for Holland, moved up to second after the compulsories while Isabel De Navarre of West Germany, the first day leader, fell to third.

"I'm very, very happy that I skated well," Hamill said. "I'm glad I did the fall in the warmup instead of the competition like I did last year. I didn't let it bother me."

Hamill fell on a flying sitspin in the 1975 World Championships at Colorado Springs, Colo., and lost a chance to catch De Leeuw.

"I was a little nervous for the short program but then I guess all the skaters are," she said. "Friday I guess I'll be a little nervous, but not scared. I will do the best I can and hope."

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Peter Mueller of Mequon Wis., won the Olympic 1,000-meter speed skating event today to give United States its second gold medal of the Winter Games.

Mueller, 21, won by nearly a second from Jorn Didrikson of Norway and favored Russian Valeri Muratov, the world record holder at the distance in this new Olympic event.

It was the second speed skating gold medal won by the U.S. team, whose earlier Olympic championship was won by Sheila Young of Detroit in the women's 500. All but two of America's medals at these Games have been won in speed skating.

Dan Immerfall of Madison, Wis., the bronze medalist in the 500, finished 12th in the field of 31 and Dan Carrol of St. Louis still groggy from a bout of flu, was 28th.

Earlier in the day the Soviet Union took the women's 20 kilometer relay ahead of Finland and East Germany. The United States finished last in the field of nine.

Mueller, a 5-foot-11, 160-pounder who is engaged to be married to Leah Poulos of the women's team, skated in the second group of 16 and then had to wait nearly two hours to see if his time would stand up.

Unlike Wednesday's 5,000, when the ice was bad because of falling snow, today's race was run in perfect conditions. The overnight snowfall had been swept from the ice, which was polished before the start, and the competitors raced under a bracing sun.

Mueller had intermediate times of 17.41 and 46.82, but didn't look too happy when he finished, probably feeling his time of 1:19.32, which goes into the books as an Olympic record, would not hold up until Muratov skated in the eighth pair.

But the Russian, silver medalist in the 500, did not have it to give today, finishing in 1:20.57, 12-100ths of a second behind Didrikson's silver medal pace.

Czechs Forfeit Hockey Game

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — The United States' chances of winning an Olympic hockey medal improved considerably today when Czechoslovakia was ordered to forfeit its match with Poland after team captain Frantisek Pospisil failed a dope test.

The Czechoslovaks defeated Poland 7-1 on Tuesday but now have been handed a loss.

Czechoslovakia will be permitted to continue in the tournament but team doctor Franz Trefny was ousted from the Olympics.

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Steve Jensen scored two goals for the second consecutive game and his linemate Bob Dobeck also tallied a pair to power the United States Olympic hockey team to a 7-2 trouncing over Poland today.

In evening their record at 2-2 with their second victory in a row, the Americans put themselves in line for an unexpected medal. They conclude the round robin tournament against West Germany Saturday afternoon, and another triumph would assure at least a bronze medal.

Giants Appear to be Staying in 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Toronto Giants won't be playing in the National League during the coming baseball season.

A Superior Court judge issued a preliminary injunction Wednesday blocking the sale of the bankrupt San Francisco Giants to a group of wealthy investors in the Canadian city.

Judge John E. Bensen blocked another cross-country move by the Giants when an eleventh hour bid of $8 million in cash was made made Bob Lurie, a local sportsman-financier, and Bob Short, former owner of the American League's Washington-Texas entry.

Although the pair has not officially purchased the Giants, the judge granted the injunction sought by the City of San Francisco, whose mayor put together the proposed purchase an hour before Benson's deadline.

The next step for the prospective new buyers is to persuade the Giants' parent company, the National Exhibition Company—of which Lurie is a board member—to accept the offer.

However, attorneys for National Exhibition gave no indication when the directors would gather to act on the matter. If the sale is agreed to within the next few days, National League owners conceivably could vote on approval of the new owners when they meet in Chicago Wednesday. Nine ayes are needed to complete the changeover.

"What I'd like to do now is find out the exact terms of the offer," said James Hunt, attorney for the Giants. "Let's find out what the offer is. Then we'll be in a better position to present this to the directors. I want to chat with Short and Lurie and discuss the nuts and bolts of the proposal."

Short agreed. Before leaving for his Minneapolis home to be with his hospitalized wife, he said, "I'm ready to sit down with the Giants now and try to work out a memorandum of some kind at least. The offer is open until such time it can be taken to the board."

The city initially sought the injunction Jan. 10, a day after Giants owner Horace C. Stoneham announced the sale of the team to the Canadian consortium of Labatt's Brewery, the Toronto Globe and Mail and a Toronto bank for $13.25 million.

The Short-Lurie purchase price is $5.25 million under the Canadian offer, but contains an equal $8 million for only the baseball team—free and clear of all liabilities.

Under the terms of the Toronto offer, the $5.25 million was to be placed in escrow to indemnify the city on the team's 35-year lease at Candlestick Park.

The Giants' financial woes began in 1968 when the American League granted Charles O.

Finley permission to move from Kansas City to Oakland, which is across the bay from San Francisco.

Since then, the Giants' home attendance dwindled rapidly, clearing the million mark only once—in 1971 when they won the NL's Western Division pennant.

The last two seasons, they barely totaled 500,000 fans for their home games.

In Toronto, the head of the group trying to buy the Giants said he still holds out hope the club can be moved to Canada despite the injunction.

"We're not despaired," said Don McDougall, president of Labatt's Breweries. "It's certainly a major setback, but logic is still on our side. Changing ownership is not going to put people in the ballpark (in San Francisco) and it's not going to pay the bills."

"Really, despite the initial disappointment, we can only wait. We felt all along and we still feel, that logic is on our side. The San Francisco-Oakland area cannot support two ball clubs."

It was Short's second attempt to buy the nearly bankrupt Giants, who have lost $6.4 million since 1968, including $3.5 million in the last two seasons. In addition, the Giants have had to borrow $1 million from the Bank of America and $500,000 from the league to keep operating the last few months.

Short's original offer of $11 million was for the team and National Exhibition's extensive real estate holdings in Arizona, Minnesota and Florida. The Short-Lurie offer is for the Giants only — free and clear of all liabilities.

At a news conference after the hearing, the prospective new buyers said it was a "50-50 proposition, but others may join in with us." It was not revealed who they would approach to manage the team, but Short said they expected to talk to a few candidates soon.

"The San Francisco Giants have the best young team in baseball," he said. "When I started out in Washington, I wouldn't have failed if I had this team."

"Naturally, I expect the team to be a contender next season," Lurie added.

Mayor George Moscone, elated after working for more than a month to put together the package, said, "I am very happy and very gratified. There was a lot of hard work. We're glad that it all came together when it did."

Moscone, who had the Giants-Toronto bombshell dropped on his desk the day after he was sworn into office, said he will go to Chicago next week if necessary to remind NL owners that the city had lived up to its side of the bargain—that it could find a buyer who wanted to keep the Giants in San Francisco.

MLPA Studying Owners' Ideas

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Major League Players Association today studied a "skeleton" form of the clubowners' ideas concerning a modification of the reserve clause with both sides hoping it will serve as a basis for future talks.

"The owners presented us with a skeleton form of their ideas," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, after Wednesday's meeting. "It wasn't comprehensive, but it will serve as a basis for future talks on Friday."

John Gaherin, counsel for the owners, described the meeting as "constructive" and pointed out that the Player Relations Committee, representing the owners, is willing to follow Miller to any location suiting his convenience in an effort to continue the negotiations. The owners and players are trying to reach an agreement on the basic contract, which expired last Dec. 31.

The major problem in the negotiations is that the reserve clause was ruled illegal in the cases of pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally by arbitrator Peter Seitz. U.S. District judge John W. Oliver Wednesday granted a 10-day delay on his decision upholding Seitz' ruling and allowing the owners to make a request of the appeals court.

Oliver ruled earlier this month that Seitz had the authority to declare the pitchers free of contract obligations to their teams after playing the 1975 season without signing contracts. Meanwhile, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said, "baseball cannot function under the 'Messersmith decision.'"

"This points up an area where Mr. Miller and I are in agreement," said Kuhn. "He knows baseball needs a reserve system just as I do. He knows baseball can't live with a 'Messersmith decision.' He has said repeatedly there has to be a reserve system of some sort."

Kuhn then called upon Miller to be a "statesman."

"For all his skills and for all the power he has achieved, Miller has never learned to be a statesman who appreciates the long-term problems baseball is facing. He doesn't understand, for instance, why we need as equalized competition as we can get. He doesn't understand the fans' attitude toward the game at all and their dedication to their teams' star players. He doesn't understand why it's important for the national game to maintain reasonable ticket prices so that we can have this great mass audience."

"I'm hoping that his success in the 'Messersmith case' will inspire him toward some statesmanship," Kuhn added. "I think he's capable of it."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A federal judge has given major league baseball owners 10 days to ask an appeals court to block his decision upholding the free agent status of pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally.

U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver granted the delay Wednesday to allow the owners to request a delay in his decision until the 8th U.S. Court of Appeals can hear the case.

Oliver ruled earlier this month arbitrator Peter Seitz had the authority to hear the grievances of Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers and McNally of Montreal, who claimed they were free agents because they played last year without a contract. And he ruled he lacked the authority to review Seitz' decision.

The owners claim Oliver's action will ruin baseball's reserve system, which has provided the major league teams with indefinite control over a player.

Oliver said to issue a stay the owners would have to prove there was a strong chance for his ruling to be overturned; that if the stay was denied irreparable harm would result; that no substantial harm would come to interested parties by granting the stay and that granting the stay would not harm the public interest.

As far as Oliver was concerned, the owners struck out.

Senators Stun Orange Wrestlers

STONE RIDGE

There was a time when Orange County Community College ruled the roost in the Mid-Hudson Conference wrestling standings and Ulster County was an also-ran.

But times have changed, and the Senators, who last year just missed winning the M-HC championship, opened the delayed 1976 campaign Wednesday night on the Senate Gym mats by turning back the Middletown grapplers, 22-17.

How important was the win? Consider this: Orange, not postponed by the weather this season, had wrestled and beaten every team in the conference. Defeating UCCC would have clinched the title for the Colts.

Ulster, meanwhile, was wrestling for the first time "for keeps". By winning, the Senators need only to beat the teams Orange already has conquered (and they'll be favored to do it) to capture the championship.

The key wins in Wednesday's match came right off the bat as Robin Hunter (118) beat Bob McGuire, 4-2, and Chris St. John (126) decisively Courtney Travis, 6-2. Both Orange losers moved down in class for the matches. Ironically, both are Ulster County boys, McGuire for New Paltz and Travis from Ontario.

UCCC has a big triangular on tap for Saturday at 2 p.m. when Dutchess and Rockland invade Stone Ridge.

The summaries:

Ulster 22, Orange 17
118—Robin Hunter (U) dec. Bob McGuire 4-2
126—Chris St. John (U) dec. Courtney Travis 6-2

Donahue Is Named UCLA Grid Coach

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — One day after Dick Vermeil shocked UCLA by announcing he was resigning as head football coach after only two years and going to the pros for a reported $1 million, 31-year-old Terry Donahue, a five-year Bruin assistant, applied for the job.

Two days later, he got it. "I didn't know what chance I had," Donahue said Wednesday after being named one of the nation's youngest head football coaches. "But it was a tremendous opportunity. In my opinion UCLA's football staff is the best in the country. I'm thrilled that they generally expressed a desire to stay with me."

Donahue is no stranger to UCLA's winning tradition. He was a star defensive lineman at UCLA in the mid-1960s under Tommy Proctor and started on the 1966 Rose Bowl team that defeated No. 1 ranked Michigan State 14-12.

Last season under Vermeil, Donahue was in charge of the running game with the veer attack and helped mold a prolific ground game that was rated best in the Pacific 8 and fourth nationally. As co-champions of the Pac-8, the Bruins earned a berth to the Rose Bowl and beat top-ranked Ohio State. Donahue became one of the youngest assistants in the nation when he joined Pepper Rodgers' staff at Kansas in 1967, then returned to UCLA when Rodgers was named head coach in 1971 and served two years under Vermeil.

He said he would retain the present coaching staff headed by Lynn Slits, defensive coordinator the past season, Jerry Long, Billie Matthews and Bill McPherson.

In making the appointment, UCLA Athletic Director J.D. Morgan called Donahue "a fine young man with a great coaching background. I have had great admiration for Terry personally for his contributions to UCLA as a player and an assistant coach for the last five years."

One of Donahue's former recruits, All America quarterback John Sciarra, agrees.

"I think he's a great person—very much like Vermeil," Sciarra said. "He's personable, someone you can trust and a great recruiter with a great knowledge of the game. He's also a tireless worker. I think the returning players will be extremely happy. He has all the qualities."

Vermeil's departure to the NFL's Philadelphia Eagles, announced last Sunday, came at a crucial time in preparations for next season. The staff was putting finishing touches on the recruiting season and letters of intent from high school athletes are due next Wednesday.

Vermeil Wants to Forget Philly's Shaky Past

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dick Vermeil, new head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, admits he is not walking into a "great job."

"I'm sort of glad the situation was as it was, or else the job wouldn't be open and I wouldn't be here," Vermeil said Wednesday, five days after he signed a five-year contract to coach the Eagles, who have not had a winning season since 1966.

"Some people have said: 'Gee, Dick, that's a lousy job.' If it was a great job, somebody else would have already had it. The great jobs aren't open," Vermeil said.

Vermeil's hiring ended the Eagles' seven-week search for a head coach after Leonard Fowle fired Mike McCormack following a 4-10 season.

"The hell with what happened last year," said the 39-year-old Vermeil, who capped his two years as UCLA head coach with an upset win over Ohio State in the Rose Bowl. "I could care less. I can't change one thing that happened last year. I'm more concerned with what is going to happen tomorrow. I don't ever look backwards. I have a slogan—'Don't look backwards unless you want to go there.'"

Asked if he thought the Eagles had a lot of "stiffs" on the team, Vermeil said: "I don't believe that. I think if people tell them they are, they eventually will be. I don't believe a guy can do anything unless he himself believes it."

Vermeil said he had to find ways to make the Eagles better through "self-discipline, self-motivation. First off, I'm going to give any guy in a green (one of the Eagles' colors) uniform, credit for being a good football player. What we've got to do is get them playing better to than they have."

Vermeil, who started his coaching career as a high school assistant in 1959 in San Jose, Calif., and served two stints as an assistant with the

PURCHASE

New Paltz State's basketball Hawks routed host Purchase College 99-53 Wednesday, moving over the 500 mark with a 9-8 record and a step closer to their goal of at least 10 victories for the 1975-76 season.

Why 10 victories? It would represent State's winningest campaign since the 1962-63 season and an achievement Coach Joe Donovan says would be "like winning the NIT."

All nine players used by Coach Donovan crashed the scoring column, five in double figures. With back to back games coming up at Western Connecticut tonight and York College Saturday, Donovan used his starting five for about six minutes in each half.

There was no diminution of Hawk scoring with or without the starters. Clay Sizemore, former John Jay High School ace, led with 23 points. Fred DeVilla, a mid-term transfer from Sullivan Community, hit 14 points. Others in double figures were Keith Yizar 10, Ron Dmaraski 13 and Russ Eber 12.

The Hawks piled up a 54-23 halftime lead and hit 54 per cent of their shots from the floor for one of their best shooting performances of the season.

Tom Moore and Ed Wilson collected 14 points each for Purchase.

New Paltz, Red Hook Wrestlers Win; Championship Tie Again Seems Likely

KINGSTON

New Paltz and Red Hook High Schools continued stride for stride in the Ulster County Athletic League wrestling race Wednesday night as both won convincing victories to remain tied for the lead.

The Huguenots were 47-6 winners over Rondout Valley, upping their record to 6-1. Red Hook also moved to the 6-1 mark by crushing Pine Bush, 56-6. In another match, Liberty gained a tie for fourth place by stopping Ellenville, 34-14. Earlier in the week, third place Ontonagon turned back Walkkill, 20-21.

New Paltz, which tied for the title with Ontonagon last year, has lost only to Ellenville. Red Hook's only defeat was to New Paltz. Each team has one match remaining.

The Huguenots' most recent triumph was scored with only two pins. Ray Wells (135) and Bob Kopsick (215) were the victors. Five other NP wins were gained by decision and three came via the forfeit route.

Dave Cobb (141) and Eric

Zimmerman (148) were the Rondout winners.

Pete Staats (101), Tom Major (115), Bob Engasser (122), Matt Ojay (156), Maurice Hryshko (170), and Steve Taylor (180) scored pins for Red Hook as it beat Pine Bush. Jim Major (109) had a major decision.

Bushman ace Tom Merone's pin in the 148 pound class highlighted the losers' efforts. Other details were not available.

A 9-1 decision by 108 pounder Steve Goldstein over Ellenville's top man Angelo Torres sparked the Redskins to their fourth triumph against three defeats. The Blue Devils dropped to 3-3-1 with the loss.

Control of the middle weight classes helped Ontonagon best Walkill. Wyatt Gale (141), Brian Jensen (148) and Fran Castaldo (158) scored big wins for the Indians.

Linton Wrestlers Edge Sawyers

SCHENECTADY

With five starters missing because of illness, Saugerties High's wrestling squad bowed to Linton High 24-20 Wednesday for only their second loss in 11 starts this season.

Despite the absence of the regulars, the Sawyers led through the 155 pound class, but Linton's Dick Herman defeated Paul Brown 9-7 and Dave Feldman pinned Lars Hauck in 3:35 to put the match out of Saugerties' reach before the 215 pound event where Mike Tiano decisively won 7-3.

Pat Bogert of Saugerties scored a pin in the 155 pound class over John Dickinson. Other Sawyers wins were scored by Steve Landell (138), Pete DisClanfani (132), Bob Miron (119) and Tom Carr (112).

Confidence Builder for Larry's Bucks

NEW YORK (UPI) — "This one game will raise the confidence of the kids enormously. IS A BIG WIN FOR US, A BIG WIN, BIG WIN," SAID Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello after his Bucks beat the New York Knicks 109-95 in an NBA game Wednesday night.

The "kids" are second-year man Brian Winters, who had a game-high 27 points, rookie Junior Bridgeman, who scored 26, and first-year man Dave Meyers, who had 11. That trio and Elmore Smith, who accounted for 17 points, were traded by Los Angeles for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar before the season. All told, the traded three accounted for 81 points.

For the Bucks, who lead the Midwest Division, it was only their fourth win in the last 14 games and, although their winning margin was 14 points, the game was tied with less than four minutes left and the momentum in the Knicks' favor. Costello's "kids" had let a 15-point lead with 1½ minutes left in the third quarter evaporate as Earl Monroe and

Spencer Haywood sparked a 24-9 Knicks' surge. But eight layup points by the "kids" clinched the win.

Bridgeman, who hadn't scored a goal in 17 minutes of the first half, got 14 third quarter points.

With two-thirds of the season finished, Costello evaluates the Jabbar trade as a short-term loss but a long-term gain.

"We got good players for Jabbar, although they're young," he explained. "The kids can't make a franchise overnight but in the long run — say two or three years — we'll have a fine team. Let's face it, their lack of poise and inexperience sometimes killed us. I can pick out 12 game where end-game inexperience beat us. But tonight's victory and the way they did it will boost their confidence. I KSARED Dridgeman for the first time this year. He's a iro already. The pressure doesn't bother him. He'll keep on attacking you."

"We hadn't been scoring nor winning so I started him. In recent games, the kids have been playing hard and intense but it is frustrating when we faltered down the stretch. But the kids are getting better each time out."

***

The way Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue sees it, the 76ers' win over the Portland Trail Blazers Wednesday night was beautifully fundamental.

"We passed the ball well, ran well, and the defense was good," he said after his team beat Portland 118-106 for its third straight win.

Shue was especially pleased because the Sixers were coming off a raggedy performance in Tuesday night's 85-84 win over the Chicago Bulls. Shue was also pleased because the victory over Portland put Philadelphia into a second-place tie with the Buffalo Braves in the NBA's competitive Atlantic Division.

The loss spoiled a brilliant 35-point performance by Portland's Sidney Wicks. Steve Hawes added 21 points for the Blazers, who hold third place in the Pacific Division.

The 76ers won on the strength of a strong first half in which they shot a blistering 63.8 per cent. Doug Collins, who scored 24 points, hit 9-of-11 in the first half and Fred Carter, who also scored 24, was 7-for-10 in the first two quarters.

"We had a super first half," Shue said. "We really did."

The 76ers led 39-29 at the end of the first quarter when they made 16-of-23 shots, with Collins getting 15 points in that quarter. Philadelphia had a hot hand again in the second period, hitting on 14-of-24.

Houston defeated Boston 115-103, Phoenix topped Detroit 123-94 and Seattle defeated New Orleans 93-90 in other NBA games.

Denver defeated San Antonio 137-133 and the New York Nets beat St. Louis 120-110 in American Basketball Association games.

Rockets 115, Celtics 103

Calvin Murphy scored 21 of his 31 points in the second half to lead Houston over Boston. The Rockets scored 12 points in the final two minutes to put the game away after a fan rushed onto the court and pushed Boston center Dave Cowens, who had collided with Murphy. Cowens knocked the fan down. Jojo White had 23 points for the Celtics.

Suns 123, Pistons 94

Alvan Adams scored 22 points and six other players were in double figures as Phoenix routed Detroit for its fourth straight victory. Curtis Perry had 20 and Paul Westphal added 16 for the Suns. Eric Money had 25 for the Pistons, who lost the ball on steals 17 times.

Sonics 93, Jazz 90

Herm Gilliam hit a 12-footer with 43 seconds left to lift Seattle past New Orleans. The Sonics, playing without starters Fred Brown and Leonard Gray, were led by Tom Burleson's 25 points.

Nuggets 137, Spurs 133

Bobby Jones scored with 10 seconds to go to cap Denver's victory over San Antonio. The game was tied 15 times and the score changed hands seven times with David Thompson leading the Nugget scoring with 25 points and James Silas hitting 38 for the Spurs.

Nets 120, Spirits 110

Julius Erving's 25 points led a balanced attack which enabled the Nets to beat St. Louis. New York led 28-26 after the first period and then broke loose to take a 56-42 edge at halftime. Ron Boone scored 26 points for the Spirits.

Ernie Holmes Indicted For Narcotics Possession

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steeler defensive tackle Ernie Holmes has been indicted on one count of possession of narcotics—250 milligrams of cocaine.

A grand jury returned the indictment Wednesday and the district attorney's office said Holmes could be tried as early as next month on the charge.

"He was indicted for possession of a controlled substance, specifically cocaine," said Assistant District Attorney David Gleason. "That's a second degree felony. The punishment ranges from two to 20 years in prison and a maximum fine of $10,000. There have been no motions filed yet by Holmes' attorney so I don't know if we will have a pretrial hearing."

"I would estimate we could have a trial date set in March or April."

Gleason said he had not yet heard from Holmes, who was freed on $1,000 bond Feb. 2. Holmes has said, however, the accusation was false and he was framed.

Holmes, who lives in Newton, Tex., was in Amarillo last month attending a wedding when he was arrested. He was arrested in a hotel restroom by two officers who said it was a coincidence that they happened to be there.

The officers said they spotted a man handing Holmes a small packet they suspected contained drugs. They said Holmes tried to throw the packet into a toilet, but missed.

The Steelers' front office Wednesday had no immediate comment on the indictment.

TENPIN TOPICS

By Charles J. Flano

Sports Editor

Bowling's man of the decade, Earl Anthony, has made two dramatic moves in areas that help determine a player's enduring greatness. In the 20th annual All-America team to be announced in the February issue of Bowling, he becomes the first ever to be a unanimous choice in consecutive years.

Also in the February issue of Bowling, the official monthly publication of the American Bowling Congress announces that Anthony has moved into fifth place on the all-time earnings list the magazine has been compiling exclusively since 1957.

The Tacoma, Wash. crew-cut lefty's name appears on all 166 ballots cast by the writers, broadcasters and officials across the country to name the top 10 players for 1975. A year ago he collected all 159 votes. The only other unanimous choice was Billy Hardwick in 1969.

Anthony is the only 1974 holdover. He is joined this time by another lefty, Dave Davis, Carmen Salvo, Ed Ressler and Roy Buckley. Davis has been the first team three times and the second team twice, but the others are new to the number one lineup.

Even the veteran Salvo had only three second team berths to reflect one of the better records among the active pros. Buckley moves up from the 1947 second team while Ressler makes his first appearance a big one.

BOWLING Magazine 1975 All-America Teams

First Team	1st	2nd	Pts.	Second Team	1st	2nd	Pts.

Honorable Mention: John Petraglia, New York (8-28-52); Marvin (Bud) Stoudt, Lebanon, Pa. (7-30-51); Jay Robinson, Los Angeles (4-38-50); Dick Weber, St. Louis (6-22-41); Dick Ritter, River Falls, Wis. (7-8-27); Jim Goodman, Lorain, Ohio (4-1-22); Larry Laub, San Francisco (10-23-22); Gary Mage, Seattle (3-13-22); Barry Asher, Los Angeles (1-19-22).

Anthony, meanwhile, continues moving up the lifetime earnings ladder. Thanks to the $107,960 he earned last year on the PBA tour, the ABC tournament and the National Bowling Council Spectacular, he is in fifth place and setting his sights on Don Johnson in second place.

Dick Weber is far and away the leader with nearly $600,000 but at the relative paces Johnson and Anthony have been going, Anthony could move into second place in two years. He already has passed up Carmen Salvo and moved into fourth place after four weeks of the PBA winter tour this year, but the chart below is based on earnings through Dec. 31, 1975.

A couple of highlights since the last ratings were Sis Balash's 267, highest single of the season, and a 632 series, her fourth 600 set of the season. The triple put her in third place behind Joan Jameson (645) and Barb VanKeuren (636).

James Gibson of the Country Squires in Woodstock made the news in the men's division with a 713 series that landed him in third place in the Top Ten. Bob (Tall) Smith owns the two top series of 730 and 716.

It takes at least 270 to get on the KWBA's all-time singles rating. According to Freeman records, Marion Sanford is on top with 290. Sue Heins has 289 and three bowlers are tied with 288's — Joan Jameson, Beverly Port and Pat Ausanio.

Balancing Act

Kingston High School basketball player Brian Armstrong (22) displays fine form as he drives towards basket during last week's KHS win at Saugerties. The only problem is that Sawyer Steve Schaffer is in the way and Armstrong is about to be called for charging. The Tigers, back in a tie for first place in the DCSL, are at rington Friday. Saugerties goes to Ketcham, the only team it has beaten this season. (Freeman photo by Carey)

OCS Skiers Register Sweep

HIGHMOUNT
Onteora High School skiers are in high gear as the Section Nine competition approaches. Coach Joel Tomson's undefeated Indian squads overwhelmed Windham High in dual meets Tuesday over a demanding Highmount slalom layout. The visitors could not field sufficient entries for an official score.

Tony Sears won the boys event in the brilliant time of 29.90, as Onteora swept the first six places and eight of the top ten. Jeff Viglielmo survived a nasty spill to claim tenth place. The boys are now 8-0 in the UCAL and 10-0 overall. A win over Rondout on Feb. 17 would give them the boys title.

The Onteora girls, who already have clinched the conference championship, also had an easy time. Ellen Sheehan led the field in 33.36 seconds. Onteora won seven of the top ten places, including the first five.

Huguenot Boxers Advance

NEW PALTZ

Alfie Bevier, a Town of Rosendale employee, stopped Richard Ramirez, unattached, in the third round of the 160-pound sub-novice division.

160-pound sub-novice and in the same weight class and division Jimmy Dorsey, an Ellenville High School senior, scored a technical knockout over Joseph Ruiz of the New York Recreation Club in the third round.

Eugene Cope of the Lower East Side Boxing Club decided Rick Amundson of New Paltz in the sub-novice 160 pound class.

Jeff Schott, of New Paltz State College, gave the Huguenot Club its first victory several days ago by winning his 135 pound sub-novice bout by technical knockout in the second round.

Four Huguenot Club boxers in the Open division have yet to make their debut. The list includes Jim Longo, Brian Hurley, James Branch and Joe LaForte.

Tarkington Into TV

NEW YORK (UPI) — Minnesota Vikings' quarterback Fran Tarkenton, a 15-year pro veteran, has signed a multi-year contract to be a sports reporter for the National Broadcasting Co., the network announced Wednesday.

A t a news conference, Tarkenton, 36, refused to disclose the exact length of the contract or his salary. But he said his contract would not immediately end his playing career.

"I'm going to ask them (the Vikings) to let me play for a

Liberty Holds 2nd

KINGSTON
Liberty High got this close to becoming the No. 1 small school basketball team in New York State this week when top-ranked Kendall nearly lost to Barker. But the leaders survived, 57-56, and held on to its position ahead of the No. 2 Redskins in the State Sports Writers poll.

Babylon, Long Island, meanwhile, won its 13th straight to stay No. 1 large school.

Double Vision No Ban To Tar Heels' Center

By UPI

Double vision didn't prevent North Carolina's towering center Mitch Kupchak from scoring in double figures while leading the third ranked Tar Heels to an impressive 81-66 triumph over their fourth-ranked Atlantic Coast Conference rival Maryland Wednesday night.

Kupchak, bothered all week during practice by an eye injury that affected his sight, also pulled down 13 rebounds in leading North Carolina to the victory on the Terps' home court.

Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith said in jest after the victory which boosted his team to a 19-2 record:

"Maybe Mitch should keep the double vision if he plays that well. I think we played our best game of the season considering the quality of the competition and the place we played."

The loss dropped Maryland to 17-4 mark and ended any prospects of the Terps' winning the ACC title in regular season competition. However the conference post-season tournament gives Maryland one last chance for revenge over the North Carolina team which has beaten it twice this year.

Maryland's All-America, John Lucas, said: "I think the tournament will be in our favor. We'll know we can't lose to stay alive. I ain't quitting."

Kupchak's teammates, Phil Ford and Walter Davis scored 20 and 19 points to help the North Carolina offensive surge.

The Tar Heels momentarily built a 13-point margin and then switched to their four-corner slowdown offense to preserve the win. Fouls to break the four-corner eliminated Maryland's two key guards, Brad Davis and Mo Howard, even though the Terps cut the margin to 73-67 with 1:08 remaining.

In another ACC game involving a nationally-ranked team, 15th-rated North Carolina State, which will likely vie with Maryland for the league's other NCAA berth, squeezed past surprisingly strong North Carolina-Charlotte 67-64.

Karen McCullough captured Kingston's lone first place with a 5.6 rating in the balance beam where Jeanne Grogan was second with 5.1. Barb Shaw of Kingston finished third in the uneven bars.

Wilcox Paces PBA Tourney

BALTIMORE (UPI) — John Wilcox of Montoursville, Pa., charged into the lead after 12 games of the qualifying rounds Wednesday night in the $70,000 Fairlanes Open stop on the Professional Bowler's Association tour.

Wilcox, whose 1,229 total after six games wasn't even among the top 24 leaders, averaged 229 pins in his second six-game session for a 1,375 score and 2,604 total.

Mark Roth of Staten Island, N.Y., who led in the early round with a 1,319 score, dropped 67 pins off the pace into second with a 2,537. He averaged 211 after 12 games. Jim Ragnoni of Elyria, Ohio, second after six games, slumped to 17th with a 2,461.

The final six games of the qualifying round continues Thursday with the 24 highest scorers competing Thursday night in the beginning of the match game finals.

Wilcox, who has one PBA title to his credit, rolled off games of 244, 193, 237, 246, 210 and 245 after switching to a harder ball to keep from hooking with his delivery.

Saugerties LL

Saugerties Little League holds an organizational meeting for the 1976 season Sunday, Feb. 15, at 6 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Barclay Heights. All persons interested in managing, coaching or umpiring are invited.

Kenny Carr led the Wolfpack with 22 points including 17 in the first half. Free throws by Glenn Sudhop and Craig Davis, however, decided the game.

Tenth-ranked Notre Dame had a much easier time with Villanova, putting the Wildcats away 84-57 behind 18 points from Adrian Dantley, 15 from Don Williams and 14 by Billy Paterno. The win lifted the Irish's record to 16-4.

No. 13 Missouri also won and in the process climbed into sole possession of first place in the Big Eight. The Tigers edged Oklahoma State 72-71 when Willie Smith hit a driving layup with 12 seconds to go. Smith finished with 21 points while Jim Kennedy added 19 for Missouri, which gained the Big Eight lead when Nebraska was upended 65-60 at Oklahoma.

In the only other game involving a ranked team, unbeaten Western Michigan remained that way, defeating Eastern Michigan 85-73. Jimmie Harvey scored 21 points for the 17th-ranked Broncos, who are now 19-0.

Flames Look Past Toronto to Rangers

The Atlanta Flames were the winners, the Toronto Maple Leafs were the losers but Atlanta goalie Dan Bouchard's thoughts were on the New York Rangers.

"For every game we win from now on, the Rangers will have to win two," said Bouchard Wednesday night after the Flames whipped Toronto 5-2 to move 14 points ahead of the Rangers in the battle for the final playoff spot in the Patrick Division.

Bouchard said the Flames were steamed over a quote attributed to Ranger Coach John Ferguson.

"He said this club does not have enough winners to be in the playoffs," he said. "So we've got something to prove."

I'm sure these guys are going to show him that we have enough winners to beat his team."

While Bouchard was thinking of Ferguson, Toronto Coach Red Kelly was sizzling about two great saves made by the Atlanta goalie.

"He made those saves on (Jack) Valliquette and (Darryl) Sittler. Two breakaways with the score 3-2. He made the saves, we didn't score, and that's the game right there."

Both players came in alone on Bouchard but they were unable to get him to move until they shot.

"In Toronto, they scored two on me on breakaways," Bouchard said. "On both of them I had contact with the puck but it went in. So I guess it's the law of averages. Some nights they go in and some nights they don't."

Curt Bennett and Tim Ecclestone scored goals in the final minute after Toronto goaltender Wayne Thomas had been pulled in favor of an extra skater to pace Atlanta past the Leafs. The Flames had built a 3-2 lead on goals by Larry Carriere, Hilliard Graves and Dave Kryskow.

In other NHL action, Boston beat Minnesota 5-2, Los Angeles whipped Chicago 7-4, Buffalo tripped Detroit 4-2 and Pittsburgh tied California 4-4.

In the World Hockey Association, Cleveland dropped Cincinnati 4-2, Indianapolis

Bruins 5, North Stars 2
Bob Schmautz scored two crucial second period goals and Jean Ratelle and Brad Park had three assists each to lead Boston past Minnesota. Schmautz' first goal at 14:37 of the second period lifted the Bruins to a 2-2 tie and his other goal, with only 33 seconds left in the period, was all Boston needed.

Sabres 4, Red Wings 2
Fred Stanfield, who has seen only spot duty most of the year, scored midway through the third period to give Buffalo a 3-1 lead and the momentum to slip past Detroit. The Wings, outshot 52-27, cut the deficit to 3-2 on a goal by Bill Hogaboam but the Sabres iced the game with an empty net goal by Don Luce.

Penguins 4, Seals 4
Ron Schock deflected in the tying goal with 15 seconds left to earn Pittsburgh its tie with California. The Seals had taken a 4-3 lead with nine minutes left on Fred Ahern's goal.

WHA
Russ Walker scored two first period goals as Cleveland beat Cincinnati to pull within four points of East leader New England ... Rookie goalie Michel Dion, celebrating his 22nd birthday, shut out Phoenix over the last two periods to lead Indianapolis to victory ...

Authorities said Mrs. Dippel lost control of her car, which was traveling on Route 32, and the vehicle ran off the roadway and slammed into a tree. Mrs. Dippel's four-year-old daughter, Patricia, sustained only minor injuries in the crash.

Walasky's body was found in his apartment Wednesday by Kingston police after neighbors became concerned when he had not been seen for several days. Authorities said Walasky sustained a bullet wound to the head from a .38 caliber pistol. Walasky had last been seen on Sunday, authorities said.

There were no injuries in either fire.

Fires Wednesday afternoon extensively damaged two homes in Accord and Mt. Marion. Both fires were of undetermined origin.

Red Dye Ban Is Enforced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thanks to an appeals court ruling, the Food and Drug Administration today began enforcing its ban on the use of Red Dye No. 2, the nation's most widely used food coloring.

The U.S. Court of Appeals Wednesday lifted a temporary stay against enforcement of the ban but said it will hold a full hearing April 15 on an appeal by food and drug manufacturers.

The FDA had ordered an end to any further manufacture of food or drug products using the dye, because of unresolved safety questions, including the possibility it can cause cancer.

Nothing Like a Shovel

A crew of Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad maintenance workers prove there's no substitute for a shovel as they clear the tracks behind an impacted snow plow. The plow, pushed by two locomotives, became stuck in 6-foot drifts north of this upper Thumb farming community of Kinde, Mich. An additional locomotive and a crew of men were called to free the stranded railroad equipment. (UPI)

'Mr. X' Order to Nadjari

NEW YORK (UPI) — Special state prosecutor Maurice Nadjari, who announced the indictment of a Bronx judge Wednesday, has been ordered to show why a prospective witness, known only as "Mr. X," should appear before a grand jury.

Supreme Court Justice Leonard Sandier Wednesday ordered Nadjari to justify his order for "Mr. X" to testify before the grand jury investigating judicial corruption.

The show cause order followed the announcement of Nadjari's charges against State Court of Claims Judge Adolph C. Orlando, 55, who was indicted for his testimony before the Temporary State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

This 'Pied-A-Terre' Too Much for GM Heir

NEW YORK (UPI) — A midtown penthouse so costly that a General Motors heir couldn't afford it, went on sale Wednesday for $3.5 million, not including electricity.

Described as "the world's most expensive penthouse, it's a condominium quadruplex atop 'The Galleria,' a 54-story glass and steel apartment house at 117 East 57th Street where the brochure said rich executives keep a 'pied-terre.' For the uncouth, that's an apartment in town for 'socializing.'"

Edwin Glickman, a partner in Madison Equities, the developer of the building, said the penthouse originally was designed for Stewart Mott, the General Motors heir who dabbles in bankrolling liberal politicians.

However, Mott began to quibble when the asking price rose from $1.2 million to $3.5 million with monthly maintenance charges of about $3,000, electricity not included.

Grant Wants Out

NEW YORK (UPI) — W.T. Grant Co., the country's third largest variety store chain, is more than $1 billion in debt and wants to go out of business.

Attorneys for the 70-year-old firm asked a federal bankruptcy court Wednesday to declare Grant bankrupt — a move that would make it the biggest retail business failure in U.S. history.

In size among variety chains, Grant ranks behind only F.W. Woolworth and S.S. Kresge.

But at the hearing, attorneys for Grant and its 11 major bank and trade creditors listed the firm's debts at $1.1 billion and presented a resolution in which they agreed it would be virtually hopeless to continue trying to reorganize the chain.

Federal Bankruptcy Judge John Galgay said he needed more information "as to the viability of W.T. Grant's future" and ordered the hearing continued today.

Grant filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition Oct. 2 in an effort to remain in business while it tried to reorganize and repay its debts.

Crime Figure Slain on Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joseph Barboza Baron, a onetime "hit-man" who broke the underworld's code of silence and turned informer, was killed by a shotgun blast Wednesday night as he left a friend's home in a quiet residential neighborhood.

Barboza, 44, who legally changed his name to Baron, was a self-confessed loan shark and killer who informed on organized crime figures in New England eight years ago. Police said Barboza was walking to his car when a blast from a shotgun was fired from a white van that was seen speeding from the scene.

The victim was once defended by attorney F. Lee Bailey, who is in San Francisco to head the Patricia Hearst defense team.

"He told me he killed 26 people," Bailey said. "With all due respect to my former client, I don't think society has suffered a great loss."

Bailey said he doubted the killing was the work of organized crime.

"It wouldn't serve them any useful purpose. I think the police have a real job on their hands with so many people on the street who wanted him dead."

Marlow Appointment Questioned

By Carl Graham

BOICEVILLE
The Ontario Board of Education Wednesday night heard the fourth of seven charges against Dr. Frank Marlow in its attempt to remove him from his superintendent's post.

S. James Matthews, the board's special attorney for the hearing, called no witnesses, relying on documentary evidence instead to establish that Marlow had recommended the appointment of Diego Morra as head high school custodian at Civil Service Grade 14, that the post called for Grade 15 pay, and that this violated Civil Service Law and the district's agreement with the Ontario Non-Teaching Employees Association (ONTEA).

Morra was appointed July 1, 1973. The board maintains it was not aware that he was being paid improperly until November 1974, when Marlow recommended he be raised to Grade 15 for outstanding work. The board later raised Morra to Grade 15 and gave him retroactive pay.

Joseph Hill, Marlow's attorney, called board member

Sam Mercer to the stand. Mercer said he did not recall a board workshop session at which Marlow had discussed the custodian situation and said he had not received any written explanation prior to the meeting at which Morra was appointed. He admitted criticizing Marlow for recommending Morra for Grade 14 status and said he had not disagreed with Marlow's recommendation to raise Morra to Grade 15.

Matthews, cross-examining Mercer, established that Marlow's recommendation to raise Morra had come after Mercer had criticized him at a board workshop session.

"Is it possible that if you had not criticized Dr. Marlow he would not have recommended raising Morra to Grade 15?" Matthews asked. Hill objected that the question was "pure speculation" and Matthews withdrew it.

Marlow took the stand and under questioning by Hill said he did not intentionally violate the Civil Service Law in recommending Morra for Grade 14 and later for Grade 15, and that he first heard the appointment might be a violation when served with the charges by the board. He said the Ulster County Civil Service Commission only expressed concern over Morra's lack of seniority and that all other custodians had waived seniority rights to the post.

Under cross-examination by Matthews, Marlow said the personnel report to the commission listed Morra as a custodian and Arthur Gribbin, the man he replaced, as a head custodian.

"So that is why the commission had no objections to Morra being appointed to Grade 14 instead of 15?" Matthews asked.

Matthews asked, "That's possible," Marlow replied.

Marlow said he recommended Morra for Grade 14 because he did not have as much experience as Gribbin and needed more supervision, "so it was two different jobs."

Earlier, Marlow had criticized board members for bringing up the Morra question at a public meeting instead of discussing it at a prior workshop session. He said he had not received any complaints prior to the public meeting, "then we had some grandstanding."

LWV Survey Favors Modified Merger

SAUGERTIES

Should Saugerties follow the lead of several other towns in the state and merge its village and town governments?

Saugerties League of Women Voters has been exploring the pros and cons of not only a complete merger but an alternative merger of certain services such as police and assessment of properties.

The study has taken several months and results of the exploration were open to discussion Wednesday night at a meeting at Sawyer Savings Bank.

A consensus of the study committee revealed that "it would be extremely involved to bring about a complete consolidation." But, the general feeling of the committee was that in certain areas economies could be effected through a combination of services.

A number of league members also suggested that both the town and village would perhaps benefit most in that mergers might help eliminate friction that reportedly exists between the two governments. Problems might be more easily solved under one government, it was suggested. Mary Messina said she felt it might be helpful in the process of filing for state or federal aid and that moving forward on projects "would not be contingent on personalities."

Frances Bailey, chairman of the committee moderated the panel discussion and said that after further discussion, the committee will make its findings known to the entire league membership.

Laws governing consolidation were explained by Betty Ohno who said the decision to put a merger proposal to a vote, lies with the village.

Just recently the Village of Rosendale took steps toward dissolution, which will be on the March ballot.

Mrs. Ohno also pointed out that free consultation on dissolution and consolidation are available from the state and that both village and town governments may apply for such service.

Data on complete mergers in Prattsburgh and Fort Covington in New York State was supplied by Eleanor Redder. In the case of Fort Covington, the merger was of benefit to village taxpayers whose taxes were reduced by about 50 per cent. But, town taxes, in the same area increased about 30 per cent.

Prattsburgh reports that as yet economic advantages have not been immediately realized and "very few other advantages" have been found.

It was pointed out that a partial merger in New Paltz has been completed with police forces consolidated. The Town and Village of Catskill voted down a consolidation in a public referendum. Professional consultants had recommended that the town join the village, predicting that the savings to the village would be 50 per cent and to the town, 30 per cent.

A comparison of the Town and Village of Saugerties budgets was made by Mary Finger who suggested that a merger might bring about savings in the highway departments, assessor's office, town and village justice offices and parks, buildings and recreation.

The advantages of merging the police departments were pointed out by Sandra Thorpe. She said that in interviews with the Saugerties police chiefs she found that the town chief thinks a merger is inevitable and looks forward to it, while the village chief said there is no need to merge.

Trudy Lee, president of the Saugerties league, presided at the meeting.

Dumping Discussed in Ulster

TOWN OF ULSTER

In a move to "put some teeth" in regulations regarding dumping at the Town of Ulster landfill, the town board voted Wednesday night to hold an informational meeting on a proposed new local law which would make dumping by outsiders a misdemeanor.

In recent months there have been complaints about non-residents, including Spada Trucking which hauls City of Kingston garbage, using the Ulster dump site.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino said the proposed law has been under study for 10 months and is ready to be aired at a hearing, Thursday, Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in Town Hall.

The board also voted down a proposal of Victor Patience to enter into a rent subsidy program under the federal Department of Housing and Development. Patience is a landlord, owning a number of properties in the Whittier Development. He asked the town to seek HUD's permission to act as an authority for the administration of funds. Under the program, the federal government pays 75 per cent and the renter, 25 per cent.

Sabino said he has not received enough inquiries nor has the general public expressed an interest in the proposal. He said he also objects to allowing persons in the area who cannot meet the financial requirements of the housing development and, he feels that to do so would encourage sub-standard housing conditions.

The board approved an application to apply for a building permit, made by Peter Zeeh, the principal party in the Racquet Club which plans to build a facility off Brabrand Road. The site plan has already received the approval of the Health Department of Environmental Conservation.

Problems in the constabulary were discussed with the board agreeing to meet with its advisors on police matters, Friday at 4 p.m. Plans are underway to interview candidates for the post of chief constable. The board agreed that administrative changes are in order.

Authorization was given for the hiring of the firm of Brinnier and Larios to do a feasibility study for the proposed Halcyon Park Water District. The present water company, owned by John Fredericks Inc., is up for sale and Halcyon residents have asked the town to take it over.

Six property owners petitioned the town board to have the highway department maintain a private road off Bogert's Lane. Superintendent of Highways Robert Mitchell agreed, as did the town board, if the State Department of Transportation agrees with its findings. The road, which has been maintained by the town for at least 10 years, may become a town road by virtue of its having been used as such.

The town will sponsor its first free bus trip to Highmount Ski Center for school age youngsters. The excursion will be held Feb. 28. The first 40 to register will be accepted. Participants must pay their own skiing fee.

'A Land of Opportunity' . . .

POUGHKEEPSIE

An official with Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress has described the Hudson Valley as "a land of opportunity" for future industrial development.

In a recent speech to members of the New York Society of Industrial Realtors, Arthur E. Weintraub, Pattern's senior vice-president, described the Mid-Hudson Valley as a "logical target for new industrial expansion to serve a wide range of markets." He mentioned a number of assets that make the valley attractive to firms seeking to expand or relocate their facilities.

Specifically, Weintraub cited the region's extensive network of high-speed expressways, which have "already made the Mid-Hudson attractive to various trucking and distribution operations." In addition, he pointed to the Hudson River's navigable deepwater channel, the area's numerous freight and passenger rail lines and growing commuter bus operations.

To indicate the region's attractiveness, Weintraub noted that Ulster, Dutchess and Orange Counties have experienced steady growth despite a lagging economy.

In addition, the Pattern official discussed several public improvement projects in the Mid-Hudson region that point to continued future expansion, such as the second span for the Newburgh-Beacon bridge, the expansion of facilities at Stewart Airport, the possible establishment of a "foreign trade zone" and the construction of arterial connector roads in Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Beacon.

Several power plant developments are also being contemplated for the Mid-Hudson Region, said Weintraub, and several commuter rail improvement studies are underway.

"Mid-Hudson communities," he said, "can soon expect a variety of important job producing public works programs to get underway."

"We also have a large labor pool, and housing at more reasonable prices than one will generally find elsewhere in the metropolitan area," he added. "So we're not just a land of apple orchards, farms and vacation spots."

Weintraub told the engineers that many of the cities and towns in the Mid-Hudson region "have excellent industrial sites available" and that public and quasi-public agencies are available to offer assistance to potential developers.

The New York Society of Industrial Realtors is comprised of industrial real estate specialists, who counsel their clients on where to locate new manufacturing plant facilities.

Pattern for Progress is a private, non-profit planning agency that is supported by many of the large industries in the Mid-Hudson region.

Dollar Declines Gold Up

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI)—Amid speculative pressures creating turmoil among European currencies, the dollar dropped on all exchange markets Wednesday and hit seven month lows in Frankfurt and Zurich.

Gold closed higher. It advanced from $129.37 to $130.87 in Zurich and from $129.50 to $130.75 in London.

French government officials disclosed that the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank Tuesday joined France and West Germany in trying to ease speculative pressures on the Deutschmark and French franc by selling off "not negligible" amounts of the German currency.

The current monetary turmoil is the result of heavy purchases of marks by operators trying to drive up its value and thereby forcing its revaluation, while at the same time speculative pressures are driving down the French franc, along with Sterling and the Italian lira.

The dollar closed in Paris at 4.4545 francs, its lowest since Jan. 8 and down from Tuesday's 4.4705, and in Amsterdam it hit a 13-week low when it declined from 2.66 guilders to 2.65. In Brussels it was down from 40.75 francs to 40.45.

Sterling advanced against the dollar for the first time in a week. The pound was up from $2.0275 to $2.0300.

Those Jobless

'Headlines'

Don't Apply

By Tim Schuster

KINGSTON
If you are confused by the seemingly conflicting unemployment picture painted first in rosy hues, then in depressing gray, you are not alone.

While federal statistics enthuse over gains in employment ("Jobless Decline Biggest Since '69" headlined a recent Freeman) and state figures play it a bit more cautiously ("Jobless Claim Dip"), the unemployment statistics issued from the Kingston office of the New York State Unemployment Division have trailed far behind in their optimism.

The employment picture in Ulster County had not improved over the last year, and even if it did make gargantuan leaps toward full employment the area would still lag behind the rest of economically depressed New York State and far behind the nation as a whole.

The Freeman spoke with Dave Nyhan, New York State Department of Labor analyst for the Albany District of the state, including Ulster. "Those headlines from Washington do not apply here," he said.

First, here are some statistics from sources indicated. Then, an explanation of how they are compiled and related.

From Kingston: the number of people receiving unemployment checks has remained essentially unchanged since it shot up to 6,422 the week ending Jan. 2, 1976. For ensuing weeks figures are: Jan. 9, 6,624; Jan. 16, 6,417; Jan. 23, 6,367; Jan. 30, 6,243; and Feb. 7, 6,376.

"It's staying constant," assessed a division spokesman. Asked about the U.S. Labor Department's Feb. 6 announcement that the national jobless rate fell from 8.3 per cent in December to 7.8 per cent in January, he added, "They're talking about 450,000 jobs nationwide. Eventually, if the economy improves, it may show up in Ulster County." Even so, that optimistic federal story pointed out that these were almost all people rehired after being laid off . . . the hardcore unemployed remained so.

From Albany: the state unemployment rate as of the end of December, the most recent available, was 10.23 per cent, not considered desirable under any interpretation. This translated to more than 780,000 people "able and willing to work" without jobs statewide.

An analysis of Ulster County as of Dec. 1975 (it has not changed appreciably in either direction since then) found the state computed unemployment rate to be 11.2 per cent here. This compared to the national figure of 7.8 per cent (which went up and then down, hence the headlines) and the state's 10.2. The Poughkeepsie metropolitan area, incidentally, has remained the most highly employed section of the state. It had six per cent unemployed. New York City's unemployment rate was 11.2 per cent.

The state figures that Ulster County's labor force is about 65,200 people, out of a total county population near 145,000. Of that number, 57,900 were employed and 7,300 considered unemployed. This compared to Dec., 1974 when 5,600 were not employed; the rate was 8.7 per cent.

In what areas have we lost or gained jobs in Ulster? Using Dec., 1974 as a base figure, by Dec. 1975 the county had lost 1,000 factory jobs (from 13,000 to 12,000) some 800 in durable goods and 200 non-durable goods such as food and clothing.

In the non-manufacturing area, employment increased by 300 jobs to 32,700. The gains are in trade (up 500 from 9,600 to 10,100) and service occupations (up 500 from 7,400 to 7,900). There were 100 construction jobs gone (down to 1,400) and a "slight loss in local government," Nyhan said.

Ulster Picture Not Improved

He said there is a general rule of thumb that may help the average newspaper reader determine the jobless rate: those receiving unemployment benefit checks consist of about 50 per cent of those ultimately determined to be considered unemployed.

Two points basic to understanding the implications of jobless statistics from Albany and from Washington, D.C. must be remembered when trying to decide on their local application — county figures are incorporated into state, but not federal, estimates; and federal figures are "seasonally adjusted," while state figures are not.

Explained Nyhan, federal estimates are the result of a random sample of households taking a valid sample, and projecting this information on to the economy. Sophisticated to include various categories such as perhaps blacks, females, college graduates, or high school students, it basically is run like the Neilson ratings for television.

New York State uses the "building block" method, starting with unemployment benefit figures from local offices, adding those who have exhausted benefits, adding unemployed not covered by insurance such as agricultural or local government, adding a large section of new labor force entries such as youth, and applying some federal estimate procedures. Thus, federal figures are publicized at least a month ahead of state figures.

"Seasonal adjustment" by federal agencies eliminates peaks and troughs in the labor market caused by seasonal jobs in an attempt to discover the real economic trend beneath.

State agencies lump seasonal jobs in with everything else, making for more dramatic statistics at times, and usually offer an explanation to that effect. Higher unemployment is expected in this area during the winter.

UPI DATELINE

Disease Guatemala Threat

SAN MARTIN JILOTEPEQUE, Guatemala — Authorities have ordered stray dogs shot on sight to avoid the spread of disease from animals dragging corpses out of cemetery crypts broken open by last week's earthquake.

Doctors and rescue officials said Wednesday they plan to move an emergency tent hospital away from the outskirts of town, because it is so close to the shattered cemetery.

The threat of disease only added to the misery of this small village 60 miles northwest of Guatemala City, one of only two in which not a single house was left standing after last Wednesday's earthquake that has killed an estimated 18,851 persons.

FTC Hits Automakers

SEATTLE — The Federal Trade Commission has accused the nation's three large automobile makers of earning $2 million to $4 million a year profit off repossessed cars at the expense of the consumers who lost them.

In Detroit, spokesmen for Ford, General Motors and Chrysler denied the charges filed in complaints by the FTC.

Thomas C. Armitage, acting regional director for the commission in Seattle, said at a news conference Wednesday that laws in all 50 states require any profits from the sale of repossessions go to persons who lost the cars.

Revenge Bombing Feared

LONDON — Irish Republican Army hunger striker Frank Stagg died in Wakefield prison today and British authorities ordered stepped up security to counter a threatened bombing "holocaust" in revenge.

Stagg, 34, refused food for 61 days to press his demands for a transfer to a Northern Ireland jail to serve out a 10-year sentence for conspiracy to commit arson and criminal damage in England.

Reds Continue Conquests

LUANDA — Soviet-supplied troops in Angola claim they have captured the pro-Western military headquarters of Silva Porto, seizing control of large stretches of the vital Benguela railroad.

The capture, announced Wednesday in a broadcast from Marxist-held Luanda, followed seizure of the pro-Western capital of Huambo.

Premier Doubles Up

ROME — Italy's new government took the oath of office today with Premier Aldo Moro taking a second post as interim interior minister, a job rejected two hours earlier by Defense Minister Arnaldo Forlani.

Forlani said in a statement he had for "political and technical" reasons refused the interior ministry post, also declined by a former cabinet member implicated in a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. scandal.

STONE RIDGE

In 1971, concerned Stone Ridge residents warned that strip-mining operations along the Esopus Creek posed a serious threat to the town's idyllic creek-side recreation park.

It now appears that they may have been right.

Last week, the raging waters of the Esopus Creek broke through a 10-foot natural dike and flooded a large gravel pit opposite the park. The stream has since cut a new channel through the mining pit, leaving the original creek bed high and dry. As a result, the water level at the park's beach a few feet upstream has dropped an estimated five feet.

"It's ruined," said William Suepfle, the town's former recreation director, as he stood on the stream bank watching the churning waters swirl into the gravel pits. "It's ruined, and it didn't have to happen."

Suepfle was the man in the middle of a heated dispute almost five years ago, when Hurley Sand and Gravel Co. extended its strip mining operations perilously close to the stream bank. When one of the company's bulldozers actually uprooted several trees along the stream's edge, Suepfle, and others, exploded.

What followed was several weeks of charges and denials, threatened lawsuits, stormy meetings and, finally, compromise. Suepfle, at one point, urged the town to protect its park and beach by purchasing a strip of land along the far side of the stream. The town declined. Eventually, Hurley Sand and Gravel agreed to maintain a 10-foot wide "buffer zone" between its mining operations and the stream. Suepfle argued that it wasn't enough.

A 150-foot strip of that buffer zone (approximately half) has now been washed away. Without it, the stream can't possibly return to its original course.

"It would cost a fortune to restore that dike," said Suepfle. "I don't think Hurley Sand and Gravel has enough money to do it. I don't think the town has enough to do it."

Town of Marbletown Supervisor Kenneth Smith says he doesn't know what can be done. He said Monday he was informed of the problem over the weekend, but hadn't had a chance to personally survey the damage.

What caused the break in the dike? Smith placed part of the blame on the New York City Board of Water Resources, which maintains the Ashokan Reservoir and controls the flow of water from the reservoir to the Lower Esopus. He suggested that the city could have managed its releases more carefully, thereby lessening the impact of the heavy rains that fell in late January. Could the damage have been prevented completely? "I don't see how," said Smith. "It was an act of God."

Smith said he doesn't blame Hurley Sand and Gravel for the incident. "To the best of my knowledge," he said, "they adhered to the agreement to maintain the buffer zone."

Suepfle, however, disputes that. He claims the 10-foot buffer was not adequate; that it was inevitable that the dike would give way.

The supervisor added that he has been in contact with George Danskin of the Department of Environmental Conservation in New Paltz, who promised to investigate and report back to the town. Danskin said Wednesday that he has been out of town and hasn't had a chance to inspect the site; others at the DEC office in New Paltz said they don't know anything about the flood damage.

For Suepfle, the real tragedy is the effect the flood waters have had on the town's beach. With the creek now flowing into a small lake that covers the gravel pits, the water level at the beach has fallen drastically. With an even lighter flow in the summer, says Suepfle, the beach and swimming area won't be fit for use.

Marbletown Beach Is Victim

Victory for Hearst Prosecutor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —

The prosecution in Patricia Hearst's trial, bolstered by a judge's ruling that she "voluntarily" confessed to a bank robbery, has just about wrapped up its case against the newspaper heiress.

Prosecutor James Browning said he had only four or five more witnesses and expected to rest his case by Friday at the latest.

He won a major victory when U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter decided Wednesday the prosecution could present evidence about events after the April 15, 1974, bank hold-up — including a Los Angeles shooting and kidnaping and taped and written confessions made by the defendant.

"The motion to suppress is denied," said Carter. "The court finds that by a preponderance of evidence the government has established that statements of the defendant

after the bank robbery were made voluntarily."

Miss Hearst had testified she was forced to make the statements after being raped, beaten and threatened with death "hundreds of times" by her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers. She grimaced when the judge announced his decision.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey indicated the ruling probably will force him to put Miss Hearst back on the stand in front of the jury to tell about her 19 months in captivity.

She testified Monday she acted out of fear of both her captors and the FBI.

The jury of seven women and five men, who had spent only a half hour in court all week, returned after Carter's ruling and heard two men repeat their stories about the shootout and kidnaping in Los Angeles May 16, 1974.

When they finished, Browning had put all his major witnesses on the stand. He spent two days last week using a surveillance film and 19 witnesses to show Miss Hearst was in the Hibernia Bank with a carbine in her hand during the robbery.

The two witnesses to the Los Angeles incidents — Thomas Matthews and Anthony Shepard — returned to the stand Wednesday to describe Miss Hearst's blasting of a sporting goods store with automatic weapons fire and her admissions about the bank robbery to another kidnap victim.

Matthews was abducted by SLA members William and Emily Harris.

Lee Cobb, Actor, Dead at 64

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gravel voiced actor Lee J. Cobb who created the role of Willy Loman in Death of a Salesman on Broadway and played the brawling union leader in the movie On the Waterfront, died of a heart attack Wednesday at age 64.

Paramedics called to his San Fernando Valley home said he was dead when they arrived. Cobb gained stature on Broadway then moved into movies and was regarded as a top actor in both. But he became known to millions because of his role as Judge Garth in the television series, The Virginian.

He brought power and authority to all roles. He was outstanding as the tough union boss against Marlon Brando's longshoreman in On the Waterfront, which won Brando an Academy Award.

In 1949 he became the first actor to play Willy Loman in Arthur Miller's classic Death of a Salesman. His portrayal won him the New York Critics Award and the Donaldson Award.

He got his first Broadway break in 1935 in a role in Crime and Punishment because he looked older than 24, an advantage he carried through his 20s and 30s, often landing roles calling for older men.

His stage appearances included critically praised performances in Waiting for Lefty and the classic Golden Boy. He came to Hollywood to appear in the film version of Golden Boy and later appeared in movies such as Captain from Castille and Call Northside 777. Recent movies included The Exorcist and The Brothers Karamazov.

HHH Ads Give Push

By UPI

Although Hubert Humphrey insists he isn't a candidate for president, Democrats in New Hampshire are being urged on radio spots to write in his name in the nation's first primary this month.

Ronald Reagan campaigned in New Hampshire with Gov. Meldrum Thomson who said the Republican contender "has God on his side." President Ford, who plans another trip to New Hampshire before the Feb. 24 primary, flies Friday to Florida for his first swing across a Southern primary state.

The Humphreys ads, sponsored by a committee of New Hampshire residents, air a tape in which the Minnesota senator says he would "go out and win if the party turns to him. Humphrey has disavowed the write-in effort.

Ford will spend two days stumping Florida. He was arranging his White House schedule so he could campaign on weekends and was being urged to set aside the following weekend for a New Hampshire trip.

Dayan Boasts A-Bombs

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan says Israel has the capacity to deliver atomic bombs on enemy targets.

We must keep the atomic option without depending on the United States," he told a public meeting Wednesday night.

Dayan said Israel needs Pershing missiles from the United States but only to counter Soviet supplied Scud and Frog missiles used by the armies of neighboring Arab states.

"We do not need the Pershing to install an atomic warhead and whoever says so is misleading," Dayan said.

"An atom bomb can be dropped from an aircraft. We need the Pershing only as an answer to the Frog and Scud in the hands of Syria and Egypt."

If they won't give us the Pershing no matter — we can produce it ourselves," Dayan said.

Lockheed Case Triggers Quiz

Those Slush Funds Targets of IRS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service is ordering its tax agents to question past and present officers of major corporations in an effort to uncover slush fund activities such as those committed by Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

"Our people are going to go beyond the books," chief IRS spokesman A. James Golato told UPI Wednesday.

Agents have been told to question corporate officials who might have been involved in high sales commissions, agents fees and questionable payments to secure contracts.

IRS also said its office of international operations will be called on for more assistance in auditing accounts of multinational corporations. This will mean closer contact with foreign tax agents and relaying intelligence from overseas about bribes or other "influence" payments.

The more vigorous IRS effort was ordered by President Ford after disclosures of bribes and illegal payments in the overseas operations of Lockheed and other corporations.

Ford condemned the payment of bribes overseas by U.S. firms and said a cabinet-level committee may be appointed to review deterrents including the loss of federal contracts.

Lockheed and nine other corporations among the nation's top 20 defense contractors have been convicted of, charged with or admitted making questionable payments overseas.

The Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations Wednesday identified a man named Sternberg as a Swedish Air Force officer who received a commission from Lockheed, but said there was "nothing improper" in his doing so.

The subcommittee agreed with him.

It released a previously unavailable Lockheed memo of Dec. 10, 1974, between two executives, J.C. Marty and Robert Hanson, discussing Lockheed's arrangements with Sternberg. The Swedish government provided the panel with the memo, in which Hanson tells Marty that commissions are involved in every purchase of equipment the Royal Swedish Air Force makes from foreign firms.

The subcommittee, in a statement accompanying release of the memo, said Lockheed's auditors misinterpreted the message and created a "misleading impression" about Lockheed's relations with Sweden and the Air Force officer.

A First for Lebanon's Banks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's main banks in the heart of the war-ravaged commercial district opened for business today for the first time this year, under the watchful eyes of army tank and armored car crews.

Dozens of tanks, armored personnel carriers and armored cars took up positions downtown and others — carrying cash — shuttled between the Reserve bank building on Hamra street and the other banks.

Customers swarmed to tellers' cages and, while most banks reported a steady stream of withdrawals, there was no run on deposits.

"Many customers are withdrawing money, but there are plenty of others depositing," one bank manager said. "It's a normal, busy day."

"Most of those people withdrawing money have families to support inside or outside the country and have run up bills because we have been closed for more than two months."

Banks changed checks at the rate of $1 to 2.40 Lebanese pounds. The previous rate for checks was $1 to 2.38 Lebanese pounds.

Security was tight around the business district Wednesday but calm prevailed and there were no reported violations of the 22-day-old cease-fire.

The cabinet met Wednesday and worked out a last-minute hitch to a peace settlement, paving the way for implementation of Syrian-proposed political reforms to give Moslems full equality with Christians.

Agreement was reached after Maronite Christian President Suleiman Franjeh backed down from his demands that the presidency be guaranteed to the Maronites in writing.

Karami said the unwritten agreement will remain unchanged under which the presidency traditionally has been filled by a Maronite and the premiership by a Sunni Moslem since Lebanon's independence in 1943.

He said written agreement did not matter because "he who cannot be bound by his word cannot be bound by his signature."

Other aspects of the agreement, including reforms to give Moslems more jobs in government and more seats in parliament, will take the form of a written agreement to be announced by Franjeh Saturday following another cabinet meeting, Karami said.

Broad lines of the reforms were worked out during talks between rival militia leaders and Syrian mediators who stepped in to end the 10 months of fighting and impose a political settlement.

Reforms include an enlargement and equal division of parliament, elimination of religious quotas in lower government posts and election of the premier by parliament rather than appointment by the president.

Christian groups agreed to the changes under Syrian pressure and in exchange for Syrian guarantees that Palestinian guerrillas, who virtually rule parts of the country, will be made to respect Lebanese sovereignty.

Sources Say Kissinger Exceeded NSC View in Strategic Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With President Ford's assent, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger offered the Soviet Union during his recent Moscow mission a softer proposal for limiting strategic arms than had been approved by the National Security Council.

Sources said today Kissinger has faced criticism within the council since for exceeding the guidelines, which had been known as "Option Two" and which he once reportedly called "intellectually unrespectable."

Two issues bedeviling the Soviet-American strategic arms negotiations are how to deal with the Soviet "Backfire" bomber and what to do about cruise missiles.

Failure to resolve these problems resulted in postponement last year of Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's projected visit to Washington.

The Backfire is a swinging bomber capable of striking the United States on one-way missions, according to U.S. specialists. The Russians say it is regional rather than strategic.

Cruise missiles are pilotless drones, equipped with nuclear warheads, which can be fired from submarine torpedo tubes, surface vessels or bombers.

U.S. cruise missiles can attain a range of about 2,000 miles.

Sources said Kissinger went beyond "Option Two" to suggest the Russians be allowed to construct 275 Backfire bombers over a five-year period. Actually, at current production rates of two a month, the Russians would build only 120 in five years.

In return the United States would be permitted to install 34 cruise missiles on bombers or surface ships, but none on submarines.

"Option Two," approved by the National Security Council, would have allowed the Russians only 250 Backfire bombers over 10 years and would have allowed deployment of cruise missiles in some proportion to Backfire deployment.

The sources said Brezhnev offered Kissinger a counterproposal that the superpowers agree to a modest lowering of the ceiling Ford and Brezhnev decided on at Vladivostok in November, 1974. That agreement limited the two countries to 2,400 strategic missiles and bombers but exempted the Backfire as nonstrategic.

The Soviet proposal also would ban cruise missiles from being installed on surface ships, the sources said.

Urges Water Release Plan

WASHINGTON Rep. Matthew McHugh, D-27th Dist., has urged New York City officials to show greater sensitivity toward the ecological problems afflicting the streams and reservoirs of the Catskill region.

In a letter to Mayor Abraham Beame, McHugh asked the city to accept a state-recommended program that would improve water releases from the six major city-owned reservoirs in the Catskill region.

For the past two years, environmentalists, sportsmen and fishermen have campaigned for a better-managed water release system. It has been charged that insufficient releases from the city reservoirs have killed thousands of fish and disrupted the ecological balance of downstream areas; on other occasions, excessive releases have caused downstream flooding.

For the past year, the Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) has attempted to negotiate a new water release plan with the city. McHugh called on Mayor Beame to accept the three-year draft agreement proposed by the DEC, which he said would help resolve the problems until more extensive studies could be undertaken.

The agreement, said McHugh, "would go far toward resolving this long-standing problem. It would do so without compromising the city's need for an adequate water supply."

"We ask that the city not be insensitive to our legitimate concerns, as we believe it has been in the past on this question," added McHugh. "We ask this not only for ourselves, but for the thousands of downstreamers whom we welcome into our region each year and who enjoy our streams and other natural resources."

The existing release levels, said McHugh, were laid down by a 1954 U.S. Supreme Court decree. The city, thus far, has refused to renegotiate those levels. Legislation, however, is pending in the New York State Legislature which would give the DEC ultimate control over the flow of water from the city reservoirs. Sponsors of the bill, who have the support of Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson (R-Binghamton), have promised to press for passage of the legislation if the city does not agree to a compromise.

In his letter to Beame, McHugh reminded the mayor that "the interdependence of the people in our state was dramatically demonstrated during your city's financial crisis." The congressman noted that he supported federal funds for New York City, as did a majority of the people in the Catskill region.

McHugh's 27th Congressional District includes the city-owned Cannonsville, Pepacton and Neversink Reservoirs, as well as the Ashokan Reservoir in the Town of Olive and the Rondout Reservoir in the Town of Wawarsing.

Parents residing in the Onteora Central School District who desire special transportation for a child to attend a non-public school inside or outside the district during the 1976-77 school year must file a written request for such service on or before April 1, 1976.

The request must contain the pupil's name, address, grade, and school presently attended, and the name and address of the school to be attended in 1976-77. It is required so that the board of education may budget the required funds to cover costs of the service.

Requests should be addressed to Carlton E. Buley, transportation supervisor, Onteora Central Schools, Boiceville 12412.

Transportation provided by the district for students attending non-public schools outside the district is authorized only for those students residing within 15 miles of the school they plan to attend. No transportation outside the district may be provided beyond the 15-mile limit.

Conversations with Koenig

200th, Charter, Hall, Library

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig defended his Bicentennial Commission, confirmed that the state has extended funding for the old city hall for another year and said he expects to name a charter revision committee within the next few weeks, during his weekly interview with the Freeman.

BICENTENNIAL — The 12-person commission appointed by Koenig and headed by Edward Levine has come under sharp criticism lately because of what some critics see as a lack of programs.

"I think they're doing a good job," Koenig said. "It's a question of funding."

There has also been some criticism over the fact that the commission, which could include up to 18 members, has only 12. Koenig doesn't see that as a deficiency, necessarily. "The commission is allowed from seven to 20 members," he said, saying he didn't feel there were any vacancies. He did not say whether he would be appointing any more people.

CHARTER REVISION — The mayor says he'll appoint a new charter revision commission "in two or three weeks." The last one he appointed brought in a document that was decisively defeated last November. There was heavy lobbying against it by city officials. Koenig says his new commission will not include any members from the old commission.

CITY HALL — Koenig said he has received confirmation from Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st, that state funding for the old city hall at 408 Broadway has been extended for a year. Up to $500,000 in matching funds will be available, according to the mayor, until March 31, 1977.

BROADWAY EAST — Koenig said he's met with potential developers from Connecticut who are "definitely interested in the five-acre shopping plaza complex proposed for Broadway East. Koenig did not give any specifics. The city has signed an agreement with Thomas Sentar of Port Ewen as prime developer for what would be known as "City Hall Plaza." Koenig says Sentar would not block development by some other party.

KINGSTON LIBRARY — The mayor addressed the Kiwanis Club recently where in response to a question he indicated he was still considering the possibility of building a library/firehouse complex in the Uptown Urban Renewal

Project. "We're still looking at it," he said. "It's a question of whether the library qualifies for federal funding."

THE RAICHLE CASE — The mayor, who appoints upwards of 100 persons a year to various city commissions and agencies for terms of office that range from "his pleasure" to specific periods of time, says he doesn't know whether an appointee's term expires at a given date or when he is replaced.

The issue arose at the Feb. 3 meeting of the Common Council in regard to Alderman Clarence Raichle (R-First Ward) who was a Koenig-appointed manager of the Kingston Lab board of managers. Raichle's term ran out on Dec.

31, 1975. Koenig has not appointed anyone to fill that office.

Koenig said he doesn't know whether Raichle is still (legally, in the absence of a new appointee) a member of the lab's board of manager. He said he'd have to consult Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein for a ruling.

KTF Supports ESKA in Pact Dispute

KINGSTON The Kingston Teachers Federation (KTF) has called on the Board of Education of the Kingston Consolidated School District to resolve the long-standing contract dispute with Educational Secretaries of the Kingston Area (ESKA)

In a statement released this week, KTF said it was "quite unbelievable" that a contract agreement between the district and ESKA has not been reached, even though the parties have been negotiating for almost a year. KTF suggested that ESKA's demand for a "fair settlement" has pushed the school board to a posture of "angry inaction."

Terming ESKA employees "an integral part of a smooth-running, successful school system," KTF said there was no reason why the secretaries should not "demand an adequate settlement." The KTF said "unfair settlements (have been) bludgeoned upon ESKA" for the past several years.

"Fair, productive negotiations must be above personality conflicts and name-calling," said ESKA. "The continued excellence of the school district and the well-being of those employed to create such an atmosphere are the primary concerns. The KTF calls for an immediate effort of all concerned to settle this extended disagreement. The ESKA members are long overdue fair and equitable treatment. Make their worth equal to their outstanding contribution to our fine school system."

The task force will have as its chairman, former legislator Brian R. White of Marlboro. The members of the task force will include former minority leader of the Ulster County Legislature, Roger W. Mabie of Esopus, former legislator Richard F. Thornton of Saugerties, assistant corporation counsel of the City of Kingston, Andrew J. Gilday, and deputy city clerk Rosemarie Hogan.

Klein said that as the county grows, and its problems become more complex, "this study of governmental reform is an absolute necessity."

Klein Task Force on County Rule

ROSENDALE The merit of a charter system of government for Ulster County is to be studied by a Citizens Task Force being organized by Minority Leader of the Ulster County Legislature Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6).

According to Klein, who initiated the move independently of the legislature, the task force will review the proposed Ulster County Charter of 1972, seeking to make those revisions necessary to streamline the system of government provided for by that proposed charter, to the actual present and immediate future needs of our county.

"After completing its study, the task force will supply the Democratic members of the Ulster County Legislature with its proposals. Our future action in the area of charter reform will undoubtedly be governed, in large measure, by the results of this study," Klein said.

The task force will have as its chairman, former legislator Brian R. White of Marlboro. The members of the task force will include former minority leader of the Ulster County Legislature, Roger W. Mabie of Esopus, former legislator Richard F. Thornton of Saugerties, assistant corporation counsel of the City of Kingston, Andrew J. Gilday, and deputy city clerk Rosemarie Hogan.

Klein said that as the county grows, and its problems become more complex, "this study of governmental reform is an absolute necessity."

New Trade Zone Concerns Senator

ALBANY The New York State Senate has approved creation of another foreign trade zone in the state, this one in Monroe County. The move, the second such vote by the Senate in two weeks, has Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-C, 40th Dist., quite concerned since he sponsored legislation last year which provided for creation of a foreign trade zone in Orange County.

best location in the northeast with its highway, rail, air and potential waterway transportation.

Ski Trip

TOWN OF ULSTER The Town of Ulster has arranged a ski trip to Highmount Ski Center in Highmount, for Saturday, Feb. 28.

The trip is for students of elementary and high school age, and two adult chaperones are required.

Permission slips can be picked up at the town clerk's office at 10 a.m. on Thursday and Friday. Only one bus will be sent, with a limit of 40, and ships will be distributed on a first come, first-served basis. The bus leaves at 8 a.m. and is tentatively set to return by 6 p.m. Officials said that if enough interest is shown the town will attempt to schedule another trip in March and the program will be added to the recreation commission's plans for 1976-77.

Lincoln's Birthday

Today we observe the 167th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. As President of the United States during what historians refer to as the darkest hour in our history, Lincoln proved himself to be a man of the people.

During this great crisis, Lincoln stood above the rest in his zeal to govern the people, to lead them back on the road to sanity. This zeal, hidden behind a mask of melancholy, was to cost the great man his life.

His faith in the people of this country never faltered. In this Bicentennial year it would do us all well to remember this.

A Student Answers

Dear Editor

This is a reply to the letter to the editor written by Kingston High student, Claudia Terwilliger, as it appeared in the Daily Freeman on Friday, Feb. 6th.

I am a KHS student who, a year ago, took the initiative to become involved in our student government, as well as the Board of Education, and our own school problems.

The Board of Education after countless hours of study and review with the administration of the high school, decided to institute staggered sessions as a temporary solution to the over crowding problem at the high school. Yes, Claudia, the high school is over crowded. The administrators are professionals in the field of education and through a thorough and conclusive research, decided upon the fact that Kingston High School is over crowded. Our school was built to comfortably house 1600 students, it is now "stuffed" with approximately 2,400 this year. Research shows that elementary school enrollments are up in Kindergarten this year, and should continue to increase. Thus insuring that the high school capacity will still be at its over flow for at least twelve more years.

You Claudia, as a student, have every legal right to voice your opinion. At the monthly Board of Education meetings, there is a time for citizens to ask questions or present their opinions and ideas to the Board. The Board of Education has held open meetings for the public, at which time, anyone may voice his or her opinions on, or for solutions to the over crowding high school condition, or any other school district matter. In addition, a few weeks ago, the Lake Katrine and Edison Parent Teacher Organizations held an open meeting about the over crowding problem, and discussion was held about more permanent solutions. The Student Association of the high school publicly urged each student and faculty member of the school to become involved and attend these meetings to learn the facts about staggered sessions, and how they will affect our school. Claudia, do you, as well as hundreds of other students actually know what staggered sessions are, or how they work? Maybe you should have attended a few of these information filled meetings.

Surely you can't expect someone to ask an individual student his or her opinion on the problem. You simply have to make them known just as you did by writing your letter.

The Board of Education knows exactly what will be involved with the staggered sessions. They realize there will be difficulties in maintaining the numerous activities and sports organizations, among others, that Kingston High has.

Apparently, not only many adults are unaware of the facts concerning the high school problem but our fellow students are just as blind. There is not much relevance to your statement that the largest class has only 26 students in it. The fact that there aren't enough rooms to offer many of the programs we could have, and that those excellent programs that we now offer must be limited to a certain quota of students because the demand is greater than the room in Kingston High, is enough for many students. The fact that many rooms at KHS are too small, and have poor and inadequate facilities for teaching, such as rooms 5, 19, 403, 404, and the "portable" Art building, which is a fire hazard in itself, is enough for most of us. The fact that our football team has to share its practice field with 2 other teams, and besides that, the Board must spend close to $6,000 a year for the usage of Dietz Stadium is enough for us. Did you know that the school system pays approximately $3,000 a year for the swim team to use the YMCA pool for 4 1/2 months of a year? The gym classes also have to play football, softball, and their other activities on a blacktop pavement, which is also the parking lot for the school buses. These among others, are sufficient reasons designating the need for a new high school.

Last year each student was given a maximum of four minutes to move from class to class. Because of over crowded conditions, that 4 minutes had to be expanded to 5 minutes between each class, thus causing activity period to become 15 to 20 minutes shorter. But perhaps you're one of the lucky students who doesn't have to go from the Main building to the Vocational building for his or her next class, only to have to move all the way over to the Field House for gym class in 6 degree weather. Or maybe you're one of the more fortunate students who hasn't fallen on the ice and snow, or have been caught in a thunder storm, trying to get to class. Maybe you're one of the lucky ones who doesn't have to share her small, old locker with another person. Try fitting two winter coats in one locker, it isn't easy! "No, we don't need a new high school!" Well, obviously, you don't seem to realize why there was a cafeteria annex made in the high school last year. Because of over crowding, in the cafeteria and school, open lunches and study halls were decided upon by the Board. They weren't instituted just so that students could have more time to roam around Broadway, or sit on the wall. Perhaps on a sunny, hot day, the cafeteria isn't that crowded, but you try a cold snowy or rainy day, and you'll find the cafeteria at capacity.

Up and Down staircases were used at the high school, but were abolished by a Student Council Resolution last year. With the amount of footage a student may have to travel in five minutes, it's simply too much to ask one to walk a longer distance to go up or down a particular staircase. Why do we need a new high school? Overcrowded conditions, inadequate or poor facilities, or the need for continuance of quality of education, Take Your Pick.

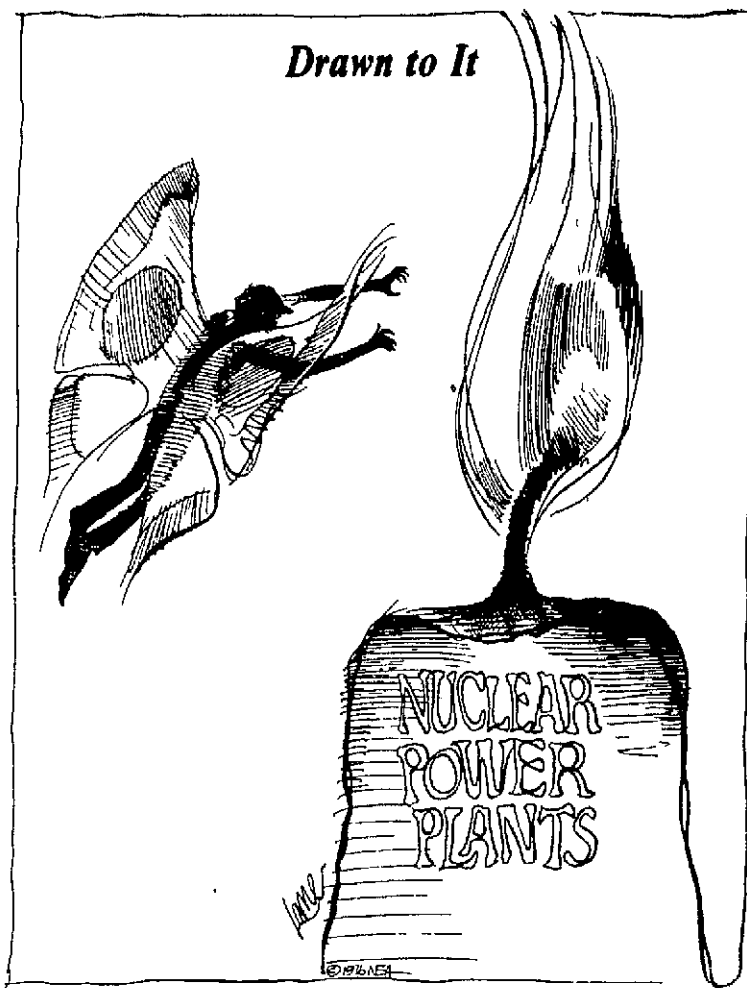

You may certainly have your voice in the matter, but it's a little too late. Staggered sessions were passed at the Feb. 5th meeting of the Board of Education. It's a shame you had to learn the facts too late. You can still help, by coming to Student Association meetings, Board and Informational meetings. Come, learn the facts, listen, but most of all, become involved. Don't be as blind as some of the people we've encountered. Don't overlook the fact that by 1978, the Board must have its final solution to the over crowding problem. The State Dept. of Education has said before, and they said it again after studying the high school problem themselves, that the construction of a new high school is the best final solution. It is not going to get any better. The cost of a new high school is not going to get any less expensive, either. Whether it's now or twenty years from now, a new high school will have to be built. Unfortunately, twenty years is too long to wait. We, the students of today, are the future teachers, doctors, lawyers, housewives, and taxpayers of tomorrow who will be the ones coming home to share the minimal tax raise a new high school would bring. We realize that one is desperately needed. Claudia, this letter is not trying to be a put down to you. I, personally, admire you for having the courage and stamina to write your views to the paper. It's a shame you didn't know the facts first, but you have the initiative to learn so please, start coming to meetings.

We would like to tell Dorothy Galitsky as a reply to her letter to the editor that we hope she attended the Feb. 5th Board of Education meeting, as we did. George Washburne, associate Superintendent of Schools, presented a program on the quality of our Kingston High education. It's obvious, by far, that the credit average KHS student is far more intelligent and educated than you give us credit to be. Our school district must work hard to keep the quality of our education at high standards, even though we struggle with poor facilities. At least we know that we are dealing with facts, not emotions. Once again, we can't stress it enough, Come to the meetings, listen, learn, but most of all, KNOW the FACTS, and become involved!

Thank you for listening. I am,
JOLIE DUNHAM,
on behalf of the Concerned Students Organization

(P.S. I would also like to comment on Dorothy Galitsky's letter to the editor of Monday, Feb. 9th. Ms. Galitsky, you say our low birth rate will decrease the need of our schools; well, I'm glad you are a fortune teller with a crystal ball who can give us all this reliable information. Yes, the voters came in hundreds to vote for the "quartet" in last May's election. These people couldn't see a need for a new high school. I sincerely doubt these people knew the facts before they voted. If you give someone a choice between spending money, and not spending it, unless, of course, it's a luxury for their own use, they won't spend it. If you had come to informational meetings, you would know why the State Ed. Dept. cannot tell a student that he or she has to cross Broadway to go to class. If hit by a car; that student's parents could sue the "pants" off the State, so to speak. Oh, you want to know who are the "pressure groups" for a new high school? Educated, open-minded, and fact-filled INDIVIDUALS who meet together to logically discuss the over crowding problem is your answer! Why don't you start opening your mind and listen? I am dealing with FACTS, not emotions. One more question: When was the last time you were in the high school when classes were in session?

Thank you again!

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Punishing Criminals

From Hong Kong there is a report on the final hours on earth of two young men, convicted of brutal murders. They were given the traditional last meal of their choice. Then they were driven to the prison compound and there a firing squad did its duty. A fairly routine experience, with this exception. The whole of it was televised, and shown during prime time.

The authorities in Hong Kong have announced their determination to do something to check the growing crime rate. Well, they have certainly come up with something original. It would of course be more palatable if someone might arrange it so that the program went out on closed circuit TV into the living quarters only of potential murderers. But it is this kind of fine tuning that always eludes you. The kind that raises disagreement between men of such original thought as James Wilson of Harvard, and Ernest van den Haag of the New School for Social Research. Mr. Wilson's book, published last year, is called "Thinking About Crime." Mr. van den Haag's, published a few weeks ago, is called "Punishing Criminals. Concerning a Very Old and Painful Question." It is a revelation, precisely because Mr. van den Haag is prepared first to digest current findings about penology, then, because he is sufficiently the craftsman, to give these findings plainly, and finally because he is superbly skilled at asking just the right questions, anticipating the most dogged superstitions.

He and Professor Wilson agree on most of the fundamental points, notably that we have made no advance whatever in the art of rehabilitation, that although the incidence of crime may be greater among the poor this generality sheds no light whatever on the casual relation between poverty and crime. Both believe that sentences should be determinate; with however an intriguing difference. Professor van den Haag believes a prison sentence should be based on what he calls a "categorical basis."

Here is what he is talking about. Forty-five per cent of all murders are done by people less than 25 years old, and three-quarters of all crime by people who are less than 30.

Now, since we do not know anything about rehabilitation, and since we have irrefutable evidence that recidivism is responsible for a huge percentage of crime, we are faced with the problem how should we deal with a repeat offender found guilty of a second violent crime?

Let us suppose that at age 18 he robbed at gun point, and was given five years, paroled after three. Six months later, he robs again at gun point and we are fortunate enough to catch him. He is convicted. Normally, he would be given the five years, and in some states the two years unserved from the previous sentence for violating his parole would be reinstated. Here he would be eligible for fresh parole at about age 25.

Under the categorical rule of Mr. van den Haag, the procedure would be changed. Until age 25 he would be kept in an orthodox prison, in which he would be simultaneously punished and sequestered. Of course after that he could go somewhere else. Throw in your own specifications here, if you will—to an island somewhere, perhaps, to a reservation, to which he would be free to take his family, and given a kind of insular liberty.

The point is, he would not be permitted to reenter normal society until age 35—because it is after that age that the impulse to criminality drops sharply. Mr. van den Haag calculates, roughly, that if his plan were invoked, injustice would fall on 40 per cent of those sequestered. That is, 60 per cent of those sequestered would indeed commit violent crimes again. But like the Hong Kong television viewers, we cannot know which 60 per cent they are.

Professor Wilson declines to go along with a plan that would accept guaranteed injustice. Van den Haag, in his fascinating book, tells us we must revise the idea of justice, we must focus our concern of those statistically predictable victims who would now be spared, at the cost of the physical detention of two-time offenders, 40 per cent of whom would not have broken the law again. Which 40 per cent?

Once in a very long while a book takes the reader through intricate philosophical and sociological thickets with assurance and cogency. Mr. van den Haag has done it, and his book, and Professor Wilson's should be closely read by everyone in America who is the likely victim of a crime, which means about 70 per cent of the population.

(Rep. Bella Abzug said last week that the recent Supreme Court ruling on campaign expenditures would make it harder than ever for women to run for public office.

"The reason, she said, is that most women candidates simply do not have ties to multimillionaires who can put unlimited amounts of money into political advertising under the court's decision."—New York Times item.

What Ms. Abzug says is probably true. But there is a certain type of woman who does have access to multimillionaires, and who might decide to run for public office.

The scene is an apartment on Park Avenue. Huddleston Threabody III has just arrived.

"Sara Lee. Where's my little cheesecake hiding?" he yells.

"Here I am, Tiger," says Sara Lee, running out in her black negligee and throwing her arms around him. "Did my Tiger have a tough day at the office?"

"Tiger had a marvelous day. The stock market went up 20 points. The reason I'm late is that I stopped by Tiffany's and bought my little Sara Lee a present." he hands her a box.

She opens it and takes out a diamond bracelet.

"It's very nice," she says.

"Nice? It cost me a bundle. Don't you like it?"

Sara Lee takes Huddleston over to the couch and cuddles up to him. "I don't want jewelry any more."

"A fur coat then? Go to Berdoff's tomorrow and pick up a fur coat. Anything my little cheesecake wants?"

"I don't want a fur coat. I have five already," she says, chewing on his ear.

"A trip? Would you like to go to Paris?" "I'll say I have to go to Europe for the firm."

"No, I don't want to go on a trip."

"Well, what do you want?"

Sara Lee, as she unbuttons Huddleston's shirt, says, "I want to run for the Senate from New York."

"You want to do what?"

"I want to run for the Senate. It would be a lot of fun, and it's something that

Yearly Tax Ordeal

WASHINGTON—For most of us, the annual ordeal of wrestling with our income tax returns is upon us. It is all the more odious because it involves participation in a continuing scandal.

To call it an ordeal requires little substantiation; it is enough merely to cite common knowledge. Millions give up deductions they are entitled to so they can use the short form and escape the annual headache. Two out of five taxpayers turn to so-called experts.

But millions more will struggle through the days of toil and nights of anguish. In rendering unto Caesar, they must give an accounting of the minutest details of their lives. During this season, then, Americans experience the sense of foreboding that marks not the free citizens but the subjects of an omnipotent and capricious state.

But the tax law is also a scandal which has turned taxpayers from the simple accepted duty it once was to the resisted contest at skulduggery it is today.

Because of its complexity, it is not just Joe Doaks who cannot understand his tax return. Once we get beyond the elemental, even the Internal Revenue official is not likely to understand it.

A few years ago, an Atlanta taxpayer, to prove a point, called at five different IRS offices around the country, presented the same set of facts and asked for a computation of his tax. He got five different answers, some varying from others by hundreds of dollars.

Such absurdities occur not because Internal Revenue personnel are incompetent, but because the tax code is incomprehensible. What mere human could assimilate 6,000 pages of conflicting federal tax laws and regulations? And behind the complexity is the greater scandal that causes it. The tax law is a mess not because the law makers wanted it to be complicated, but because they wanted it to be a vehicle for doing hidden favors.

A Trojan horse for financing programs that couldn't gain acceptance as open subsidies, a Christmas tree on which the visionary's public concern was hung alongside the lobbyist's private swindle.

The average taxpayer got illusory deductions to be paid for in higher basic rates, while the rich and the calculating got away with token taxes or none at all by putting their money into real estate ventures, or oil or tax-exempt bonds or exotic charities, or 101 other shelters.

We have had access to secret tax filings by members of our wealthiest families: the Mellons, the Rockefellers, the Hunts and others. Their returns have one thing in common. Each of the families has had millionaire members, who from time to time, have paid no income tax at all. And almost all of them regularly pay only a fraction of the tax their income would require were it not for loopholes.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, for example, paid no federal income tax in 1970. His brother, John D. Rockefeller III, pays a 10 per cent federal tax as a matter of personal principle. Apparently, he can manipulate his tax exemptions to produce whatever tax return he feels is appropriate. Paul Mellon worth a cool one billion dollars, is able to get away with a negligible income tax, as do other members of his fabulously rich family.

And Texas oil millionaire Bunker Hunt has managed to live in luxury without paying any taxes at all in several years. We do not single them out of criticism. They have made use of the law, and that is their right. It is the process that is at fault, and it makes a chump out of the person who does not distort his affairs so as to benefit from every possible loophole.

Thus, more and more people neither understand nor respect the tax system. The IRS reports that 49 per cent of all returns now contain errors and 19 per cent are attempts at outright fraud. Voluntary

"Son, before you go back to college I want to say wash your face, brush your teeth, make your bed and comb your hair just for old times sake!"

'Sara Lee for Senate'

would make me think of you all the time. Is my big strong Tiger going to let me run?"

"Now wait. Diamonds and fur coats are one thing, but financing a Senate campaign is another."

"I'll bet if that skeleton wife of yours wanted to run for the Senate you'd give her the money," Sara Lee pouts.

"That isn't true. I'm not sure I want to put up money for anyone running for public office. Look, how would you like a new Aston Martin to go with your Mercedes Benz 450?"

Sara Lee moves to the other end of the couch. "I don't want another car. I want to serve my country. If you really cared for me, you'd let me announce my candidacy."

"I love you," Huddleston protests. "I'd do anything for you. But if I give you the money to run for public office, I'm going to have to declare it. My wife is going to ask me why I'm supporting you. Where are you going?"

"I'm getting into something less comfortable."

"Little cheesecake," Huddleston jumps up, trying to grab her. "Would you like a town house instead of an apartment?"

"Unhand me, you brute." Sara Lee pushes him away. "I've never asked you for a thing, and finally when all I want for my little booty self is a chance to run for the Senate you say I can't do it. Well, find someone else who is more interested in jewels than politics. I'm changing the lock on my apartment door."

"Baby, baby," Huddleston says in a lather. "Don't do this to me. I can't live without you. You don't know what these Wednesday evenings mean to me."

"If you feel that way, then I would think you'd like to prove it with something tangible. How are we women ever going to get elected if our gentlemen friends don't give us the money?"

"All right, all right. How do I make out the check?"

Ford, Ron in Dead Heat

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. President Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan are in a dead heat in the latest showdown test among Republican voters. Ford is the choice of 44 per cent for the nomination to 43 per cent for Reagan with 13 per cent undecided.

The latest results, based on late January interviewing, represent a decline for Ford who in the previous (early January) survey won the support of 53 per cent to 42 per cent for Reagan. Ford's losses, as the findings indicate, have not translated into direct gains for Reagan but have instead increased the undecided percentage.

While Ford has suffered some loss in support among Republicans since the previous survey, the race has remained little changed among voters who classify themselves as independents. The contest continues to be tight, with Ford currently winning the support of 45 per cent of independents to 41 per cent for Reagan with 14 per cent undecided.

Reagan's support among both Republicans and independents increased steadily between June and December. Since December, however, it has leveled off.

This question is asked of Republicans and independents to determine the relative strength of the two men:

"Suppose the choice for President in the Republican convention in 1976 narrows down to Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan. Which one would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"

Here are the latest results and the trend among Republican voters:
Ford vs. Reagan Showdown (Choices of Republicans)

June 27-30.....	51	36	13

The latest findings are based on in-person interviews with 360 respondents who classify themselves Republicans and 494 who consider themselves independents out of a total national sample of 1,538 adults, 18 and older. Interviewing was conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Jan. 23-26.

CAB's Reforms Not Enough

WASHINGTON — If the Wright Brothers had had as much trouble as the Civil Aeronautics Board getting off the ground, Orville and Wilbur still would be standing around at Kitty Hawk arguing why the damn thing won't fly.

The CAB is the government bureaucracy that decides which airlines will fly where and how much you'll pay for a ticket. Fortunately, the CAB has nothing to do with air safety. That's another government bureaucracy, of course.

The CAB has been regulating airlines since 1938 and the damn thing still won't fly. The higher air fares soar, the deeper the airlines plunge into debt. Last year the airlines lost close to $100 million.

If the nation's 12 scheduled airlines can't make the thing fly, common sense says that the CAB should let somebody else try. But the CAB hasn't let a newcomer into the scheduled airline business since 1938.

Only last year, a newcomer called World Airways applied to the CAB for permission to fly scheduled airline service coast-to-coast at a bargain one-way fare of $89.

But the airlines already offering frilly coast-to-coast flights at much higher fares fought World's application. A few days ago, the CAB rejected World's application and robbed the public of a transcontinental travel bargain.

Few government bureaucracies have failed so fully as the Civil Aeronautics Board and President Ford four months ago sent Congress a bill to reform the CAB. Ford wants to begin to get the government out of the airline business. Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), supports Ford's bill and Kennedy soon will unveil his own proposal to deregulate airline rates and routes.

But Ford and Kennedy together are no match for the combined political power of the CAB bureaucrats and the 12 airlines that the CAB has protected and patronized since 1938.

Ford's proposal has led not to reform but to bitter bureaucratic battles inside the CAB. When he became President, Ford's first move was to demote Robert Timm from CAB chairman to mere CAB member. Timm had been appointed by Richard Nixon. The scheduled airlines had made massive, illegal political contributions to Nixon. Timm was a political hack who gave the airlines everything they wanted. Timm's CAB raised air fares, abolished youth fares and grounded cut-rate charter flights.

Ford named as chairman a respected, experienced lawyer named John Robson. Timm, the other CAB members and the scheduled airlines have fought Robson every day since. Some CAB members won't talk to Robson, except to tell him. CAB meetings are "real shoot-outs," insiders say.

When Robson two weeks ago addressed Washington's International Aviation Club, the other CAB members snubbed him by refusing to attend. Two CAB members have demanded an audit of a reform advisory committee appointed by Robson, although the committee spent at most $30,000 of the $85,000 that was budgeted.

The bureaucratic backbiting became so bad that Ford demanded Timm's resignation as a CAB member. Although Ford's legal authority to remove Timm is doubtful, Timm resigned. Apparently Timm capitulated only because a grand jury is investigating his failure, when chairman, to act against airlines that made illegal political contributions to Nixon.

Timm's policies were so bad for the public and so good for scheduled airlines that Robson couldn't fail to win some reforms. Youth fares are back. Low-cost charter flying is booming.

But Robson's reforms fall far short of Ford's and Kennedy's proposals. Ford would let airlines lower fares 40 per cent without asking CAB permission. Kennedy would let World Airways offer the public a bargain fare bonanza without asking CAB permission.

The CAB, however, refuses to support Ford's and Kennedy's proposals. Scheduled airlines have blasted the proposals. Congress hasn't even held any hearings.

A government agency that hasn't gotten off the ground since 1938 is another good reason for public distrust of big government.

Better PR Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's happened again, a lawmaker giving the impression that Congress owns the Capitol and anyone else entering the building is a "guest." It's not new, but it is particularly disturbing in this Bicentennial year.

This time it is Rep. B.F. "Bernie" Sisk, D-Calif. In the past, police officers working under direction of congressional committees have treated tourists like intruders rather than the rightful, tax-paying owners they are.

"Basically, you are guests of the House of Representatives and I assume that is what you consider you are," Sisk told members of the House Press Gallery which stands to lose some critically needed working space if a committee headed by Sisk adopts a proposal for televising House action.

The mere writing of this commentary may very well result in retribution because of the power lawmakers have taken upon themselves in the name of the taxpayer in running public buildings.

The implication by Sisk is that somehow he and his colleagues who make the rules are better than the rest of us ordinary citizens, including those in California who sent Sisk to Washington with their votes and their tax money.

The "guest" attitude of some lawmakers is the same thinking that has led to the exclusion of the buildings' owners from riding the subway or most elevators in the Senate or House during roll calls, from using cafeterias or restaurants during certain hours and to be physically manhandled by police as the confused citizens wander through the Capitol building.

One tall, thin officer with a deep voice recently boomed at a restless crowd of high-school age youngsters waiting to get into the Senate visitors gallery that "If you don't like the way we operate things around here you can go back down to the first floor, out the door and don't come back into the building."

There's no question but that there has to be some procedure for controlling crowds, just as there has to be a set of rules of procedure for the 435 members of the House of Representatives in order to get anything done.

Likewise, there have to be rules for visitors to the Capitol, but these should be kept at a minimum and should not be born from an attitude of a few lawmakers that they are the owners and we, the taxpayers, are just outsiders.

The spirit of freedom to be emphasized this Bicentennial year could not be better served than for gentlemen such as Mr. Sisk to publicly renounce any mistaken thought that citizens are their "guests" in a building such as the Capitol and to pledge a new program of public relations for themselves and the police in handling the massive Washington crowds anticipated this year.

Jerry Irks Captains of Industry

WASHINGTON (KFS) — President Ford has been shaking up his White House setup and making a concerted effort to look more presidential than political, but he still hasn't gotten it all together.

The bungling and mediocre staff work continue.

For instance, Ford recently missed a rare opportunity to make points with probably as imposing a collection of industry 'giants' as will be gathered in one room during the entire coming year.

Approximately 1,500 top-level business executives met in Dallas Jan. 30 to celebrate the selection of 10 corporate moguls to the two-year-old "Hall of Fame for Business Leadership," sponsored by Fortune magazine. Practically every major corporation in the nation was represented, and it was strictly an elite crowd. The board chairmen and the presidents attended the affair themselves; they did not send middle-management officials as their substitutes, which is often the case at lesser business events. The master of ceremonies was Thomas Murphy, chairman of the board of General Motors.

The nation's economic health quite literally rests in the hands of the men who were in that room.

But what did Gerald Ford do? He sent to address this powerful gathering of businessmen William Seidman, a White House adviser. Until his old crony Ford became President, Seidman was an accounting executive in Grand Rapids.

Seidman, predictably, bombed. He just wasn't up to the caliber and sophistication of his audience. He mumbled his way through a rehash of Ford administration claims and promises.

Participants at the session were dismayed. "I'd heard the President had surrounded himself with second-rate people, and now I know he has," one executive observed.

Many thought the President's decision to send Seidman, who is no economist, was an insult. "If it had been Lyndon Johnson, he would have begged to come himself," snapped an airline official. Even if he could not adjust his schedule to appear himself, Ford could have given the assignment to several far more knowledgeable and prestigious figures than Seidman — Secretary of the Treasury William Simon, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers Alan Greenspan, or Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, for instance.

The worst part of Seidman's

debacle is that those industry chieftains not only got a bad impression of Seidman but they got a bad impression of Ford, a President who bungles such an important event does not exactly display strong leadership qualities. The mishap tended to create the impression of a President who was misinformed, disorganized or prone to bad judgment.

Ford needs the support of influential businessmen, and has made a number of political gestures in their direction. He has stressed the importance of stimulating business through subsidies and tax breaks as a major way to fight inflation. He has mounted a campaign to reduce the role of the Federal government in regulating private enterprise, a goal beloved of most big businessmen.

But former Gov. Ronald Reagan is also a champion of helping big business. And many businessmen, while conservative, feel comfortable with Democratic Sen. Henry Jackson.

There are, in short, other places for the captains of industry to go than to Gerald Ford.

Bad Taste Is Plentiful For the Buy-Centennial

LUCKENBACH, Tex. (UPI) — So many entries are coming into the National Buy-Centennial Bad Taste contest that Mayor Hondo Crouch thinks his city (pop: 3) may even get its post office back.

The once-active post office has received stacks of letters from throughout the nation with suggestions for the most flagrant commercial abuse of the bicentennial theme.

Awards for the best suggestions will be given during a Leap Year Day National Non-Bicentennial celebration scheduled for Feb. 29.

Luckenbach proclaimed itself the nation's first National Non-Bicentennial City last August and decreed that "no man, woman, child or animal is permitted to walk through the streets dressed in an Uncle Sam suit; no red, white and blue souvenirs made in China, Taiwan or Uganda are sold; no federal funding is spent on anything."

"We had our own post office awhile ago and even our own individual zip code, but the bureaucrats took it away" because of a lack of business, Crouch said. Mail to and from Luckenbach now is routed through nearby Fredericksburg.

"Looks as though this volume business will get it back for us in this Buy-Centennial year," said Crouch.

Letters to the National Non-Bicentennial Commission now are sent to Luckenbach, Tex. 78624, via Fredericksburg.

Jack Harmon, a publicist and one of several San Antonio residents helping the three Luckenbachians carry off the spoof, said that judging from early nominations it may be tough to decide on a Buy-Centennial Bad Taste Award.

One entry quoted a Chicago radio commentator as saying, "Let's cut out the pretense. After all, aren't we all in it for the buck?"

Other suggestions include the inventors of red, white and blue devices, Christmas trees, beer cans, cigar boxes, caskets and other objects too personal for public mention, Harmon said.

"We are confident we have not yet plumbed the depths of commercial abuse of the bicentennial, even though we have seen examples of bad taste that boggle our minds," Harmon said.

"Two weeks ago I would have sworn I never would have seen anything worse than a Buy-Centennial toilet seat," he added.

Blaming It All on the Barracks

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet army newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda said in a recent edition "wild morals" in U.S. Army barracks turn American GIs into hardened killers with warped minds.

and the way he is moulded by one of the most powerful armies of imperialism."

Cracking Down on Recipe Book Scheme

WASHINGTON (UPI) — California officials have cracked down on a nationally advertised scheme that invited consumers to contribute recipes for a new cookbook, and then asked them for money to publish the book.

A reader in Davison, Mich., writes that she sent in a recipe for Spanish rice, apparently thinking she was entering a recipe contest in "Family Weekly," the Sunday supplement magazine where the ad appeared.

"Before the results of the contest were published ... I received a letter from 'Golden Recipes,' La Jolla, Calif. 92037. They wrote that they wanted to use my recipe to put in a new cookbook," she writes. "If I would send them $10.95 to help them get the cookbook published, I would receive royalties from the sale of their cookbook."

"I was real happy about it. But that was Sept. 30, 1975, and the only word from them I have had is a letter asking me to send them (money) so they would send me a copy of the recipe book.

"I wrote to 'Family Weekly' about it. The results of their contest were printed in a November copy, and I didn't even receive honorable mention for my Spanish rice. They wrote me they had no idea how my recipe reached 'Golden Recipes' in La Jolla ..."

You apparently mistook an ad from "Golden Recipes" for a recipe entry blank from "Family Weekly." The magazine appears to be telling you the truth. A spokesman told us the same thing. We also checked with the California attorney general's office to see if "Golden Recipes" had been the subject of any complaints.

It turns out that California filed a complaint against the company last fall; among other things, because it felt the ads looked like contest entry blanks which failed to disclose that the entrant would eventually be asked to help finance the book.

Al Shelden, a lawyer in the attorney general's office in San Diego, said a judgment later was won against the company. According to documents Shelden provided, the company no longer may imply royalty payments will result unless they really come from sale of the book.

The company also is forbidden to claim "that a consumer's recipe has been thoroughly reviewed and accepted for publication, unless and until (the company) intends to commit itself to publishing said recipe, and said recipe has been reviewed."

The complaint said recipes sent in were only briefly reviewed and then returned as accepted along with a request for a $10.95 publishing fee for the book. It also said that only a small number of entrants ever received more than a $1 royalty, which in effect was just deducted from the $10.95 fee the entrant paid in the first place.

The ads mentioned royalties of up to $1,000.

It was unclear from your letter whether you actually sent in the money. We have forwarded your letter to Shelden. He said he may be able to get your money back for you if you did.

Shelden will accept inquiries

from other dissatisfied consumers who sent in money. You can write him care of the Attorney General, State of California, 110 West A St., Room 600, San Diego, Calif. 92101.

Address your consumer complaints or inquiries to Buyer's Billboard, UPI, 315 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope if you want a personal reply.

Interfaith Survey Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Jewish Committee has announced it plans a major study of interfaith marriages to determine what social and psychological effects they have on husband and wife, children and the Jewish community.

"The underlying purpose of this study is to cast light, rather than heat, on this often highly emotional subject," said Yehuda Rosenman, director of the committee's Jewish Communal Affairs Department.

The survey, believed to be the first nationwide study on the subject of Jewish interfaith marriages, will be guided by Rosenman. It begins on a pilot basis in six communities.

There are diverse views within both religious and secular organizations as to what responsibilities the Jewish community has to participants of marriages between Jews and non-Jews, Rosenman said.

"We cannot determine what, if anything, should be done until we have the objective data which tells us what the problems are and what the plus-minus effect for Jewish continuity is, stemming from increased interfaith marriages," he said.

Mervin H. Riseman, chairman of the committee's Jewish Communal Affairs Commission, said the study will develop a core of information on the experiences of intermarried couples with Jewish institutions and agencies in their communities and their attitudes toward them.

"It will also explore how children of such marriages are being raised, the children's attitudes, the unmet needs of such families and how the agencies and institutions of the Jewish community might meet those needs," he added.

The communities chosen for the pilot program are New York City, Westchester, Nassau-Suffolk, N.Y.; Philadelphia, Cleveland and San Francisco.

SSI Recipients To List Changes

KINGSTON Persons receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments should promptly report changes in their living arrangements to Social Security, according to George J. Habernig, district manager in Kingston.

SSI makes monthly payments to those with little or no income and limited resources who are blind, disabled, or age 65 and older, and changes in individual living arrangements can affect the amount of the payment, Habernig noted.

"If these living arrangements change, the amount of the SSI payment will change," he said. "Sometimes a person delays in telling us his living arrangements have changed and consequently his benefit payment is incorrect."

The SSI program has several living arrangement categories, including living alone in your own household, living in your household with others, living in someone else's household or residing in a hospital or other institution. Each arrangement category pays a different benefit payment. Changes in living arrangements should be reported to the local Social Security Administration office in Kingston.

Winter Rec Program

NEW PALTZ Recreation Director Philip Stein announces that the winter program of the New Paltz Central School is in full swing. Saturday and Sunday sessions at the middle school and high school are well attended. Gymnastics classes at the middle school on Sundays from 1-5 p.m. are well attended and have been well received.

The first ski trip on Saturday, Jan. 31, was a success. It was led by ski coach Bill Russell and 44 children participated. Another trip is planned for mid-February.

An intramural basketball league is now being formed for both boys and girls. Anyone interested should sign up on Saturday or Sunday at the middle school or high school. Groups of 5-8 players may register as a team or individuals can be placed on appropriate teams.

Community Development Agency . . . A Review of Ideas Tonight

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON
There seems to be a world of difference in terms of information between what the Community Development Agency presents at its public hearings and what it has to offer at its headquarters at 97 Broadway.

"Public hearings," city style, are usually exactly that with city officials acting as one-way sounding boards, on occasion even refusing to comment on the issue at hand.

Alderman Clifford G. Sinsabaugh, chairman of the Community Development Advisory Council, runs his with a good deal more flexibility, often allowing questions from the audience.

Al Marquart's question to Sinsabaugh at Monday night's Community Development hearing was one frequently heard: What have you people done with the money allocated for last year's program? It adds up to $1,359,000.

Sinsabaugh's answer was that the agency had signed contracts for the cleaning and lining of water mains in the Greenkill Avenue area.

He did not give a dollar figure (it cost about $120,000) and Marquart did not inquire about the rest of the money (more than a million dollars).

The Freeman returned to 97 Broadway on Wednesday with much the same question. The answers indicate "Community Development" has been an active agency since it went into execution last May, a good deal more active than Sinsabaugh's answer would indicate.

The walls of 97 Broadway are covered with detailed charts and graphs showing Community Development's main areas of commitment: Broadway West, Ponckhockie, Broadway Central and Broadway Central East.

"This is not a game of guesses," says CD Director Ralph Marallo as he details various aspects of his maps.

A cursory glance and some fast arithmetic indicates that with any encouragement at all, the Community Development Agency could be off and running on a couple of million dollars worth of projects ranging from a "West Strand Plaza" to bus stops on Central Broadway.

Marallo is quick to warn, however, that planner's projections don't necessarily become reality; what you see on Marallo's walls may not be what you'll get at some future point in time.

"These are ideas, projections, recommendations, concepts, whatever," says Marallo. "These are the kinds of things that we'll be recommending to the full (Community Development Advisory) Council." They in turn recommend to the mayor.

Still, it's a revelation to see some of the talk of last year transmitted into concrete terms if only for display purposes. For instance, Marallo's maps show 431 structures in the so-called "Broadway West area" which is bounded by McEntee Street, Hudson Street, Abeel Street, Dock Street and Broadway.

Of these 431 buildings, 155 are considered to be in "good" condition (no major code violations) with 195 in "fair" condition. Eighty-one are considered to be in "poor" condition

25 of which are listed as vacant. Significantly, 24 of the vacant buildings are in the West Strand, Wurts Street, Spring Street, Broadway triangle.

CDA has compiled rehabilitation estimates on that row of 1870 structures along West Strand running from Johnson's "Downtown" (between $5,000 and $10,000) to the Mansion House on the corner (between $70,000 and $75,000). Overall estimated cost is in the $450,000 range. CDA does not detail, however, where the money would come from.

The agency has plans for sidewalks and rehab in Ponckhockie, bus stops and traffic intersection improvement and off-street parking lots in Central Broadway, sports facilities in Kingston Point. Its plans for Cornell Park could combine public improvements with private enterprise. CDA plans to be ready for the Bicentennial barge when it arrives in late June. Already it has preliminary plans for a West Strand Plaza that could convert a macadam parking lot behind the old Freeman building into a showcase. "We've got the ideas," says Marallo. "It's just a case of priorities, feasibility and money." Those ideas will be reviewed at a Community Development Advisory Council meeting tonight.

7-Year Terms Possible for Trio

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON
Three persons arrested last month by Kingston Police Department detectives and charged with arson and burglary in connection with a $64,000 December fire at a building owned by the Coach House Players, Inc., pleaded guilty in Ulster County Court Wednesday to third degree burglary.

The three, Edwin Sauers, 19, his brother, Robert Sauers Jr., 22, both of Connelly, and George Lober, 19, of 109 Hudson Street, Kingston, had previously waived indictment in supreme court.

They pleaded guilty to a prosecutor's information charging them with third degree burglary in satisfaction of all charges in connection with the Dec. 12 incident. Each faces a possible maximum prison sentence of seven years on the felony charge.

At the time of the arrest of the three, following nearly a month of investigation, detectives said two fires were apparently set at the building at 12 Augusta Street after the trio allegedly broke in.

munity theatrical group for rehearsals.

Roger Scholl, president of the Coach House Players, said Wednesday that the insurance company estimate of damage was $64,000. The group's insurance, however, "did not come anywhere near to covering the entire loss," Scholl said.

The roof on the building has already been repaired and the group is now in the process of determining how and what to repair next, Scholl said. The group has been forced to rehearse in private homes.

In court Wednesday Edwin and Robert Sauers were represented by Attorney Edward T. Feeney. Lober was represented by Attorney Barry M. Lipman. District Attorney Francis J. Vogt represented the People at the time the pleas were entered. County Judge Raymond J. Mino put sentencing off until a later date.

Meanwhile, in other county court matters:

Eleanor Bonestell, 29, of 97 Pine Grove Avenue, was sentenced to five years probation on a felony charge of second degree forgery, to which she had previously pleaded guilty. Judge Mino also ordered her to make restitution "of the fruits of the offense." She had been arrested last year on multiple counts of second degree forgery, stemming from the alleged forging of stolen checks. The defendant was represented by Attorney Alan S. Zwiebel.

Robert Bryant, 21, of Wallkill, was sentenced to five years probation on a charge of first degree criminal trespass stemming from an incident in Wallkill in Oct. 1974. Bryant was represented by Attorney Alfred Mainett.

Eat and Grow Younger

Most Past-40 Diets Neglect Essential Vitamins-Minerals

By LeLord Kordel
Number Fifteen of a Series
Minerals rank with protein as the most neglected, haphazardly obtained nutrients in our "civilized" diet, and more especially in the diets of persons past 40. Protein and minerals are so closely linked that to advise you to eat plenty of protein, without stressing the need for equal care in obtaining a full quota of minerals, would be to tell only half the Eat-and-Grow-Younger story. That is why my second nutritional commandment is "Minerals without fail." Protein and minerals are the chief actors in the nutritional drama, while vitamins play a secondary, although essential, role needed to set other substances into action. To neglect any of these three food elements wrecks the nutritional drama.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, noted authority on diseases of older persons, stated: "The foremost nutritional defects in the mature and aging are calcium, iron and protein. Fully 75 per cent of the men of 60 suffer a lack of one or more. On the other hand, many suffer dietary excesses, notably carbohydrates and possibly cholesterol." Calcium-Iron Important

ingredient of blood that your bloodstream will attempt to maintain its calcium level, even though it has to rob other body parts of their vitally needed calcium. That is why, in many older persons, the bones, robbed of their calcium by the blood, become fragile, resulting in easily fractured arms, legs and hips.

Coping

Your nerves, your heart, your teeth, your brain cells, your blood — all need sufficient calcium to remain healthy, and to function as nature intended.

An inexpensive and convenient way to obtain added calcium in the diet is through the use of powdered skim milk. This dry milk provides needed calcium and protein along with many trace minerals — less the fats which are wisely limited during the later years.

It is Dr. Crampton's belief that a deficiency of iron is nearly always present in the "uncared-for person in the higher-age brackets."

He says that the typical person of 60 is anemic, iron-poor and body-poor — unnecessarily so. Insufficient hydrochloric acid in the gastric secretions is a common cause of iron poverty in the older body.

Third Commandment
My third commandment — "Vitamins in their rightful place."

The constant need for vitamin-rich food in your diet is an oft-told tale, and one which I shall not repeat here. Yet there are two facts about vitamins which you may not know, and which deserve to be included here.

The first little-known fact is that proteins and vitamins work together. The chemical agents called enzymes, that do the greatest part of the digestive work for your body, are all made of protein. Certain of these protein enzymes actually take part in your body's use of its vitamins, while certain vitamins affect the body's production of protein enzymes — a sort of "mutual aid society."

In other words, you can't expect the vitamins in your food (or the vitamin-mineral supplement you take) to give you all the benefits you expect from them, unless you also provide your body with ample quantities of protein foods each day.

Nutritional science has learned that successful vitamin therapy depends upon the presence of adequate high-proteins in the diet. Your vitamin needs should always begin with a high protein diet.

Fruits and vegetables may appear fresh and green in the market, yet be grossly lacking in vitamins, and minerals as well.

May Lack Vitamins
Therefore, unless you grow your own fruits and vegetables on properly fertilized soil — or can purchase them from farms and gardens containing carefully enriched soil to your certain knowledge — there is every possibility you are not obtaining in your food all the vitamins and minerals needed to keep you looking and feeling young.

In that event, the safest course is to supplement your Eat-and-Grow-Younger diet with a vitamin-mineral concentrate. For my own use I have found the formula called Nutri-Time to be an ideal vitamin-mineral food supplement.

Carefully planned meals plus added vitamins and minerals in concentrated form, provide the best way to make certain that vitamins and minerals are "adequate" in our diet. And adequate they must be, if you don't want your Eat-and-Grow-Younger program to bog down.

'Look at Me' a Gift for Parents

"We had a hard time getting parents to look at their kids," says Thea Flaum, writer, producer and moderator of a new TV series. Using real mothers, fathers, children and grandparents, the Look at Me! programs demonstrate how we can start noticing our kids.

It reminds us that we as parents can provide more effectively than a trained teacher or a room full of expensive toys the hundreds of brief encounters that perhaps can make our kids smarter and happier people.

The beauty of this series is its simplicity. All the examples are so accessible. We want to say, why didn't I think of that before? We see a mother of six returning from an afternoon of shopping at the supermarket. What can be educational about putting away six bags of groceries? The mother has her children sort the items. That's the basis for mathematics, recognizing differences and similarities and organizing materials.

As one of her youngsters puts away the canned goods, she checks to see if he knows the difference between peaches and pears. This encourages him to look closely at the labels and be more aware of distinctions between one picture and the other.

In another episode we see a grandmother caring for her two granddaughters while their mother is at work. Leslie, the older child obviously feels some resentment about sharing grandma with the baby. Grandma recognizes this as quite normal. She makes sure she has set aside a period of time devoted just to Leslie. She compliments Leslie on her drawings and gives her opportunities to assist grandma by handing her diaper pins, pointing out that this job is something only a big girl like Leslie could do. In such small ways, Grandma builds Leslie's image of herself as a valuable and special person.

There isn't a thing mentioned on Look at Me! — from simple language games to paper bag puppets, to measuring soap suds and sorting beans in egg boxes — that any parent couldn't do with his child. It's so easy to fill a few bottles with different amounts of liquid and have your child arrange them in order, so simple to listen to a child's story for a change. The point that Mrs. Flaum brings home with her engaging manner and the many familiar examples is, "You don't need to be a trained teacher to help your children learn something."

Make a request to your local educational television station to include Look at Me! in its scheduling plans if it is not now shown. The series emanates from WTTW, Channel 11, Chicago.

Dear Abby

Should Be Told Who Is Real Father

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband's parents who live far away insist upon sending my son Christmas and birthday gifts, and I wish they wouldn't.

Jimmy is 6 now and old enough to question where these gifts come from. So far I've been saying, "they're from some friends of Mommy's," but I don't know how much longer that will suffice.

I divorced Jimmy's father and married again when Jimmy was 2. My husband adopted Jimmy, so he's the only father the boy has ever known, but I would rather not tell him about his "real" father until he's older and better able to handle it.

I suppose I'm not being realistic because so many people know about my first marriage that someone is sure to tell him. However, I don't want Jimmy to know just yet.

When the time comes, should I tell Jimmy, or should my husband? I want it to be an O.K. experience, not a traumatic one. Can you or your readers who have been through this help me?

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The time to tell Jimmy is right now! Say, "Before I married your father, I was married to another man, and HE is your natural Daddy. We decided it would be better for both of us if we ended our marriage, so we got a divorce. Then I fell in love with your father and he adopted you, making you his LEGAL son."

Then tell him about the set of grandparents you've been unfairly hiding all these years. The sooner you tell Jimmy, the easier it will be. Good luck!

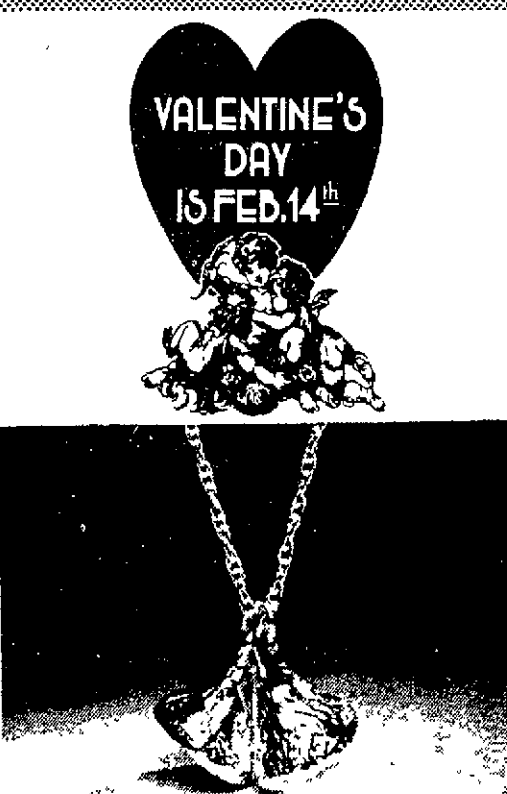

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, a guy I went with gave me a gold charm bracelet. (I'll call him "Pete.") Pete and I broke up, and I married a good friend of his. My husband and I see Pete about once a week.

I haven't worn the bracelet for two years, and I probably won't ever wear it again. It's very pretty, but it doesn't mean anything to me now.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UN: I'd return the bracelet to Pete.

Widow of Al-Anon Founder, Over 80, Says: When Your Mate's an Alcoholic, You Wonder Why

A great little lady in her 80s talked the other day about living with an alcoholic.

"When your mate's an alcoholic, the hardest thing is understanding why," the widow of the co-founder of Alcoholics Anonymous said in an interview.

"That is harder than all the disappointments and frustrations."

Lois W. is revered around the world as the founder of Al-Anon, the fellowship of relatives and friends of alcoholics.

There are more than 9,500 groups in the United States, Canada and 62 other countries. Growth is speeding up. At least half of the Al-Anon members have loved ones still drinking.

Lois W. stuck to the rules. She politely refused to have her picture taken. She insisted on being referred to as Lois W.

"Anonymity is vital," she said. "It is necessary to protect the alcoholic from personal embarrassment in his/her business and social life."

"I cannot break the rule," she said. "I tried to persuade Mrs. W. otherwise — especially since the world has known her husband's name since he died in 1971. She wouldn't budge."

"It would be a very bad example," she said.

The years have shrunk Lois W. to something around five feet and turned her softly curled hair to pure white. They've done nothing to dull the sparkle in her dark eyes.

Her red wool dress, accented by a red plaid taffeta bow, sidedied, was topped by a black coat with a small fur collar. A trim black knit hat with a high crown topped it all.

Lois W. had been up the previous night until 3 a.m. She had come in from her home in Bedford Hills, N.Y. for an Al-Anon trustees' meeting.

In between Al-Anon business around the world, Lois W. is consultant for a movie on her husband's life. It will be called Bill W. and is based on a book by the same name, brought out last year by Harper and Row.

The author, Robert Thomsen, is working on a sequel, "Lois W."

When Bill W. died in 1971, it was announced to the world that he was William Griffith Wilson — a New York stockbroker who drank himself out of jobs and almost out of life.

In 1935 on a business trip to Akron, Ohio, a Dr. Walter Tunks, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, put him in touch with a person who arranged contact with "Dr. Bob"

— Robert Holbrook Smith. The two helped one another to stay away from drink, a day at a time. That was the start of AA.

Lois W. supported the family by working as an interior decorator during the falling-down-drunk days of her husband. Before marriage, she had been an occupational therapist.

"I got drunk a couple of times to show him how silly it was," Lois W. said.

"It was a waste of time, of course. He was so drunk he couldn't register. I should have done it when he was sober."

"Did you ever feel sorry for your husband when he was so drunk?" I asked Lois W.

"Yes," she said. "Sorry and terribly sad. But angry, too."

She drinks now and then. "Bill was anxious for me to lead a normal life," she said.

"He was different though. He was psychologically and chemically in need of alcohol."

Science has puzzled over that one for a long time. Why, for example, can tens of millions drink socially and not all eventually become alcoholics?

Some people know how to stop short of intoxication-poisoning.

But a non-stop thirst for beer and whisky drives others to the point of drunkenness, black-outs and suicide on the installment plan.

"Definitely there's a chemical thing about it," Lois W. said.

Would Lois W. favor health hazard warning labels on beer and whisky? Or prohibition?

She said "no" to prohibition. As to warning labels — such as those on cigarettes — she just shrugged. The way people do when they mean "what's the use?"

"I do think," Lois W. said,

"that our society with its acceptance of drink has gone too far."

"We have gone too far in our social drinking."

"What I mean by 'too far' is that our children grow up to think they can't be men and women unless they drink."

"You see it in movies, on television."

Asked about her obviously good health, she answered:

"I'm a very fortunate person. One thing I've had going for me is plenty to do all the time."

Lois W. said Al-Anon is for friends of alcoholics as well as relatives. The 12 steps of AA, virtually unchanged, and the 12 AA Traditions are guiding principles of Al-Anon.

It is for anyone whose "life has been or is being deeply affected by a problem drinker."

"The principles are just suggestions," Lois W. said. "Al-Anon members can drink."

In an Al-Anon pamphlet on the organization, she makes these points:

— There is a striking analogy between working on ourselves and cultivating a garden.

— To raise flowers we must get rid of the weeds.

— The garden of many a martyred, self-pitying wife or husband of an alcoholic can become choked with smugness and self-righteousness.

"I was just as powerless over my husband's alcoholism, since I had failed in every way I tried to control his drinking," Lois W. said.

She recalled that it was especially hard to accept the way alcohol broke down his ideals and ambitions and robbed him of all hope.

Later she became jealous of all the time AA was taking out of their marriage.

"We had the house full of drunks in all stages of sobriety," she recalls. "It seemed to me he was trying to dry up all the drunks in the world."

"After a while I began to wonder why I was not as happy as I ought to be since the one thing I had been yearning for all my married life had come to pass."

"Then one Sunday Bill asked me if I was ready to go to the meeting with him. To my own astonishment as well as his, I burst forth with — 'Damn your old meeting!' — and threw a shoe as hard as I could."

By degrees after that, Lois W. came to realize how much the partner of the alcoholic also needs to live by a spiritual program.

Soon after that she started the first Al-Anon group

3,000 Miles Away: A Celebration for Dorothy

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Olympic skater Dorothy Hamill's performance in Innsbruck touched off a celebration 3,000 miles away in Connecticut.

The celebration was led by Hamill's aunt, Mrs. Mary Piper of Westport, who told that Dorothy moved into first place Wednesday after the second round in figure skating competition. "Oh my God! we're about to bust," she told her niece had completed the compulsory program in first place, ahead of defending world champion Diane DeLeeuw of Holland. "Dorothy's in first place!" the reply reverberated through the restaurant.

feat was greeted with equal enthusiasm by neighbors in Hamill's home town of Riverside, about 15 miles from Westport.

Mrs. Piper is the sister of Chalmers Hamill, Jr., a mechanical engineer for Pitney Bowes in Stamford. Their father, Chalmers Hamill, was assistant U.S. attorney general under President Franklin D. Roosevelt and served through the Eisenhower administration.

Hamill's parents, her older sister and brother, Marcia, and Sandy, are at Innsbruck where she is the favorite to capture a gold medal in the free program final Friday night.

Hamill fell heavily during her warmup Wednesday but earned near-perfect marks and a standing ovation for her compulsory short program to take over the lead. She received marks of 5.8 and 5.9 from eight judges and a perfect 6.0 from Italian judge Giorgio Simscalco to improve her second place position gained in Tuesday's opening portion of the program.

Friday night's scheduled free skating competition is worth 50 per cent of the overall marks and is the strongest part of Hamill's program. She is regarded as the top woman free skater in the world.

De Leeuw, an American from Paramount, Calif., whose parentage and dual citizenship allows her to skate for Holland, moved up to second after the compulsories while Isabel De Navarre of West Germany, the first day leader, fell to third.

"I'm very, very happy that I skated well," Hamill said. "I'm glad I did the fall in the warmup instead of the competition like I did last year. I didn't let it bother me."

Hamill fell on a flying sitspin in the 1975 World Championships at Colorado Springs, Colo., and lost a chance to catch De Leeuw. "I was a little nervous for the short program but then I guess all the skaters are," she said. "Friday I guess I'll be a little nervous, but not scared. I will do the best I can and hope."

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis., won the Olympic 1,000-meter speed skating event today to give United States its second gold medal of the Winter Games.

Mueller, 21, won by nearly a second from Jørn Didsrksen of Norway and favored Russian Valeri Muratov, the world record holder at the distance in this new Olympic event.

It was the second speed skating gold medal won by the U.S. team, whose earlier Olympic championship was won by Sheila Young of Detroit in the women's 500. All but two of America's medals at these Games have been won in speed skating.

Dan Immerfall of Madison, Wis., the bronze medalist in the 500, finished 12th in the field of 31 and Dan Carroll of St. Louis still groggy from a bout of flu, was 28th.

Earlier in the day the Soviet Union took the women's 20 kilometer relay ahead of Finland and East Germany. The United States finished last in the field of nine.

Mueller, a 5-foot-11, 160-pounder who is engaged to be married to Leah Poulos of the women's team, skated in the second group of 16 and then had to wait nearly two hours to see if his time would stand up.

Unlike Wednesday's 5,000, when the ice was bad because of falling snow, today's race was run in perfect conditions. The overnight snowfall had been swept from the ice, which was polished before the start, and the competitors raced under a bracing sun.

Mueller had intermediate times of 17.41 and 46.82, but didn't look too happy when he finished, probably feeling his time of 1:19.32, which goes into the books as an Olympic record, would not hold up until Muratov skated in the eighth pair.

But the Russian, silver medalist in the 500, did not have it to give today, finishing in 1:20.57, 12 100ths of a second behind Didsrksen's silver medal pace.

Czechs Forfeit Hockey Game

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — The United States' chances of winning an Olympic hockey medal improved considerably today when Czechoslovakia was ordered to forfeit its match with Poland after team captain Frantisek Pospisil failed a dope test.

The Czechoslovaks defeated Poland 7-1 on Tuesday but now have been handed a loss.

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Steve Jensen scored two goals for the second consecutive game and his linemate Bob Doherty also tallied a pair to power the United States Olympic hockey team to a 7-2 trouncing over Poland today.

In evening their record at 2-2 with their second victory in a row, the Americans put themselves in line for an unexpected medal. They conclude the round robin tournament against West Germany Saturday afternoon, and another triumph would assure at least a bronze medal.

The Russians finished in one hour, seven minutes 49.75 seconds, almost a minute faster than Finland, which won the silver medal in 1-08:36.57. East Germany finished third in 1-09:57.95.

The United States never a factor in the women's competition, managed to avoid last place by 1 100ths of a second over Canada in the field of nine teams.

The Russian team of Nina Baldicheva, Zinaida Amosova, Rana Smetanova and Galina Kulakova ran a strong race. Baldicheva was third after the first lap but after that they led all the way.

Helena Takalo of Finland, the only woman to have won a medal outside of the Russians—a gold and a silver—tried hard to keep her team in contention but she had too much to make up on Kulakova and her team had to settle for the second place finish.

Recent ill health contributed to the poor showing of the U.S. quartet of Martha Rockwell, Jana Hvalaty, Terry Porter and Twila Hinkle, who finished in 1:17:58.17.

An overnight snowfall transformed Innsbruck from a gray to a white city but up in Seefeld, some 1,000 feet above the Tyrolean capital, the fresh snow gave the Nordic skiers considerable waxing problems.

But unlike Wednesday, when the Russians chose the wrong wax for the first three men, the "waxing master" made the correct choice today and the quartet had few problems compared to the other teams.

The victory boosted Russia's gold medal total to 11 and 23 medals overall.

Wednesday night, Briton John Curry won the men's figure skating championship and will now wait around to see if Dorothy Hamill can join him as the women's champion.

Curry and Hamill, the leader after the compulsories, share a common coach in former Italian champion Carlo Fassi. The Briton is undecided about whether to settle permanently in the United States.

Curry is as British as warm beer but he would not have won his gold medal had he not spent the last two years in the United States perfecting his dancing technique in New York City and his skating at Denver.

Asked if he would like to take out U.S. citizenship, Curry, 26, said, "I like the zest and life in the United States very much," but nothing further.

Curry, who turned in a near flawless performance of jumps and spins, much of it in a ballet form, was a clear winner with 110.00 points and 192.74 points from Vladimir Kovalev, the 1974 world champion from Russia, and Toller Cranston of Canada.

David Santee of Park Ridge, Ill., retained his sixth place but national Terry Kubicka of Rockford, Ill., the first man to introduce a backward somersault into his program, moved up from 10th to seventh.

Curry, who is almost certain to settle in the United States, does not plan to go the way of other skating champions—into an ice show. "I can't see myself in an ice show or in teaching," he said. "I'll have to find something else."

Hamill was nothing if not brilliant in her compulsory free skating where she earned one perfect 6.0 mark from Italian judge Giorgio Simscalco and scores of 5.9 and 5.8 from the other judges.

"Friday, I guess I'll be a little nervous. I won't be scared and I'll do my best," said the 19-year-old from Riverside, Conn.

Giants Appear to be Staying in 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Toronto Giants won't be playing in the National League during the coming baseball season.

A Superior Court judge is sued a preliminary injunction Wednesday blocking the sale of the bankrupt San Francisco Giants to a group of wealthy investors in the Canadian city.

Judge John E. Bensen blocked another cross country move by the Giants when an eleventh hour bid of $8 million in cash was made made Bob Lurie, a local sportsman-financier, and Bob Short, former owner of the American League's Washington Texas entry.

Although the pair has not officially purchased the Giants, the judge granted the injunction sought by the City of San Francisco, whose mayor put together the proposed purchase an hour before Benson's deadline.

The next step for the prospective new buyers is to persuade the Giants' parent company, the National Exhibition Company—of which Lurie is a board member—to accept the offer.

However, attorneys for National Exhibition gave no indication when the directors would gather to act on the matter. If the sale is agreed to within the next few days, National League owners conceivably could vote on approval of the new owners when they meet in Chicago Wednesday. Nine ayes are needed to complete the changeover.

"What I'd like to do now is find out the exact terms of the offer," said James Hunt, attorney for the Giants. "Let's find out what the offer is. Then we'll be in a better position to present this to the directors. I want to chat with Short and Lurie and discuss the nuts and bolts of the proposal."

Short agreed. Before leaving

The city initially sought the injunction Jan. 10, a day after Giants owner Horace C. Stoneham announced the sale of the team to the Canadian consortium of Labatt's Brewery, the Toronto Globe and Mail and a Toronto bank for $13.25 million.

The Short Lurie purchase price is $5.25 million under the Canadian offer, but contains an equal $8 million for only the baseball team—free and clear of all liabilities.

Under the terms of the Toronto offer, the $5.25 million was to be placed in escrow to indemnify the city on the team's 35-year lease at Candlestick Park.

The Giants' financial woes began in 1968 when the American League granted Charles O.

Finley permission to move from Kansas City to Oakland, which is across the bay from San Francisco.

Since then, the Giants' home attendance dwindled rapidly, clearing the million mark only once—in 1971 when they won the NL's Western Division pennant.

The last two seasons, they barely totaled 500,000 fans for their home games.

In Toronto, the head of the group trying to buy the Giants said he still holds out hope the club can be moved to Canada despite the injunction.

"We're not despaired," said Don McDougall, president of Labatt's Breweries. "It's certainly a major setback, but logic is still on our side. Changing ownership is not going to put people in the ballpark (in San Francisco) and it's not going to pay the bills."

"Really, despite the initial disappointment, we can only wait. We felt all along and we still feel, that logic is on our side. The San Francisco Oakland area cannot support two ball clubs."

It was Short's second attempt to buy the nearly bankrupt Giants, who have lost $6.4 million since 1968, including $3.5 million in the last two seasons. In addition, the Giants have had to borrow $1 million from the Bank of America and $500,000 from the league to keep operating the last few months.

Short's original offer of $11 million was for the team and National Exhibition's extensive real estate holdings in Arizona, Minnesota and Florida. The Short Lurie offer is for the Giants only—free and clear of all liabilities.

At a news conference after the hearing, the prospective new buyers said it was a "50-50 proposition, but others may join in with us." It was not revealed who they would approach to manage the team, but Short said they expected to talk to a few candidates soon.

"The San Francisco Giants have the best young team in baseball," he said. "When I started out in Washington I wouldn't have failed if I had this team."

Naturally, I expect the team to be a contender next season, Lurie added.

Mayor George Moscone, elated after working for more than a month to put together the package, said, "I am very happy and very gratified. There was a lot of hard work. We're glad that it all came together when it did."

Moscone, who had the Giants Toronto bombshell dropped on his desk the day after he was sworn into office, said he will go to Chicago next week if necessary to remind NL owners that the city had lived up to its side of the bargain—that it could find a buyer who wanted to keep the Giants in San Francisco.

MLPA Studying Owners' Ideas

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Major League Players Association today studied a "skeleton" form of the clubowners' ideas concerning a modification of the reserve clause with both sides hoping it will serve as a basis for future talks.

"The owners presented us with a skeleton form of their ideas," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, after Wednesday's meeting. "It wasn't comprehensive, but it will serve as a basis for future talks on Friday."

John Gahern, counsel for the owners, described the meeting as "constructive" and pointed out that the Player Relations Committee, representing the owners, is willing to follow Miller to any location suiting his convenience in an effort to continue the negotiations. The owners and players are trying to reach an agreement on the basic contract, which expired last Dec. 31.

The major problem in the negotiations is that the reserve clause was ruled illegal in the cases of pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally by arbitrator Peter Seitz. U.S. District judge John W. Oliver Wednesday granted a 10-day delay on his decision upholding Seitz' ruling and allowing the owners to make a request of the appeals court.

Oliver ruled earlier this month that Seitz had the authority to declare the pitchers free of contract obligations to their teams after playing the 1975 season without signing contracts. Meanwhile, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said, "baseball cannot function under the 'Messersmith decision'."

"This points up an area where Mr. Miller and I are in agreement," said Kuhn. "He knows baseball needs a reserve system just as I do. He knows baseball can't live with a 'Messersmith decision.' He has said repeatedly there has to be a reserve system of some sort."

Kuhn then called upon Miller to be a "statesman." "For all his skills and for all the power he has achieved, Miller has never learned to be a statesman who appreciates the long-term problems baseball is facing. He doesn't understand, for instance, why we need an equalized competition as we can get. He doesn't understand the fans' attitude toward the game at all and their dedication to their teams' star players. He doesn't understand why it's important for the national game to maintain reasonable ticket prices so that we can have this great mass audience."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A federal judge has given major league baseball owners 10 days to ask an appeals court to block his decision upholding the free agent status of pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally.

U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver granted the delay Wednesday to allow the owners to request a delay in his decision until the 8th U.S. Court of Appeals can hear the case.

Oliver ruled earlier this month arbitrator Peter Seitz had the authority to hear the grievances of Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers and McNally of Montreal, who claimed they were free agents because they played last year without a contract. And he ruled he lacked the authority to review Seitz' decision.

The owners claim Oliver's action will ruin baseball's reserve system, which has provided the major league teams with indefinite control over a player.

Oliver said to issue a stay the owners would have to prove there was a strong chance for his ruling to be overturned, that if the stay was denied irreparable harm would result, that no substantial harm would come to interested parties by granting the stay and that granting the stay would not harm the public interest.

As far as Oliver was concerned, the owners struck out.

Senators Stun Orange Wrestlers

STONE RIDGE

There was a time when Orange County Community College ruled the roost in the Mid Hudson Conference wrestling standings and Ulster County was an also-ran.

But times have changed, and the Senators, who last year just missed winning the M-HC championship, opened the delayed 1976 campaign Wednesday night on the Senate Gym mats by turning back the Middletown grapplers, 22-17.

How important was the win? Consider this: Orange, not postponed by the weather this season, had wrestled and beaten every team in the conference. Defeating UCCC would have clinched the title for the Colts.

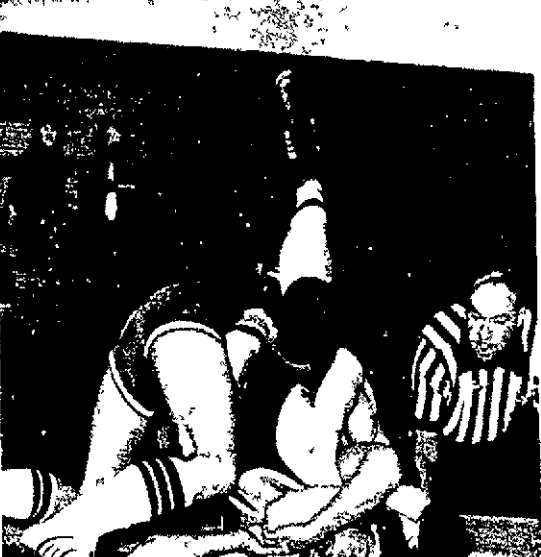

Ulster, meanwhile, was wrestling for the first time "for keeps." By winning, the Senators need only to beat the teams Orange already has conquered (and they'll be favored to do it) to capture the championship.

The key wins in Wednesday's match came right off the bat as Robin Hunter (118) beat Bob McGuire, 4-2, and Chris St. John (126) decisively outpointed Courtney Travis, 6-2. Both Orange losers moved down in class for the matches. Ironically, both are Ulster County boys, McGuire for New Paltz and Travis from Ontario.

UCCC has a big triangular tap for Saturday at 2 p.m. when Dutchess and Rockland invade Stone Ridge.

The summaries:
Ulster 22, Orange 17.
118—Robin Hunter (U) dec. Bob McGuire 4-2.
126—Chris St. John (U) dec. Courtney Travis 6-2.
134—Bruce Brinson (O) pinned Marcus Kallipolites 1-0.
147—Ken Farsetta (O) dec. Ken St. John 16-4.
150—Ted Nadratowski (U) dec. Pete Lora 5-0.
158—Bob Thorpe (U) dec. Dave Gardner 10-3.
167—Ted Beahm (U) pinned George Paszkiewicz 5-0.
177—Bob Gonzales (O) dec. Chris Kluger 10-3.
190—Dan Cesso (U) drew with Scott McAdon 5-5.
Hwy-Tom Palonis (O) dec. Tony Del Gallo 10-4.

Confidence Builder for Larry's Bucks

NEW YORK (UPI) — "This one game will raise the confidence of the kids enormously. AS A BIG WIN FOR US, A BIG WIN, BIG WIN," SAID Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello after his Bucks beat the New York Knicks 109-95 in an NBA game Wednesday night.

The "kids" are second-year man Brian Winters, who had a game-high 27 points, rookie Junior Bridgeman, who scored 26, and first-year man Dave Meyers, who had 11. That trio and Elmore Smith, who accounted for 17 points, were traded by Los Angeles for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar before the season. All told, the traded three accounted for 81 points.

For the Bucks, who lead the Midwest Division, it was only their fourth win in the last 14 games and, although their winning margin was 14 points, the game was tied with less than four minutes left and the momentum in the Knicks' favor. Costello's "kids" had let a 15-point lead with 1½ minutes left in the third quarter evaporate as Earl Monroe and

Spencer Haywood sparked a 24-9 Knicks' surge. But eight layup points by the "kids" clinched the win.

Bridgeman, who hadn't scored a goal in 17 minutes of the first half, got 14 third quarter points.

With two-thirds of the season finished, Costello evaluates the Jabbar trade as a short-term loss but a long-term gain.

"We got good players for Jabbar, although they're young," he explained. "The kids can't make a franchise overnight but in the long run — say two or three years — we'll have a fine team. Let's face it, their lack of poise and inexperience sometimes killed us. I can pick out 12 game where end-game inexperience beat us. But tonight's victory and the way they did it will boost their confidence. I KSARED Dridgeman for the first time this year. He's a pro already. The pressure doesn't bother him. He'll keep on attacking you."

***

The way Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue sees it, the 76ers' win over the Portland Trail Blazers Wednesday night was beautifully fundamental.

Shue was especially pleased because the Sixers were coming off a raggedy performance in Tuesday night's 85-84 win over the Chicago Bulls. Shue was also pleased because the victory over Portland put Philadelphia into a second-place tie with the Buffalo Braves in the NBA's competitive Atlantic Division.

The loss spoiled a brilliant 35-point performance by Portland's Sidney Wicks. Steve Hawes added 21 points for the Blazers, who hold third place in the Pacific Division.

The 76ers won on the strength of a strong first half in which they shot a blistering 63.8 per cent. Doug Collins, who scored 24 points, hit 9-of-11 in the first half and Fred Carter, who also scored 24, was 7-for-10 in the first two quarters.

"We had a super first half," Shue said. "We really did."

The 76ers led 39-29 at the end of the first quarter when they made 16-of-23 shots, with Collins getting 15 points in that quarter. Philadelphia had a hot hand again in the second period, hitting on 14-of-24.

Houston defeated Boston 115-103, Phoenix topped Detroit 123-94 and Seattle defeated New Orleans 93-90 in other NBA games.

Denver defeated San Antonio 137-133 and the New York Nets beat St. Louis 120-110 in American Basketball Association games.

Rockets 115, Celtics 103

Calvin Murphy scored 21 of his 31 points in the second half to lead Houston over Boston. The Rockets scored 12 points in the final two minutes to put the game away after a fan rushed onto the court and pushed Boston center Dave Cowens, who had collided with Murphy. Cowens knocked the fan down. Jojo White had 23 points for the Celtics.

Suns 123, Pistons 94

Alvan Adams scored 22 points and six other players were in double figures as Phoenix routed Detroit for its fourth straight victory. Curtis Perry had 20 and Paul Westphal added 16 for the Suns. Eric Money had 25 for the Pistons, who lost the ball on steals 17 times.

Sonics 93, Jazz 90

Herm Gilliam hit a 12-footer with 43 seconds left to lift Seattle past New Orleans. The Sonics, playing without starters Fred Brown and Leonard Gray, were led by Tom Burleson's 25 points.

Nuggets 137, Spurs 133

Bobby Jones scored with 10 seconds to go to cap Denver's victory over San Antonio. The game was tied 15 times and the score changed hands seven times with David Thompson leading the Nugget scoring with 25 points and James Silas hitting 38 for the Spurs.

Nets 120, Spirits 110

Julius Erving's 25 points led a balanced attack which enabled the Nets to beat St. Louis. New York led 28-26 after the first period and then broke loose to take a 56-42 edge at halftime. Ron Boone scored 26 points for the Spirits.

Ernie Holmes Indicted For Narcotics Possession

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steeler defensive tackle Ernie Holmes has been indicted on one count of possession of narcotics—250 milligrams of cocaine.

A grand jury returned the indictment Wednesday and the district attorney's office said Holmes could be tried as early as next month on the charge.

"He was indicted for possession of a controlled substance, specifically cocaine," said Assistant District Attorney David Gleason. "That's a second degree felony. The punishment ranges from two to 20 years in prison and a maximum fine of $10,000. There have been no motions filed yet by Holmes' attorney so I don't know if we will have a pretrial hearing."

"I would estimate we could have a trial date set in March of April."

Gleason said he had not yet heard from Holmes, who was freed on $1,000 bond Feb. 2. Holmes has said, however, the accusation was false and he was framed.

Holmes, who lives in Newton, Tex., was in Amarillo last month attending a wedding when he was arrested. He was arrested in a hotel restroom by two officers who said it was a coincidence that they happened to be there.

The officers said they spotted a man handing Holmes a small packet they suspected contained drugs. They said Holmes tried to throw the packet into a toilet, but missed.

The Steelers' front office Wednesday had no immediate comment on the indictment.

Bowling's man of the decade, Earl Anthony, has made two dramatic moves in areas that help determine a player's enduring greatness. In the 20th annual All-America team to be announced in the February issue of Bowling, he becomes the first ever to be a unanimous choice in consecutive years.

Also in the February issue of Bowling, the official monthly publication of the American Bowling Congress announces that Anthony has moved into fifth place on the all-time earnings list the magazine has been compiling exclusively since 1957.

The Tacoma, Wash. crew-cut lefty's name appears on all 166 ballots cast by the writers, broadcasters and officials across the country to name the top 10 players for 1975. A year ago he collected all 159 votes. The only other unanimous choice was Billy Hardwick in 1969.

Anthony is the only 1974 holdover. He is joined this time by another lefty, Dave Davis, Carmen Salvino, Ed Ressler and Roy Buckley. Davis has been the first team three times and the second team twice, but the others are new to the number one lineup.

Even the veteran Salvino had only three second team berths to reflect one of the better records among the active pros. Buckley moves up from the 1947 second team while Ressler makes his first appearance a big one.

Roy Buckley, Colbus	98	51	345	Paul Cowell, Tucson	4	52	64

Honorable Mention: John Petraglia, New York (328-52), Marvin (Bud) Sloudt, Lebanon, Pa. (7-30-51), Jay Robinson, Los Angeles (4-38-50), Dick Weber, St. Louis (9-24-41), Dick Riger, River Falls, Wis. (7-6-27), Jim Godman, Lorain, Ohio (4-11-23), Larry Laub, San Francisco (5-23-23), Gary Mage, Seattle (3-13-22), Barry Asher, Los Angeles (1-19-22).

Anthony, meanwhile, continues moving up the lifetime earnings ladder. Thanks to the $107,960 he earned last year on the PBA tour, the ABC tournament and the National Bowling Council Spectacular, he is in fifth place and setting his sights on Don Johnson in second place.

Dick Weber is far and away the leader with nearly $600,000 but at the relative paces Johnson and Anthony have been going, Anthony could move into second place in two years. He already has passed up Carmen Salvino and moved into fourth place after four weeks of the PBA winter tour this year, but the chart below is based on earnings through Dec. 31, 1975.

James Gibson of the Country Squires in Woodstock made the news in the men's division with a 713 series that landed him in third place in the Top Ten. Bob (Tall) Smith owns the two top series of 730 and 716.

It takes at least 270 to get on the KWBA's all-time singles rating. According to Freeman records, Marion Sanford is on top with 290. Sue Heins has 289 and three bowlers are tied with 288's — Joan Jameson, Beverly Port and Pat Ausanio.

Balancing Act

Kingston High School basketball player Brian Armstrong (22) displays fine form as he drives towards basket during last week's KHS win at Saugerties. The only problem is that Sawyer Steve Schaffer is in the way and Armstrong is about to be called for charging. The Tigers, back in a tie for first place in the DCSL, are at rington Friday. Saugerties goes to Ketcham, the only team it has beaten this season. (Freeman photo by Carey) overall. A win over Rondout on Feb. 17 would give them the boys title.

The Onteora girls, who already have clinched the conference championship, also had an easy time. Ellen Sheehan led the field in 33.36 seconds. Onteora won seven of the top ten places, including the first five.

Huguenot Boxers Advance

Alfie Bevier, a Town of Rosendale employee, stopped Richard Ramirez, unattached, in the third round of the 160-pound sub-novice division. Eddie Hodas decided Irving Page of the Morrisana Youth Center team of New York in three rounds in the 160-pound sub-novice and in the same weight class and division Jimmy Dorsey, an Ellenville High School senior, scored a technical knockout over Joseph Ruiz of the New York Recreation Club in the third round.

Eugene Cope of the Lower East Side Boxing Club decided Rick Amundson of New Paltz in the sub-novice 160 pound class.

Jeff Schott, of New Paltz State College, gave the Huguenot Club its first victory several days ago by winning his 135 pound sub-novice bout by technical knockout in the second round.

Four Huguenot Club boxers in the Open division have yet to make their debut. The list includes Jim Longo, Brian Hurley, James Branch and Joe LaForte.

Tarkington Into TV

NEW YORK (UPI) — Minnesota Vikings' quarterback Fran Tarkenton, a 15-year pro veteran, has signed a multi-year contract to be a sports reporter for the National Broadcasting Co., the network announced Wednesday.

At a news conference, Tarkenton, 36, refused to disclose the exact length of the contract or his salary. But he said his contract would not immediately end his playing career.

"I'm going to ask them (the Vikings) to let me play for a few more years. They might not even want me to play," he joked. "But I always felt during my career that I'd like to get in this business sometime."

"I didn't want to be another ex-player turned part-time football commentator. I want to participate in all sports as a professional broadcaster."

Double Vision No Ban To Tar Heels' Center

By UPI
Double vision didn't prevent North Carolina's towering center Mitch Kupchak from scoring in double figures while leading the third-ranked Tar Heels to an impressive 81-66 triumph over their fourth-ranked Atlantic Coast Conference rival Maryland Wednesday night.

Kupchak, bothered all week during practice by an eye injury that affected his sight, also pulled down 13 rebounds in leading North Carolina to the victory on the Terps' home court.

Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith said in jest after the victory which boosted his team to a 19-2 record:

"Maybe Mitch should keep the double vision if he plays that well. I think we played our best game of the season considering the quality of the competition and the place we played."

The loss dropped Maryland to 17-4 mark and ended any prospects of the Terps' winning the ACC title in regular season competition. However the conference post-season tournament gives Maryland one last chance for revenge over the North Carolina team which has beaten it twice this year.

Maryland's All-America, John Lucas, said: "I think the tournament will be in our favor. We'll know we can't lose to stay alive. I ain't quitting."

Kupchak's teammates, Phil Ford and Walter Davis scored 20 and 19 points to help the North Carolina offensive surge.

The Tar Heels momentarily built a 13-point margin and then switched to their four-corner slowdown offense to preserve the win. Fouls to break the four-corner eliminated Maryland's two key guards, Brad Davis and Mo Howard, even though the Tarps cut the margin to 73-67 with 1:08 remaining.

Wilcox Paces PBA Tourney

BALTIMORE (UPI) — John Wilcox of Montoursville, Pa., charged into the lead after 12 games of the qualifying rounds Wednesday night in the $70,000 Fairlanes Open stop on the Professional Bowler's Association tour.

Wilcox, whose 1,229 total after six games wasn't even among the top 24 leaders, averaged 229 pins in his second six-game session for a 1,375 score and 2,604 total.

Mark Roth of Staten Island, N.Y., who led in the early round with a 1,319 score, dropped 67 pins off the pace into second with a 2,537. He averaged 211 after 12 games. Jim Ragnoni of Elyria, Ohio, second after six games, slumped to 17th with a 2,461.

The final six games of the qualifying round continues Thursday with the 24 highest scorers competing Thursday night in the beginning of the match game finals.

Saugerties LL

Saugerties Little League holds an organizational meeting for the 1976 season Sunday, Feb. 15, at 6 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Barclay Heights. All persons interested in managing, coaching or umpiring are invited.

Kenny Carr led the Wolfpack with 22 points including 17 in the first half. Free throws by Glenn Sudhop and Craig Davis, however, decided the game.

Tenth-ranked Notre Dame had a much easier time with Villanova, putting the Wildcats away 84-57 behind 18 points from Adrian Dantley, 15 from Don Williams and 14 by Billy Paterno. The win lifted the Irish's record to 16-4.

No. 13 Missouri also won and in the process climbed into sole possession of first place in the Big Eight. The Tigers edged Oklahoma State 72-71 when Willie Smith hit a driving layup with 12 seconds to go. Smith finished with 21 points while Jim Kennedy added 19 for Missouri, which gained the Big Eight lead when Nebraska was upended 65-60 at Oklahoma.

In the only other game involving a ranked team, unbeaten Western Michigan remained that way, defeating Eastern Michigan 85-73. Jimmie Harvey scored 21 points for the 17th-ranked Broncos, who are now 19-0.

Flames Look Past Toronto to Rangers

The Atlanta Flames were the winners, the Toronto Maple Leafs were the losers but Atlanta goalie Dan Bouchard's thoughts were on the New York Rangers.

"For every game we win from now on, the Rangers will have to win two," said Bouchard Wednesday night after the Flames whipped Toronto 5-2 to move 14 points ahead of the Rangers in the battle for the final playoff spot in the Patrick Division.

Bouchard said the Flames were steamed over a quote attributed to Ranger Coach John Ferguson.

"He said this club does not have enough winners to be in the playoffs," he said. "So we've got something to prove."

I'm sure these guys are going to show him that we have enough winners to beat his team."

While Bouchard was thinking of Ferguson, Toronto Coach Red Kelly was sizzling about two great saves made by the Atlanta goalie.

"He made those saves on (Jack) Valliquette and (Darryl) Sittler. Two breakaways with the score 3-2. He made the saves, we didn't score, and that's the game right there."

Both players came in alone on Bouchard but they were unable to get him to move until they shot.

"In Toronto, they scored two on me on breakaways," Bouchard said. "On both of them I had contact with the

Curt Bennett and Tim Ecclestone scored goals in the final minute after Toronto goaltender Wayne Thomas had been pulled in favor of an extra skater to pace Atlanta past the Leafs. The Flames had built a 3-2 lead on goals by Larry Carriere, Hilliard Graves and Dave Kryskow.

In other NHL action, Boston beat Minnesota 5-2, Los Angeles whipped Chicago 7-4, Buffalo tripped Detroit 4-2 and Pittsburgh tied California 4-4.

In the World Hockey Association, Cleveland dropped Cincinnati 4-2, Indianapolis

Bruins 5, North Stars 2
Bob Schumatz scored two crucial second period goals and Jean Ratelle and Brad Park had three assists each to lead Boston past Minnesota. Schumatz' first goal at 14:37 of the second period lifted the Bruins to a 2-2 tie and his other goal, with only 33 seconds left in the period, was all Boston needed.

Sabres 4, Red Wings 2

Fred Stanfield, who has seen only spot duty most of the year, scored midway through the third period to give Buffalo a 3-1 lead and the momentum to slip past Detroit. The Wings, outshot 52-27, cut the deficit to 3-2 on a goal by Bill Hogaboam but the Sabres iced the game with an empty net goal by Don Luce.

WHA

Kingston Hospital Opens a Satellite Radiology Department

ELLIE MARSHALL POSITION PATIENT FOR XERORADIOGRAPHIC EXAMINATION OF THE BREAST.

Kingston Hospital has opened a satellite department of radiology at the Pine Street Professional Building, it was announced recently.

In addition to general X-ray work, the satellite office will be equipped with a Xeroradiography unit for diagnostic mammography.

Xeroradiography of the breast (mammography) is a photoelectric process that requires considerably less radiation than the traditional radiographic process used for breast x-rays.

The satellite office will be under the direction of Dr. T.R. Smalldon and Dr. Peter A. O'Hara, radiologists, and Jewels M. Cioni, administrative director of Kingston Hospital's Department of Radiology.

The satellite department, located at 138 Pine Street, will open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. All x-ray examinations must be made by appointment with a physician's referral.

Gardner Woman Dies, Injured in Crash

POUGHKEEPSIE — A Gardner woman critically injured in an auto accident last Friday in the Village of New Paltz died Wednesday night at Vassar Brothers Hospital.

Hospital officials said Mrs. Patricia Dippel died at about 8:45 p.m. She had been a patient in the hospital's intensive care unit since the crash.

Authorities said Mrs. Dippel lost control of her car, which was traveling on Route 32, and the vehicle ran off the roadway and slammed into a tree. Mrs. Dippel's four-year-old daughter, Patricia, sustained only minor injuries in the crash.

Suicide Ruling

Corner Arthur C. Chapp has ruled the death of Raymond Walasky, 69, of 37 Elmendorf Street, Kingston, a suicide.

Walasky's body was found in his apartment Wednesday by Kingston police after neighbors became concerned when he had not been seen for several days. Authorities said Walasky sustained a bullet wound to the head from a .38 caliber pistol. Walasky had last been seen on Sunday, authorities said.

Police Beat

Fires Damage Homes

Fires Wednesday afternoon extensively damaged two homes in Accord and Mt. Marion. Both fires were of undetermined origin.

Accord firemen were called out shortly after 1 p.m. to the Alfred Vozzone residence, where a blaze caused extensive damage to several rooms. About 40 firemen from three companies battled the fire for more than three hours. Fire Chief Lowell Baker said the fire was not suspicious.

Shortly after 4:30 p.m., Mt. Marion firemen were called out to the Roland Tompkins residence on Glenier Lane, where a fire broke out in the kitchen area and caused major damage to much of the house. A family dog was killed in the fire. About 40 firemen from the Mt. Marion, Glasco, Ruby Centerville and Cedar Grove fire companies fought the blaze.

There were no injuries in either fire.

Youths Arrested

State police on Wednesday arrested four Orange County youths, three age 17 and one age 18, on charges of third degree burglary.

Police said the youths, none of whom were identified because they are eligible for youthful offender status, allegedly broke into a hunting cabin on Frost Valley Road in the Town of Shandaken during the early morning hours and made off with a quantity of liquor and food.

Antique Burglary

Three Town of Saugerties men were arrested by Kingston Police early today on charges of third degree criminal possession of stolen property following a burglary at Martin Antiques, 55 North Front Street.

Shortly after 4 a.m., police stopped a car reportedly seen leaving the scene of the break-in and found items allegedly taken in the burglary inside the car. Charged with possession of stolen property were the driver, Charles Jones, 35, of Old Route 32, Saugerties, and two passengers, Michael Rano, 26, of Quarryville and Thomas Zuzich, 24, of Stay Road, Saugerties. Jones was additionally charged with seventh degree possession of a controlled substance following the discovery of an alleged marijuana pipe in the vehicle.

Red Dye Ban Is Enforced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thanks to an appeals court ruling, the Food and Drug Administration today began enforcing its ban on the use of Red Dye No. 2, the nation's most widely used food coloring.

The U.S. Court of Appeals Wednesday lifted a temporary stay against enforcement of the ban but said it will hold a full hearing April 15 on an appeal by food and drug manufacturers.

The FDA had ordered an end to any further manufacture of food or drug products using the dye, because of unresolved safety questions, including the possibility it can cause cancer.

Nothing Like a Shovel

A crew of Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad maintenance workers prove there's no substitute for a shovel as they clear the tracks behind an impacted snow plow. The plow, pushed by two locomotives, became stuck in 6-foot drifts north of this upper Thruway farming community of a crew of men were called to free the stranded railroad equipment. (UPI)

'Mr. X' Order to Nadjari

NEW YORK (UPI) — Special state prosecutor Maurice Nadjari, who announced the indictment of a Bronx judge Wednesday, has been ordered to show why a prospective witness, known only as "Mr. X," should appear before a grand jury.

Supreme Court Justice Leonard Sandler Wednesday ordered Nadjari to justify his order for "Mr. X" to testify before the grand jury before investigating judicial corruption.

The show cause order followed the announcement of perjury charges against State Court of Claims Judge Adolph C. Orlando, 55, who was indicted for his testimony before the Temporary State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

This 'Pied-A-Terre' Too Much for GM Heir

NEW YORK (UPI) — A midtown penthouse so costly that a General Motors heir couldn't afford it, went on sale Wednesday for $3.5 million, not including electricity.

Edwin Glickman, a partner in Madison Equities, the developer of the building, said the penthouse originally was designed for Stewart Mott, the General Motors heir who dabbles in bankrolling liberal politicians.

However, Mott began to quibble when the asking price rose from $1.2 million to $3.5 million with monthly maintenance charges of about $3,000, electricity not included.

For Best Documentary

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Motion Picture Academy announced Wednesday the 10 Oscar nominees for best documentary film of 1975.

— "The Incredible Machine," the National Geographic Society and Wolper Productions, produced by Irwin Rosten.

— "The Man Who Skied Down Everest," Crawley Films, produced by F. R. Crawley, James Hager and Dale Hartleben.

— "The Other Half of the Sky: A China Memoir," MacLaine Productions, produced by Shirley MacLaine.

— "Arthur and Lillie," Stanford University's Department of Communication, produced by Jon Else, Steven Kovacs and Kristine Samuelson.

— "The End of the Game," Opus Films Ltd., produced by Claire Wilbur and Robin Lehman.

— "Millions of Years ahead of Man," BASF, produced by Manfred Baier.

— "Probes in Space," Graphic Films, produced by George Casey.

— "Whistling Smith," National Film Board of Canada, produced by Barrie Howells and Michael Scott.

Grant Wants Out

NEW YORK (UPI) — W.T. Grant Co., the country's third largest variety store chain, is more than $1 billion in debt and wants to go out of business.

Attorneys for the 70-year-old firm asked a federal bankruptcy court Wednesday to declare Grant bankrupt — a move that would make it the biggest retail business failure in U.S. history.

In size among variety chains, Grant ranks behind only F.W. Woolworth and S.S. Kresge.

But at the hearing, attorneys for Grant and its 11 major bank and trade creditors listed the firm's debts at $1.1 billion and presented a resolution in which they agreed it would be virtually hopeless to continue trying to reorganize the chain. Federal Bankruptcy Judge John Galgay said he needed more information "as to the viability of W.T. Grant's future" and ordered the hearing continued today.

Grant filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition Oct. 2 in an effort to remain in business while it tried to reorganize and repay its debts.

Crime Figure Slain on Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —

Joseph Barboza Baron, a onetime "hit-man" who broke the underworld's code of silence and turned informer, was killed by a shotgun blast Wednesday night as he left a friend's home in a quiet residential neighborhood.

Barboza, 44, who legally changed his name to Baron, was a self-confessed loan shark and killer who informed on organized crime figures in New

Police said Barboza was walking to his car when a blast from a shotgun was fired from a white van that was seen speeding from the scene.

The victim was once defended by attorney F. Lee Bailey, who is in San Francisco to head the Patricia Hearst defense team.

"He told me he killed 26 people," Bailey said. "With all due respect to my former client, I don't think society has suffered a great loss."

Bailey said he doubted the killing was the work of organized crime.

LWV Survey Favors Modified Merger

SAUGERTIES

Should Saugerties follow the lead of several other towns in the state and merge its village and town governments?

Saugerties League of Women Voters has been exploring the pros and cons of not only a complete merger but an alternative merger of certain services such as police and assessment of properties.

The study has taken several months and results of the exploration were open to discussion Wednesday night at a meeting at Sawyer Savings Bank.

A consensus of the study committee revealed that "it would be extremely involved to bring about a complete consolidation." But, the general feeling of the committee was that in certain areas economics could be effected through a combination of services.

A number of league members also suggested that both the town and village would perhaps benefit most in that mergers might help eliminate friction that reportedly exists between the two governments. Problems might be more easily solved under one government, it was suggested. Mary Messina said she felt it might be helpful in the process of filing for state or federal aid and that moving forward on projects "would not be contingent on personalities."

Frances Bailey, chairman of the committee moderated the panel discussion and said that after further discussion, the committee will make its findings known to the entire league membership. Laws governing consolidation were explained by Betty Ohno who said the decision to put a merger proposal to a vote, lies with the village.

Just recently the Village of Rosendale took steps toward dissolution, which will be on the March ballot. Mrs. Ohno also pointed out that free consultation on dissolution and consolidation are available from the state and that both village and town governments may apply for such service.

Data on complete mergers in Prattburgh and Fort Covington in New York State was supplied by Eleanor Redder.

In the case of Fort Covington, the merger was of benefit to village taxpayers whose taxes were reduced by about 50 per cent. But, town taxes, in the same area increased about 30 per cent.

Prattburgh reports that as yet economic advantages have not been immediately realized and "very few other advantages" have been found. It was pointed out that a partial merger in New Paltz has been completed with police forces consolidated. The

Sam Mercer to the stand. Mercer said he did not recall a board workshop session at which Marlow had discussed the custodian situation and said he had not received any written explanation prior to the meeting at which Morra was appointed. He admitted criticizing Marlow for recommending Morra for Grade 14 status and said he had not disagreed with Marlow's recommendation to raise Morra to Grade 15.

Matthews, cross-examining Mercer, established that Marlow's recommendation to raise Morra had come after Mercer had criticized him at a board workshop session.

"Is it possible that if you had not criticized Dr. Marlow he would not have recommended raising Morra to Grade 15?" Matthews asked. Hill objected that the question was "pure speculation" and Matthews withdrew it.

Marlow took the stand and under questioning by Hill said he did not intentionally violate the Civil Service Law in recommending Morra for Grade 14 and later for Grade 15, and that he first heard the appointment might be a violation when served with the charges by the board. He said the Ulster County Civil Service Commission only expressed concern over Morra's lack of seniority and that all other custodians had waived seniority rights to the post.

Under cross-examination by Matthews, Marlow said the personnel report to the commission listed Morra as a custodian and Arthur Gribbin, the man he replaced, as a head custodian.

"So that is why the commission had no objections to Morra being appointed to Grade 14 instead of 15?" Matthews asked. "That's possible," Marlow replied.

Marlow said he recommended Morra for Grade 14 because he did not have as much experience as Gribbin and needed more supervision, "so it was two different jobs." Earlier, Marlow had criticized board members for bringing up the Morra question at a public meeting instead of discussing it at a prior workshop session. He said he had not received any complaints prior to the public meeting, "then we had some grandstanding."

Matthews asked Marlow if he was surprised by so many questions at a public meeting. When Marlow said he was, Matthews asked: "Does this possibly indicate you had not informed the board properly?"

"Not at all," Marlow replied.

The hearing resumes tonight at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Next on the agenda is the board's fifth charge, alleging that Marlow put in a beginning (Step Zero) salary for non-teaching employees in violation of the district's contract with ONTEA.

Dumping Discussed in Ulster

TOWN OF ULSTER

In a move to "put some teeth" in regulations regarding dumping at the Town of Ulster landfill, the town board voted Wednesday night to hold an informational meeting on a proposed new local law which would make dumping by outsiders a misdemeanor.

In recent months there have been complaints about non-residents, including Spada Trucking which hauls City of Kingston garbage, using the Ulster dump site.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino said the proposed law has been under study for 10 months and is ready to be aired at a hearing, Thursday, Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in Town Hall.

The board also voted down a proposal of Victor Patience to enter into a rent subsidy program under the federal Department of Housing and Development. Patience is a landlord, owning a number of properties in the Whittier Development. He asked the town to seek HUD's permission to act as an authority for the administration of funds. Under the program, the federal government pays 75 per cent and the renter, 25 percent.

Sabino said he has not received enough inquiries nor has the general public expressed an interest in the proposal. He said he also objects to allowing persons in the area who cannot meet the financial requirements of the housing development and, he feels that to do so would encourage sub-standard housing conditions.

The board approved an application to apply for a building permit, made by Peter Zeeh, the principal party in the Racquet Club which plans to build a facility off Brabrandt Road. The site plan has already received the approval of the Health Department of Environmental Conservation.

Problems in the constabulary were discussed with the board agreeing to meet with its advisors on police matters, Friday at 4 p.m. Plans are underway to interview candidates for the post of chief constable. The board agreed that administrative changes are in order.

Authorization was given for the hiring of the firm of Brinner and Larios to do a feasibility study for the proposed Halcyon Park Water District. The present water company, owned by John Fredericks Inc., is up for sale and Halcyon residents have asked the town to take it over.

Six property owners petitioned the town board to have the highway department maintain a private road off Bogert's Lane. Superintendent of Highways Robert Mitchell agreed, as did the town board, if the State Department of Transportation agrees with its findings. The road, which has been maintained by the town for at least 10 years, may become a town road by virtue of its having been used as such.

The town will sponsor its first free bus trip to Highmount Ski Center for school age youngsters. The excursion will be held Feb. 28. The first 40 to register will be accepted. Participants must pay their own skiing fee.

'A Land of Opportunity' . . .

POUGHKEEPSIE

An official with Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress has described the Hudson Valley as "a land of opportunity" for future industrial development.

In a recent speech to members of the New York Society of Industrial Realtors, Arthur E. Weintraub, Patten's senior vice-president, described the Mid-Hudson Valley as a "logical target for new industrial expansion to serve a wide range of markets." He mentioned a number of assets that make the valley attractive to firms seeking to expand or relocate their facilities.

Specifically, Weintraub cited the region's extensive network of high-speed expressways, which have "already made the Mid-Hudson attractive to various trucking and distribution operations." In addition, he pointed to the Hudson River's navigable deepwater channel, the area's numerous freight and passenger rail lines and growing commuter bus operations.

To indicate the region's attractiveness, Weintraub noted that Ulster, Dutchess and Orange Counties have experienced steady growth despite a lagging economy.

In addition, the Patten official discussed several public improvement projects in the Mid-Hudson region that point to continued future expansion, such as the second span for the Newburgh-Beacon bridge, the expansion of facilities at Stewart Airport, the possible establishment of a "foreign trade zone" and the construction of arterial connector roads in Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Beacon.

Several power plant developments are also being contemplated for the Mid-Hudson Region, said Weintraub, and several commuter, rail improvement studies are underway.

"Mid-Hudson communities," he said, "can soon expect a variety of important job producing public works programs to get underway."

"We also have a large labor pool, and housing at more reasonable prices than one will generally find elsewhere in the metropolitan area," he added. "So we're not just a land of apple orchards, farms and vacation spots."

Weintraub told the engineers that many of the cities and towns in the Mid-Hudson region "have excellent industrial sites available" and that public and quasi-public agencies are available to offer assistance to potential developers.

The New York Society of Industrial Realtors is comprised of industrial real estate specialists, who counsel their clients on where to locate new manufacturing plant facilities.

Pattern for Progress is a private, non-profit planning agency that is supported by many of the large industries in the Mid-Hudson region.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI)

Amid speculative pressures creating turmoil among European currencies, the dollar dropped on all exchange markets Wednesday and hit seven month lows in Frankfurt and Zurich.

Gold closed higher. It advanced from $129.37 to $130.87 in Zurich and from $129.50 to $130.75 in London.

French government officials disclosed that the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank Tuesday joined France and West Germany in trying to ease speculative pressures on the Deutschmark and French franc by selling off "not negligible" amounts of the German currency.

The current monetary turmoil is the result of heavy purchases of marks by operators trying to drive up its value and thereby forcing its revaluation, while at the same time speculative pressures are driving down the French franc, along with Sterling and the Italian lira.

The dollar closed in Paris at 4.4545 francs, its lowest since Jan. 8 and down from Tuesday's 4.4705, and in Amsterdam it hit a 13-week low when it declined from 2.66 guilders to 2.65. In Brussels it was down from 40.75 francs to 40.45.

Sterling advanced against the dollar for the first time in a week. The pound was up from $2.0275 to $2.0300.
